Machinists on Coast Defy Roosevelt, Vote To Continue Strike

A.F.L., C.I.O. Unions Reject President's Appeal to Resume Work in Shipyards

Openly defying President Roosevelt and the national executive council of their union striking A. F. of L. machinists at West Coast shipyards last night voted against returning to work on hundreds of millions of dollars worth of badly needed ships.

Meeting at San Francisco, the A. F. of L. members balloted 585 to 400 against ending the strike, while C. I. O. machinists, in a separate meeting, voted 359 to 56 for continuance of the walkout.

What action Mr. Roosevelt and the national heads of the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. might take remained a matter of speculation.

President Roosevelt had delivered his return-to-work call to Harvey Brown, president of the International Association of Machinists after summoning Brown to a White House conference last Monday. Brown immediately called the executive council of his union into session here Thursday, and the council wired the strikers, telling them of the Chief Executive's direct request for resumption of work, and adding:

"Therefore, pursuant to Section 4, Article 13, Grand Lodge Constitution, we are instructing that the strike be called off and our membership return to work."

Yesterday's meeting was called to act on the board's message. Brown told the New York Times last night he probably would have to go to the West Coast by plane today.

East Coast Plan Accepted

Contrasting with the action on the West Coast was the approval at Camden, N. J., of a master "no-strike, no-lockout" contract for East Coast shipyards, designed to stabilize production during the national emergency. Spokesmen for Atlantic Coast shipyard workers of the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers, C. I. O., approved the contract for two years, and it will be submitted to the Atlantic Coast conference here Friday for final ratification.

A similar master agreement was worked out for the West Coast several months ago and was ratified by all factions of shipyard labor except machinists, and by the employers. It provided for machinists' pay of $1.12 an hour and time and one-half for overtime. West Coast machinists have been striking for $1.15 an hour and double time for overtime.

At last night's Newark meeting, John Green, union national president, was quoted by the Associated Press as saying the agreement will provide increased wages of $220,000,000 for 100,000 East Coast shipyard workers in the next two years.

Woodmen Favor Return

Further contributing to the favorable side of the defense labor situation, striking members of the C. I. O. International Woodworkers of America were reported by the Associated Press to be voting, 30 to 1, last night to accept a National Defense Mediation Board proposal to return to work in 53 Northwest lumber camps and mills. The employers were expected to reach a decision today on acceptance of the Mediation Board settlement proposal, but little difficulty was expected on that score.

Some 2,000 men have been out of work for four weeks because of the strike. O. M. Orton, president of the union, previously had flatly rejected the Mediation Board suggestions, and had attacked the board and

President Asks More Defense Jobs for Negro

Discrimination Charged in Letter To Knudsen, Hillman

President Roosevelt last night directed the OPM to act immediately toward ending "Nation-wide" discrimination against Negroes in defense industries.

He charged that "other minority racial, national and religious groups" had felt the effect of discrimination "in many localities" at a time when the Nation is combating "the increasing threat of totalitarianism."

The situation, he told the defense officials, is "a matter of grave national importance" and insisted that "immediate steps must be taken to deal with it effectively."

Mr. Roosevelt's memorandum, addressed to William S. Knudsen and Sidney Hillman, director and co-director of the OPM, follows:

"Complaints have repeatedly been brought to my attention that avail-

28-Mile Convoy Of Army Trucks Passes D. C. Today

A 28-mile-long convoy of 336 Army trucks from Fort Meade will move through Washington this morning, transporting the 115th Infantry Combat Team to maneuvers in Caroline County, Va.

The trucks are scheduled to leave Fort Meade at 8:15 a. m. and to arrive at the A. P. Hill Military Reservation 15 miles south of Fredericksburg, Va., shortly after noon.

The convoy will follow Route 1 to Fredericksburg. When the first stop is made at the Maryland-District line, the last trucks in the column will be in the Fort Meade reservation. The troops, under command of Col. D. John Markey, will return to Fort Meade Friday night.

Cloudburst And Lightning Batter D. C.

Many Trees Felled; Half-Hour Downpour Amounts to .6 Inch

Canoeist Drowned

A 21-YEAR-OLD Pennsylvania man was drowned in swollen waters of the Potomac River near Chain Bridge yesterday, when the canoe he occupied with Miss Frances Buck, of Washington, overturned in a whirlpool. Miss Buck was rescued. Page 13.

Brief but Furious

A brief cloudburst wrought havoc in Washington and its vicinity yesterday and kept police and firemen busy repairing damage caused by a .6-inch rainfall and a high wind.

In Alexandria an amateur pilot, encountering high winds over the Beacon Airport, crashed while attempting to land. He was in a critical condition at Alexandria Hospital last night.

In Chevy Chase, D. C., lightning struck a tree overhanging the house of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. B. Barber, 3751 Northampton Street Northwest, punctured a hole in the roof, put the electric lights and the telephone out of order, set the kitchen pipes leaking, and scattered bark over nearby lawns and the street.

Silver Spring Home Struck

In Silver Spring the volunteer fire department was called to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond S. Hoover, 612 McNeill Road, which was struck by lightning. The bolt struck a gable, ran down the side of the house to the back porch, ripping weather stripping and electric wires from between the partitions of the house, and damaging interior switches. Mr. and Mrs. Hoover and their daughter, Betty Jane, who were reading at the time, were not hurt.

5-Cent Milk Is Proposed For Needy on WPA, Too

Extension of a 5-cent milk program to those on private relief and those working on WPA is expected to be urged tomorrow by one group interested in building up the health and strength of the underprivileged and undernourished among Washington's residents.

The Consumers Milk Committee, one of the original sponsors of distribution of surplus milk to low-income families at 5 cents a quart under the program of the Surplus Marketing Administration, will meet tomorrow at 8 p. m. tomorrow at the Y. W. C. A., Seventeenth and K Streets Northwest.

Mrs. Beatrice Chalet, president of the organization, indicated yesterday that its members are not content with the present restrictions on the program, imposed originally following representations by the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association. These limit distribution of the milk to those on public relief, and those certified for WPA employment, but do not permit its sale to those actually working on WPA.

Mrs. Chalet said that proposed extension of the program "undoubtedly" will be indorsed by the committee at its meeting. In addition she expects that the group will go on record with regard to establishment of a 1-cent milk program in the District's schools.

The Consumers Milk Committee, which has a membership of more that 300, is interested primarily in

$15,000,000 D. C. Airport Is Opened

Eastern Airliner 'Peachtree's' Arrival Begins Operations At Gravelly Point

The new Washington National Airport was opened for full-time transport operations early this morning as the Eastern Air Silverliner Peachtree roared in from New York en route to Tampa, Fla. Her wheels touched the ground at 12:10 a. m.

More than 5,000 persons lined the tiers of the $15,000,000 airport to see the ship taxi up one of the runways with her load of 16 passengers and a batch of mail.

District Postmaster Vincent Burke, Second Assistant Postmaster General S. W. Purdum, Roy Martin, superintendent of the United States Airmail Service and Maj. James C. Edgerton, who inaugurated the first air mail service between New York and Washington in 1918, were on hand to greet the ship's crew and passengers.

Vandenberg Is Aboard

Senator Arthur Vandenberg, of Michigan, the third passenger to step off the plane, expressed delight at the new terminal.

The first male passenger to land at the airport was B. E. Chapman, of Dallas, Tex.

A pretty New York show girl, Hilda Ferguson, 20, was the first woman passenger to set foot on the airport. She was en route to Charlotte, N. C.

Placed on board the plane for shipment to Florida from the Nation's Capital was a pouch containing some 15,000 letters which philatelists had dispatched here from all sections of the country.

Postmaster Burke received the mail pouches from Flight Capt. R. W. Tucker, of New York, and in turn presented him with the pouch of 15,000 letters. The plane took off again for Florida at 12:30 a. m.

Brilliantly Lighted

The airport was brilliantly lighted for the grand opening, with attendants and mechanics nattily dressed in new outfits.

The opening of regularly scheduled flights today marks the completion of long months of work during which the new field at Gravelly Point was dredged from the bottom of the Potomac.

Its completion marks the realization of a plan of President Roosevelt. The President told reporters that he dreamed of a bad accident at the old Hoover Airport and expressed the belief Washington needed a new terminal.

Government Girl Disappears on Trip To Buy Butter

The mysterious disappearance of a pretty 23-year-old War Department clerk who left her home yesterday to buy butter at the corner delicatessen while her fiance waited for her to prepare Sunday dinner had police baffled last night.

She is Betty Strieff, of 2110 Nineteenth Street Northwest, a clerk in the ordnance bureau of the War Department. Her fiance is Stanley LeBlanc, 26, of 1426 Twenty-first Street Northwest, a clerk in the Farm Credit Administration. A native of Des Moines, Iowa, where her mother lives, Miss Strieff has been employed by the War Department for the past eight months.

Her roommate, Miss Christine Tankersky, said she was in good spirits yesterday after receipt of a letter from her mother, who said she was coming to visit her.

Miss Strieff is a licensed pilot. At the time of her disappearance she was wearing a raincoat, thrown over a dark blue dress. She is 5 feet 5½ inches tall, weighing 117 pounds, and has brown hair and eyes.

New Russo-Nazi Pact Reported; Big Battle Heard Off Gibraltar; Allies Take Shell-Ruined Sidon

Gunfire, Explosions Sound 14 Minutes Shortly After British Fleet Leaves Port

By the United Press

La Linea, Spain, June 15.—Gunfire and strong explosions were heard from the Mediterranean near Gibraltar tonight, and it was reported without confirmation that enemy aircraft had attacked the British Western Mediterranean Fleet.

The British aircraft carriers Ark Royal and Victorious, the battle cruiser Renown and four destroyers were reported to have sailed from Gibraltar at 6:30 p. m.

The firing at sea began at 8:15 p. m. and continued for 14 minutes, interspersed by heavy explosions which may have been from bombs.

A thick fog made it impossible to see from the Spanish coast.

Two unidentified planes made a reconnaissance flight over Gibraltar at 10 a. m. today a few minutes after a large British naval squadron arrived at the fortress from the Mediterranean.

No bombs were dropped, but the Punta Europa antiaircraft batteries put up a heavy fire.

3 Nazi Planes Crash In Southern Portugal

Lisbon, June 15 (AP).—Three German warplanes and a fourth plane of unannounced nationality have crashed mysteriously in the Spanish frontier zone of southern Portugal, it was announced in an official report reaching Lisbon today.

Presumably the planes crashed during the night, at least two of them falling in flames, while a third caught fire after it crashed. Several bodies were found in the wreckage.

They plowed into open fields of the back country about 3 miles from the village of Amareleja, which itself is only about 5 miles from the border.

Near the wreckage two open parachutes were found, indicating that the crew of at least one plane had bailed out, and upon landing had vanished.

There were no further details, but Lisbon sources concluded there had been an air battle above Portuguese or Spanish territory.

The place where the planes crashed is about 200 miles northwest of Gibraltar and nearly 500 miles from the nearest German-occupied territory in France.

[A German air attack on a British convoy in the Atlantic west of Gibraltar this morning was announced in Berlin.]

Here's a Pigeon Who'd Rather Eat Than Race

"Three lofts failed to report arrivals," the race announcement said.

In any event, Virginia cooking and a probable confusion of States found one bird that participated in the Capital City Racing Pigeon Club race from Akron on Friday stopping off at the kitchen of a Warrenton (Va.) home.

The pigeon, looking hungry, flew through the kitchen door of Mrs. Eugene Allen's house on the Washington Road, 2 miles from Warrenton. It has white and gray wings, a green neck, an unresting appetite and no disposition to leave the kitchen for the less exciting business of racing. Mrs. Allen said she knows some one wants it back, and it is there, in good shape.

Foreign Legion Retreats

Civilians Ordered From Beirut; Key Damascus Outpost Falls

By the United Press

Vichy, June 15.—Evacuation of Beirut's 95,000 civilians was ordered tonight after Australian forces seized Sidon in the climax of a five-day "murderous siege" by land, sea and air that reduced the ancient biblical town to ruins.

An official communique announced that Gen. Henri Dentz's defending Foreign Legion and Senegalese forces abandoned Sidon, yielding the last important obstacle between Beirut and the British.

Falling back under constant air bombings and a bombardment of nine British warships lying 3 miles offshore, the French defenders retreated to new positions along the Nehr Ed Damour River, 12 miles south of Beirut, the Lebanese capital.

[An official military dispatch reaching British headquarters in Cairo reported that the British had occupied Jezzine.

[Jezzine lies 17 miles east of Sidon and its capture was said in military quarters to have opened the way for a wide-swinging the region north of Sidon as well flank attack on Beirut and as an assault from the west on Damascus in conjunction with "Free French" forces already said to be in the southern outskirts of the Syrian capital.

[From Jezzine, it was stated, the "advance northward continues."]

Beirut, vital French naval base, was said to be under constant night-time R. A. F. bombings, in contrast with Damascus, which has been spared by the enemy air force.

Tonight's communique said that Free French forces, already close to Damascus, had been held at a standstill in double-barreled efforts to storm the walled city from the south in the Kissoue region and from the Merdjayoun sector to the southwest.

In Eastern Syria, it was admitted, a column of British tanks striking from Iraq along the Euphrates Valley Saturday evening occupied the frontier post of Abou Kemal, an important caravan base, and thereby

U.S. Will Take Over 6 Danish Ships Today

First Steps to Utilize 84 Alien Vessels Idle In American Ports

By Hallett Abend

Copyright by New York Times

Six Danish ships will be physically taken over this morning by the United States Maritime Commission, thus marking the first completed steps toward utilizing the 84 foreign ships in American harbors which became subject to Federal jurisdiction under the terms of the Ship Requisition Act.

At 9 o'clock three vessels in New York harbor, two at Boston and one at Portland, Me., will be posted with notices that the ships now belong to the Maritime Commission. All six are freighters, and all have been kept in prime condition since they were tied up in American ports in April, 1940, when Germany invaded Denmark. Negotiations are still in progress with the owners for compensation for the seizures.

Hope Crewmen Will Stay

The Maritime Commission has expressed the hope that at least portions of the Danish crews will remain with these vessels. This will depend to some extent upon the uses to which the ships will be put, and in all cases the wishes of the Danes themselves will be consulted. It is understood that the Nazi-dominated regime at Copenhagen has advised the officers and crews to refuse to serve, but it is believed that in most cases this German-inspired advice will ge unheeded.

It is probable that none of these six vesssels will be used on trans-atlantic service, but one or more may be operated in the service of the Army.

The tonnages and speeds of the different vessels are as follows:

Bomb Damages U. S. Gunboat At Chungking

American Attache's Office Is Wrecked; Navy Canteen Struck

By the United Press

Chungking, June 15.—The United States gunboat Tutuila was slightly damaged, the office of the American military attache wrecked and the United States Navy canteen damaged today when 27 Japanese planes staged another savage raid on this Chinese capital.

Bombs landed within 100 yards of the United States Embassy. No Americans were injured. After the all clear signal had sounded the new United States Ambassador, Clarence E. Gauss, inspected the damaged area.

Damage "Very Slight"

Damage to the Tutuila, an old gunboat of the Yangtse River patrol, was described as "very slight."

The Italian Embassy also was damaged.

American personnel of the military attache's office, which was new and had been occupied only a short time, were said to have taken refuge in bombproof caves before the raiders appeared.

It was the sixth raid of the month and the second in 24 hours. It brought casualties since June 1 to more than 2,000, according to unofficial estimates.

Poor Quarters Hit

A large section of the recently rebuilt central shopping section was destroyed in today's attack and losses were heavy in the poorer residential quarters. Four bombs hit inside the so-called safety zone on the south bank of the Yangtse River.

It was one of these that caused slight damage to the Tutuila. About 30 Chinese standing in the entrance to a dugout not far from the American warship were killed.

Two special housing project buildings financed by the American Red Cross were hit.

U. S. Pilots, as Well as Planes, Needed for Chinese Victory

By Ernest Hemingway

RANGOON—There is much difference of opinion about the Chinese air force. I have seen them fly, visited their training schools and talked with the Americans and the Russians who have taught them. Some say they are terrible. No people on earth, except the Spaniards, are more conceited than the Chinese, and conceit is a bad thing for a pilot. It keeps him from progressing.

Lately kids from the people are being trained as pilots instead of the gentry having a monopoly. The course of training is not adequate and there are no planes for them when they are graduated, so nothing is really proved. But they are not as conceited as the type of airman who wishes to establish the fact that he is a superior being by flying and, once he can fly, wishes to go no further.

Recently the Japanese came up to one of the Chinese air fields in northern Szechwan province with two-seater long-range fighters. Sixteen Chinese pursuit pilots flying the Russian E 15-3, a Russian conversion of our old Boeing P12, with a new gull wing and retractable landing gear, took off to meet them. A few days before these same Chinese pilots had impressed President Roosevelt's representative, Dr. Laughlin Currie, with their forma-

Rumors Conflict

By the United Press

Stockholm, June 15.—Neutral diplomatic sources heard a report tonight that Germany and Russia have signed a new economic agreement which envisaged greater collaboration, especially an increase in exports to Germany from the Ukraine.

Informants understood that the new agreement had not dissolved the reported Soviet-German political tension, but they said it might go far toward explaining the recent flood of contradictory reports regarding the relations between the countries.

Russia Reported Mobilizing

Copyright by New York Times

Ankara, June 15.—Rumanian sources reported tonight that Russia has ordered general mobilization and has cancelled all leaves for reservists.

While this news seems also to have been heard by Hungarian diplomatic circles, it cannot be confirmed. British military sources say "it is quite possible, although we have heard nothing about it yet."

Russian quarters deny the report. It is possible German agents circulated the rumor in Bucharest and Budapest as an excuse for the presence of enormous numbers of Nazi troops in eastern Europe.

The Germans have been trying to inculcate a sympathetic feeling in the Rumanian population by spreading the tale that Hitler will get back Bessarabia and the Northern Bucovina for Rumania.

May Be True, Nevertheless

Therefore, while it is possible that the report emanates originally from Berlin instructions, it is also quite within the cards that it is true. During the past week the Soviet Union has transported large quantities of troops west from Asiatic Russia and has concentrated about 155 divisions on its European frontiers.

It is learned tonight that the Germans have now concluded the withdrawal of the Wehrmacht from Greece and Bulgaria and a large part of Yugoslavia. The commander in chief of Germany's Balkan armies, Col. Gen. Siegmund Wilhelm Walther List, has sent a message to King Boris of Bulgaria, thanking him for the "hospitality"

British Take Sidon, Ruined by Shelling

The taking of Abou Kemal from a small French garrison posed the grave menace of a swift British invasion of all of northern and eastern Syria, northwestward 240 miles to Aleppo and 265 miles westward to Damascus, because Gen. Henri Dentz has only about two divisions in all northern Syria.

Abou Kemal is a vital pumping station on the French branch of the Moosul oil pipeline and a post on the desert caravan trail to Palmyra air base and Homs.

On Friday Australian troops spearheaded by tanks had stormed into the narrow streets of Sidon, once great Phoenician port, only to be driven out by what was called a "brilliant" French counter-attack.

For five days the British fleet of nine warships had shelled Sidon from point-blank range.

Tonight's communique said that French planes, reinforced with new arrivals "from France," had heavily attacked the British warships and "forced them to sheer off the coast," in an effort to relieve the siege.

Although the French abandoned Sidon Saturday evening, Dentz reported to Vichy that the British continued to bombard the town throughout the night.

The shells of the warships then were turned on the newly thrown-up French defense lines along the Nahr Ed Damour River and, behind a screen of tanks, the Australians moved into Sidon.

French planes from dawn to darkness today were said to have bombed and machine-gunned the Australians and "considerably hampered" the enemy occupation of Sidon.

The 12,000 people of Sidon had been evacuated at the start of the British siege, and civilian casualties were not believed to be great, but official dispatches said the historic town had been reduced to ruins.

Key to Damascus Falls

Jerusalem, June 15 (AP).—Kissoue, key to the defenses of Damascus, fell to Allied forces after holding up the advance for several days, a military spokesman announced tonight.

The Allies then advanced 7 miles to Nahta, across the River Aswad.

Nazi Planes Beaten Off

Cairo, June 15 (U.P.).—Defeat of a squadron of German bombers in an air battle off the Lebanese coast, where the Luftwaffe attempted to breake up the British naval bombardment of Sidon, was announced tonight.

Planes of the British fleet, presumably taking off from an aircraft carrier, were said to have torpedoed an "enemy vessel" near Beirut.

An official R. A. F. communique said British fighters beat off German bombers, escorted by fighter planes, which "approached our naval forces" along the Lebanese coast.

"Several hostile fighters and one bomber were damaged," it was stated.

Another strong British air attack on the Rayak region was reported. "A number of hostile aircraft" were reported to have been damaged near Rayak, 30 miles east of Beirut, in an air battle.

"Our bomber aircraft attacked hostile troops and motor transports in the Mirgille area," the R. A. F. added.

Commerce Dept. Urges Shippers To Rush Freight

The Commerce Department urged yesterday that shippers move all possible commodities this summer which normally are shipped in the fall and thereby help ease a prospective "tight freight car situation" in September and October.

The Department offered these other suggestions to shippers: Load cars to capacity; load and unload cars promptly, operate freight handling forces in a six-day or seven-day week when this will shorten the standing times of cars; don't order cars until commodities are ready to load; avoid ordering more cars than are needed; use motor trucks on short hauls and for perishable goods.

Italians Report Air Assaults Upon Alexandria and Tobruk

By the Associated Press

Rome, June 15.—Sharply intensified air warfare in the eastern Mediterranean was reported by the Italian high command today with accounts of new Axis assaults upon Britain's Alexandria naval base and British-held Tobruk in Libya and R. A. F. raids on German and Italian positions in North Africa and the Dodecanese.

The Fascist war bulletin said Italian planes alone raided Alexandria, target of destructive Axis assaults last week, on Friday night but failed to give the results of this latest foray.

At Tobruk, German and Italian airmen were reported to have started large fires in repeated bombardments of British fortifications and destruction of two British Hurricane fighters was claimed in clashes over that stronghold, 80 miles from the Egyptian border.

The Italian high command said three more British planes were shot down out of R. A. F. formations attacking Bengasi, major Axis-held port in Libya, and that a submarine downed a British Sunderland flying boat in the Mediterranean.

Additional British raids were acknowledged on other points in eastern Libya and on the Island of Rhodes, in the Dodecanese.

A special Italian communique charged that British airmen helping defend Tobruk had used dumdum bullets and added:

"It is understood that in case another such instance is proved our reprisal will be immediate and doubled."

A bullet which struck an Italian artilleryman "shattered and produced an enormous gaping wound in the fleshy part of the leg" and "deformed cartridges were found on a captured English soldier," the communique said.

"Thus is confirmed," it added, "that the use of dumdum bullets was not an isolated case."

(An International declaration made at the second Hague conference on July 29, 1899, outlawed the use of dumdum bullets.)

In East Africa, the Italians said a British attack on the Baro River, in the Galla Sidamo sector of Ethiopia, was repulsed last Tuesday, while artillery activity was reported in the Gondar region, northwest of Addis Ababa. Operations in Ethiopia was said to be severely hampered on both sides by bad weather.

Empire's Cavalry Beats Off Three French Planes in Syria

By Edward Kennedy
Associated Press Staff Writer

With the British Forces in Syria, June 15.—From a hilltop today I watched the final shelling that drove French forces beyond Sidon.

As I watched three French planes appeared and machine-gunned my party. Our group had returned from a visit to British columns pushing toward Damascus, up the River Jordan and along the coast. The lateral roads which link the three bodies of troops took from dawn to sundown to negotiate.

Between the Litani River Valley and the coast the road was destroyed by French withdrawing along the mountainside. Cavalry and even gun carriers were able to get over it, but not automobiles, so we had to detour by a trail which took us through several isolated villages where British troops had not yet appeared. Villagers insisted on ceremoniously offering submission to us and the mayors invited us to drink coffee.

It was part of the strange battle for Syria which produced an engagement between airplanes and cavalry. The cavalry won.

A detachment of famous mounted yeomanry made up of rugged country lads from a country in west England was engaged in clean up operations in the Upper Litani Valley and was meeting little opposition when suddenly three French bombers appeared flying extremely low.

As the planes, with both front and rear machine gunners firing, swooped overhead, the detachment opened up with its rifles. The planes came straight toward the detachment, but broke formation, veering to right and left to avoid the rifle fire.

The only casualty was one of the horses, which dropped dead of excitement as the planes went over.

Shortly before approaching the cavalry, the planes had bombed and machingunned Australian engineers who were throwing up a temporary bridge over the river to replace one the French had blown up. A truck carrying incendiary bullets was set afire and there were some slight casualties.

In this rough terrain, which divides Syria proper from Lebanon, the cavalry has been highly successful and especially useful in arousing enthusiasm among the Arab population.

The Australians, reinforced by several British regiments, are attempting to drive a wedge between Beirut and Damascus, the capitals of Lebanon and Syria respectively.

These forces have gained ground along the valley which is entered from Palestine through the Valley of the Jordan. They have made contact with an Australian column marching up the coast toward Beirut.

Further to the east are DeGaullist and British columns marching on the defenses south of Damascus.

Costa Rica, Guatemala To Lend Rails to U. S.

San Jose, Costa Rica, June 15 (AP).—The newspaper Diario De Costa Rica said today that the Costa Rica and Guatemala government had agreed to permit the United States to use their transcontinental railways if needed for continental defense.

The proposal was advanced as a means of reducing congestion at the Panama Canal.

China Needs Pilots as Well As Airplanes

tion flying. But when the heat was on it was a different story, and the Japs shot down 16 of 16 that went up. They broke formation and scattered and the Japs, keeping their formation, just went around methodically accounting for the singles after the covey had been flushed.

Any real American aid to China in the air would have to include pilots. Sending them planes keeps them happy and keeps them fighting. It will not put them in condition to take the offensive successfully.

China can resist indefinitely with the equipment she has if she is financed and the Generalissimo sees an ultimate chance of victory through Japan being involved in war with Great Britain and the United States.

Artillery Badly Needed

There are about 4,000 allegedly competent Chinese artillery officers. Most of them are holding staff commands due to the lack of guns. Many of them are German trained and very good. Others are of doubtful ability. There are at least two Chinese offensive projects which could be undertaken successfully if they were furnished with artillery.

There is an excellent chance that Japan will not try to move south this year at all, but will try to defeat China by two great final drives. Having lost her chance to make peace with China, she may realize she can never move south successfully with the bulk of her forces held in China which cannot be crushed economically as long as it is receiving periodic financial injections from the United States.

Japan's problem is to cut the main roads into China by which aid comes in from the United States and Russia. If she does not attempt a move to the south she will undoubtedly try to drive north toward Sian to cut the communications between Russia and China.

Japan's other drive must be from Laokai on the French Indo-China frontier, or somewhat east of there, north again to Kunming to cut the Burma road. Cutting these two roads would sever the main lifelines into China from the two countries that are helping her most. They are the two moves to be expected this summer in case Japan does not move to the south. Both of them are exceedingly difficult and the Chinese have an adequate mobile reserve to oppose them.

At this moment it looks as though Japan would not move south unless there were a German move to invade England. It does not look as though a German attack on Suez would provide sufficient confusion for her to move. It looks as though Japan will not risk war with England and America until she sees a possibility of England and the United States being so occupied that they cannot oppose her adequately.

300,000 Tons of British Ships Sunk in 2 Weeks, Nazis Say

By the Associated Press

Berlin, June 15.—Nearly 300,000 tons of British and British-used shipping have been sent to the bottom in the first two weeks of June, bringing ship losses to nearly 12,000,000 tons in 21 months of warfare, D. N. B., official German news agency, said tonight.

The agency said the figures did not include ships sunk by mines. The nearly 12,000,000 tons sunk so far, said D. N. B., more than equalled the record made by U-boats during the entire World War.

(According to the Encyclopaedia Britannica 11,189,000 tons of shipping were sent to the bottom in the World War.)

The agency said Britain was now in a much weaker merchant marine position than in the worst World War year, 1917.

D. N. B. said two Bristol Blenheim bombers were downed by German fighters during British attempts to fly into Holland and Norway. The agency said the raiders were turned back at all points.

A German north sea patrol boat bagged an attacking British bomber, it was also reported.

The Germans also reported the sinking of ten British merchantmen totaling 50,000 tons in the Atlantic, five of them by Luftwaffe units attacking a convoy west of Gibraltar this morning and five recently by submarine.

The daily war bulletin also claimed a direct bomb hit by Nazi airmen on a heavy cruiser off Allied-invaded Lebanon. The high command said Luftwaffe airmen successfully attacked military facilities and industrial plants on Cyprus, British island fortress in the eastern Mediterranean.

Applications will be received from noon until 6:30 p. m. The newspaper women also asked that members of the National Press Club and the Women's Press Club sign up.

Latin-Americans Will Tell Reich They Stand By U.S.

San Jose, Costa Rica, June 15 (AP). Authoritative sources said tonight that the five Central American Republics had agreed to inform Germany that they wholeheartedly indorsed the May 2 "fireside chat" by President Roosevelt, in which he emphasized the need for pan-American defense.

The Guatemalan foreign office asked the opinion of the other Central American countries—Costa Rica, El Salvador, Nicaragua and Honduras—after the German legation to Central America had sought to learn their attitude.

The Costa Rican government pointed out to Guatemala that the day after Mr. Roosevelt spoke, President Calderon Guardia cabled him congratulations. It said this action constituted "open adherence" to the views expressed by Mr. Roosevelt.

Italy Orders Census of U. S. Property There

By the Associated Press

Rome, June 15.—The Italian government announced today that it had taken retaliatory measures, including the ordering of a registration of United States property in Italy following President Roosevelt's blocking of Italian and German credits in America.

Some observers pointed out that the Italian action might even be the prelude to a diplomatic break in relations with the United States, which at least one Rome newspaper seemed to suggest.

(Rome's action had been fully expected in Washington.

(There was no official comment, but the general attitude appeared to be that the Italian action was largely academic since existing currency restrictions already prevented Americans from withdrawing investments from Italy. The same is true of Germany.)

U. S. Envoys Accused

The seeming suggestion that the retaliation might be a forerunner of severance of diplomatic relations was sounded by Il Popolo di Roma, which recalled that the United States is patrolling the Atlantic to watch for Axis sea raiders, but pointed out that United States diplomats are continuing at their posts in the Axis countries.

Il Popolo said "this is truly singular from the point of view of international loyalty" and declared American diplomats "have functioned on the eve of the war as restless and obstinate instigators and agitators."

Assets Put at $142,000,000

American assets in Italy have been estimated at $142,000,000, including $70,000,000 of direct investments, such as common stocks or property; $70,000,000 of bonds and $2,000,000 in cash. Americans have an estimated $427,500,000 in Germany, including $228,000,000 of direct investments, $160,000,000 of bonds and $39,500,000 of short term assets or cash.

Although the official communique referred only to registration of United States property in Italy, it was thought in American circles that this would be interpreted to mean the property of all American citizens. The only United States Government property in Italy is the Embassy, which enjoys extraterritorial privileges.

The communique said, "following the blocking of Italian and German funds and the registration of all foreign property by the President of the United States, the Fascist government, besides ordering suitable measures in reply, has ordered immediate registration of all property belonging to the United States and existing in Italy."

Berlin Is Not Surprised

By the Associated Press

Berlin, June 15.—The freezing of Axis assets in the United States came as no surprise to most German business men.

As a matter of fact, surprise was expressed in some quarters that President Roosevelt hadn't taken this step sooner in view of the repugnance, or even alarm, with which German economic and financial policies are regarded by many Americans.

There was no official German expression on the Roosevelt action and no evidence of excitement in Government quarters.

Informally, some Germans called attention to recent American statements that Germany's movable assets to a large extent already had been removed from the United States and that so far as possible the Reich had prepared itself for the eventuality of losing at least temporary control over its American holdings.

Almost as if in expectation of some crisis in German-American financial relations, the newspaper Voelkischer Beobachter published an elaborate defense of the German clearing and exchange system and Hitler's efforts to make Europe more nearly self-sufficient.

Challenging some American contentions that the world must choose between autarchy or extensive foreign trade, the newspaper said autarchy and international trade could exist together.

Hold Out Trade Prospects

It said that Europe in the new order does not propose to be completely autarchic and that "the victorious Axis" would be the world's best customer for some one. It asserted Germany would be in a position to absorb South America's surpluses, thereby relieving North American economy which, it said, is not able to take up all those surpluses conveniently.

The paper referred to a recent declaration by German Economics Minister Walther Funk to the effect that Germany does not insist on elimination of gold as a means of adjusting trade balances between nations.

"One of the goblins scaring North American economy is the fear of demonetization of gold," the Beobachter said. "Germany's monetary policy does not exclude sensible use of gold in international exchange, in fact it would permit fruitful use of North America's sterile gold accumulations."

Army Behavior Better, New Study Shows

By the Associated Press

The Army's behavior has improved materially as its size has increased, officials reported yesterday on the strength of a new War Department study of enlisted men's records.

A comparison of the last half of 1940 with averages for the five years preceding showed that, on a percentage basis:

Fewer than half as many deserted; an even smaller number were forced out of the Army on being convicted of civil offenses, and only a third as many were discharged by order of a court martial.

The statistical study was disclosed as "evidence of the high type of men who have entered the service in the last two years."

Specifically, 4,330 desertions were reported in the closing six months of last year, the latest such period for which figures were available, representing 0.99 per cent of the Army's strength at the time. The comparable figure for the five years preceding was 2.04 per cent.

Discharges due to sentences of civil courts numbered 373, a percentage of 0.09 compared with the preceding average of 0.25 per cent; and 554 men were discharged on order of a court martial, representing 0.13 per cent in comparison with 0.39 per cent.

By contrast however the cases of men who admitted previous desertion from the military service mounted heavily. These numbered 840, or 0.19 per cent compared with the average of 0.09 per cent.

The Selective Service registration of last October 16 was given as the principal explanation. This brought back to the Army scores of men who had "gone over the hill." Many were found unfit for further service.

Wilbur Likens The Closed Shop To Monopolies

Palo Alto, Calif., June 15 (AP).—Monopoly in private business and the closed shop in labor were classified in the same category today by President Ray Lyman Wilbur of Stanford University.

"Monopoly and the closed shop," he told Stanford's largest graduating class, "are milestones on the way to fascism, nazism, communism and other tyrannies that come to our civilizations because of the tendency of men of power to seek exclusive control."

Dr. Wilbur, completing his twenty-sixth year as head of the university, said:

"Just as monopoly in private business developing exclusive power has led to the call for the Government to interfere and control, so will the drive for the closed shop in labor, if it succeeds, compel the higher organizations of Government to step in and assume control. To be safe and to preserve democracy we must leave large margins for freedom of action. Democracy must be open at both ends."

New Bomber for Britain Has Speed Equal to Most Fighters'

By Edwin Stout

Associated Press Staff Writer

Baltimore, June 15.—The first test flight of a new bomber being built for Britain showed it to be "about as fast as most of the pursuit planes flying in Europe," the Glenn L. Martin Co. disclosed today.

The plane was flown yesterday at the Martin field here with British representatives looking on.

It is faster than the B-26, which the Martin company is building for the Army, but it has less range and bomb capacity, Joseph T. Hartson, Martin executive vice president, told a group of returned war correspondents winding up a 3,500-mile, two-week tour of defense plants.

They were shown the new bomber and a huge flying boat under construction for the Navy, comparable to the Army's B-19, the world's largest bomber. The correspondents were asked by a Navy representative to give no details of the flying boat's construction, range, speed, size or capacity.

"The new plane for Britain is a very hot bomber," Hartson said. "We will start shipping them to Britain in July, but they have plenty of range to fly over. In actual combat we expect them to do better than many of even the latest types of pursuit planes."

The model is known as the Martin 187 and will be called "Baltimore" by the British. It is a low-wing, medium bomber with two 1,850 horsepower aircooled motors. Hartson declared it was faster than any bomber now in the air except possibly a few with turbo-superchargers which could out-speed it at very high altitudes. The critical altitude of the 187—the height at which it performs best—is 15,000 feet.

Although the size of the British order and rate of production are secret, Hartson said that all of a building with 650,000 square feet of floorspace eventually would be used in turning out "Baltimore" planes on a mass production basis.

Correspondents saw scores of "Baltimore" fuselage, wing-tip and other sub-assemblies going through the building which had mostly B-26 bombers at the end of the line. Scattered through buildings and parking space about the plant were 54 of these Army bombers, complete except for a few missing parts.

"We have been held up somewhat by part suppliers," Hartson said, "but it is not serious. With parts being made all over the country, you couldn't expect all of them to get here on time."

The engineer said an aluminum shortage also had slowed production of the bombers, and disclosed that the company was beginning to use plywood and plastic to replace aluminum where possible. The B-26 is to have more than 200 plastic parts originally designed for aluminum castings and forgings.

In the two-week tour arranged by the National Association of Manufacturers with cooperation of the Army and Navy, the reporters saw planes, engines, tanks, guns, submarines and armor plate in all stages of manufacture.

They found quantity production already under way in some engine, airplane and motorized equipment plants, and getting started in tank factories and shipyards. The only material shortage reported delaying production was that of aluminum, but production of this metal is to be increased greatly during the year.

D. C. Crowds View Magna Charta On 726th Year

Celebration of the 726th anniversary of Britain's Magna Charta yesterday was marked by crowds who viewed the parchment in the Library of Congress here. Few realized it was the anniversary of King John's signing of the freedom-giving document on June 15, 1215.

In New York C. T. Hankin, British historian and former inspector of the British Ministry of Education, who is visiting this country, said:

"The charter contains many provisions which are now out of date, but the germs of the 'four freedoms' which have been so eloquently enunciated by President Roosevelt and for which democracy is striving today, may be discerned in some of its 61 clauses."

New Croatian State Joins Axis Pact As Junior Partner

Venice, June 15 (AP).—Croatia, the new state carved from vanquished Yugoslavia, today joined the ranks of secondary members of the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo Axis.

Dr. Ante Pavelic, "poglavnik," or leader, of the Croatian state, at a ceremony here signed a protocol giving his country the right to be present at any tripartite discussions affecting Croatia.

The action put Croatia in a class with Hungary, Rumania, Bulgaria and Slovakia, whose envoys also signed today's document. Signing for the three major members were Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano, Nazi Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop and the Japanese Ambassador to Italy, Zembei Horikiri.

R.A.F. Follows Up Night Attack By Convoy Raid

By the Associated Press

London, June 15.—Torpedo planes of the coastal command hit and probably sank a 6,000-ton supply ship out of an 'enemy" convoy off the Dutch coast this afternoon, the admiralty announced, in a daylight follow-up to last night's fourth consecutive R. F. A. attack on western Germany's industrial areas.

One plane was missing in today's attack while every one of last night's raiders returned safely after unloading their bombs in the Cologne area, it was reported.

England Raided

Luftwaffe raiders dropped bombs at a few places in the west of England overnight, an official announcement said. Casualties were said to be few and damage slight. One of the Nazi night raiders was declared destroyed.

In attacks by day yesterday on northern France, the air ministry said a squadron of bombers scored direct hits on airfields at St. Omer, machine-gunned an airdrome at New Cherbourg and a German patrol boat in the Channel and destroyed three German fighters in air fights. One British bomber was reported missing from these operations.

The admiralty tonight announced the destruction of its fiftieth destroyer of the war, the new 1,690-ton Jersey while in command of Lieut.-Commander A. F. Burnell-Nugent who thus lost his third warship.

Hit by Mine

The Jersey, of the Javelin class and built in 1939, went down when hit by a mine, the Admiralty said, without disclosing the location of the action.

Lieut. Commander Burnell-Nugent first lost the destroyer Havent, which was bombed and sunk in the Dunkerque evacuation. His next ship was the Hostile, which played a great role in the fighting at Narvik, Norway, and which later was sunk by a mine. Loss of the Hostile was announced last August.

The Jersey's normal complement was 183 men.

More Oil Held Need of Axis For New Order

The Foreign Policy Association said yesterday that Germany has sufficient oil to meet its immediate war and industrial needs, but cannot hope to organize Europe's economy successfully without additional resources.

"It is not an immediate need, therefore, which may have dictated the recent German drive toward Iraq and Iran," a report of the private research organization said, "but the desire to secure adequate supplies for the new German empire in Europe." The report was prepared by Louis E. Frechtling.

Germany's present requirements, of approximately 55,000,000 barrels a year, the report added, are "just covered by production in Western Europe of synthetic and crude oils and imports from Rumania and Russia."

The Nazis, the survey asserted, are obtaining only about 7,000,000 barrels of oil products annually from the vast oil supplies of Russia. This fact led the association to conclude that "as long as Moscow adheres to a policy of watching and waiting, Russian oil will flow to Germany in comparatively small amounts."

Discussing the petroleum needs of Germany's Axis partner, Japan, the survey said Tokyo had been able to force Britain and the United States to sell oil by threatening to strike at the East Indies if an embargo was applied. The United States, it added, exported 24,600,000 barrels to Japan in 1940 out of a total of 40 to 45 million barrels consumed in Japan and Manchuria.

"Washington and London," the report declared, "appear to agree on the wisdom of propitiating the Japanese by furnishing them with sufficient oil to meet, or more than meet, their needs. If, in the future, the western powers force a showdown in the Orient, a blockade of oil supplies would not immediately hamper the Japanese fighting forces."

"The United States, producing 20 times more oil than all of Axis Europe, and possessing the world's second largest tanker fleet is the most important factor in the oil economies of both the British and Japanese empires. The oil industry can easily expand production of its wells by 30 per cent; refinery output can be increased 25 per cent without new construction; even the production of 100 octane gasoline can be doubled by utilizing existing plants."

Further diversion of American tankers to British use, the report added, would produce a "major disruption" of the United States' domestic oil supply.

Illegal Radio Says Followers Of Hess Seek Peace With British

By the United Press

Sstockholm, June 15.—A new illegal, German radio station, purportedly operated by associates of Rudolf Hess, was heard here tonight to claim that followers of the former No. 3 Nazi have formed a widespread organization in Germany to promote peace with England and a German-British alliance against Russia.

The station, which calls itself "Gustav Siegfried No. 1," said Hess and his followers do not want continued or intensified collaboration with Russia. It declared the organization has particularly close connections with the German air force.

It claimed also that several months before Hess made his sensational parachute landing in Scotland, he planned to fly into British territory at Gibraltar while on a visit to Madrid, only to have his plan foiled by the British governor of Gibraltar.

Hess telegraphed to the British commander of Gibraltar while he was in Madrid, asking permission to fly to the rock fortress, the radio said. He had a plane all ready for the flight, it added, when he received an answer:

"If you are coming, you will be shot down."

It was said that Hess knew the British commander personally, from the days when he was a military attache in Berlin.

(The British officer apparently was Lieut.-Gen. Sir Clive Liddell, who was replaced as commandant of Gibraltar recently by Viscount Gort.)

The new station broadcasts for five minutes before every hour on a frequency of 31 meters.

Young Va. Pilot Crashes in Yard

Thomas Parsons, 26, of McLean, Va., was in a critical condition last night at Alexandria Hospital after the plane he was piloting struck an electric wire and crashed in the backyard of the Blue Moon tourist home, near Beacon Airport, Alexandria.

Parsons, an amateur pilot, suffered a possible concussion of the brain, severe head and facial lacerations and body injuries, it was said. He was taken to the hospital in the Alexandria Fire Rescue Squad ambulance.

In an attempt to land the two-seat Luscombe monoplane, the pilot apparently hit crosswinds, and was forced to fly so low that the plane became entangled in the wire. He had taken off only a few minutes before, and, it was said, probably decided t oland at once when he encountered high winds.

The broken wire caused a minor blackout in the district around the airport, but this was repaired in a few hours.

Drivers' Union Bolt Brings Boycott Talk

By the Associated Press

Minneapolis, June 15.—Threats of a boycott against a newly formed C. I. O. truckers union came tonight from American Federation of Labor officials as leaders in that group and the Committee for Industrial Organization squared away for a possible showdown in the dispute over General Drivers Union 544.

Precipitated last week when some members of 544 voted to leave the A. F. L. and accept a C. I. O. charter, the dispute brought announcement of a move to line up truck drivers and allied workers throughout the Midwest. Minneapolis would be headquarters for the drive, according to word received here from Lee Pressman, general counsel of the United Construction Workers organizing committee.

Pressman who attended a meeting of national heads of the group in Chicago today, said headquarters would be set up here next week. He indicated the campaign might be carried into the solid A. F. L. area of Seattle, the domain of Dave Beck, A. F. L. director, after it has been completed in the Midwest.

From the A. F. of L. side came threats of a boycott on materials hauled by truck drivers in the bolting 544 faction. Judge Joseph Padway, legal adviser for the A. F. of L. in the local fight, was in Washington reportedly to ask the hod carriers union members to refuse to handle building material delivered in 544 C. I. O. trucks.

Bert McHaffey, business agent of the Hod Carriers Local 563, said he expected orders to that effect soon, but Miles Dunne, president of the C. I. O. group, expressed doubt that such action would be taken.

'Boycott is a double-edged sword," Dunne said. "Sometimes it cuts backward. I don't think they'll try it."

[The Minneapolis developments last week brought a complaint to President Roosevelt from Daniel J. Tobin, president of the A. F. of L. union of teamsters and truckers, that the C. I. O. was raiding his union. The White House publicly commented that 'this is no time for unions to be raiding one another."

Bankers Report Defense Loans Of $1,093,000,000

By the Associated Press

Commercial banks have loaned a total of $1,093,000,000 to defense manufacturers, the Office of Production Management said yesterday.

These advances, for plant expansion or working capital, represented about 8 per cent of the total commercial loans of the 321 banks included in a statistical survey made by the OPM's defense contract service.

Seventy-four of the 3,627 individual loans were over $1,000,000 each

The defense contract service also reported that as of April 30 the division of defense contracts by Federal Reserve Bank Districts was as follows:

Boston, $1,375,513,000; New York, $1,932,876,000; Philadelphia, $1,076,743,000; Cleveland, $571,176,000; Richmond, $1,075,912,000; Atlanta, $494,519,000; Chicago, $1,361,702,000; St. Louis, $518,099,000; Minneapolis, $47,904,000; Kansas City, $341,263,000; Dallas, $223,483,000; San Francisco, $1,813,343000.

Machinists Spurn Roosevelt's Plea

Philip Murray, C. I. O. president. Murray later called Orton here for a conference, and the strikers' president immediately switched in his stand.

Drive On Against Left Wing

Refusal of West Coast shipyard strikers to resume work came in the midst of a drive by Government, C. I. O. and A. F. L. officials to drive out left-wing union leaders engaged in activities hindering the defense drive. Suspension of all local officers of the striking union at the North American Aviation Co. last week by Richard T. Frankensteen, head of the aviation division of the C. I. O. United Auto Workers, marked the start of the drive.

Since then the Army has taken control of the aviation plant and production has been restored to normal.

A different situation prevails, however, in the shipyard strike. The machinists' picket line long ago was breeched by union men, headed by John P. Frey, chief of the A. F. L. metal trades department, after the strike had been repudiated by the national A. F. L. organization. Thousands of men who had been kept from their jobs by the machinists' strike have returned. But the yards have openly confessed doubt of their ability to continue operations without machinists.

A. F. L. Strikers' Resolution

The A. F. L. strikers, at their meeting yesterday, adopted a resolution saying:

"Resolved, That San Francisco Lodge 68 do go on record as most reluctantly informing the President that we cannot comply with his wishes. However, in lieu thereof, and that the services of all our members may be utilized in important defense work, we are this day urging all our striking members to accept employment in any of the 161 fair union shops in our jurisdiction, that has signed agreements and are now paying all wages and meeting all working conditions that we are now striking for in the shipyards and ship repair shops."

It was pointed out here that the offer to resume work in other shops would be of no help in the vital shipyard work.

Strike Ordered on City

McKeesport, Pa., June 15 (AP).—Essential services to this industrial community's 57,000 persons were threatened as C. I. O. leaders, seeking recognition for a city employes' union, ordered workers to strike tomorrow in the first walkout of its kind in the Pittsburgh district.

The strike, involving about 175 workers in the city's street, sanitation and water departments, imperils maintenance of streets, sewer and water mains, the hauling of garbage and rubbish and repair of vehicles in the city garbage.

Policemen, firemen, city hall "white collar workers" and some filtration plant employes are not involved.

David Kanes, district president of the State, County and Municipal Workers Union, said the strike was ordered because the city had refused to sign a union contract.

The strike was called in defiance of Mayor George H. Lysle's threat to fire all workers participating.

"You can't strike against the people," said Mayor Lysle who has been McKeesport's chief executive for 28 years. "I said I would fire them and I mean it."

El Salvador Nabs Nazi Radio Station

Copyright by New York Times

Panama, June 15.—The Government of El Salvador has confiscated a Nazi radio station that was operating direct to Germany, according to information received here.

The station also communicated with other secret Nazi stations in Latin America. A foreign legation reported its location to the government.

Retail Store Wage-Hour Rule Tightened

The wage-hour division issued yesterday a revised interpretation of retail and service establishments under which exemption from the act will be denied any store whose business is more than 25 per cent "nonretail in character."

At the same time the division broadened its concept of a "retail sale" to include some dealings with industrial and commercial purchasers which previously had been regarded as "nonretail." This new definition classes as "retail" trade sales to business establishments in small quantities and at higher prices than usually charged by wholesalers or jobbers.

The changes will become effective July 1.

Officials declined to estimate how the new interpretations would affect the 6,242,000 persons employed in the distribution and selling of goods and services.

The original interpretation was issued in December, 1938, two months after the act became effective. The law exempts from the minimum wage and maximum hour standards (these are now 30 cents an hour and 40 hours a week) employes in "any retail or service establishments the greater part of whose selling or servicing is in intrastate commerce."

The term "greater part" was interpreted to mean more than 50 per cent. Under the new interpretation this phrase means more than 75 per cent.

5-Cent Milk Asked For Needy on WPA

An early conference between Federal and District officials is expected to thresh out details on proposals made by Superintendent of Schools Ballou for establishment of the 1-cent milk program in the schools here. One necessity that has developed in that connection is to obviate criticisms that have been made by officials of the Surplus Marketing Administration. The latter officials are believed to be the only ones up to date who have had access to the information and opinions of Byron B. Derrick, secretary-treasurer of the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association.

The association is a vital element in any coordinated program for widening the distribution of 5-cent milk or the establishment of a 1-cent program for the schools. To date Derrick has refused to make his attitude public, or even to attend meetings of District school and welfare officials who have demonstrated their desire to have these programs established.

The conclusion that most observers have reached is that Derrick is lukewarm toward the program, and that this fact has influenced expressions from officials of the surplus marketing administration of the Marketing Administration of the Department of Agriculture. For example, while Superintendent Ballou revealed that criticisms of the school's program had been made by the administration, officials of the administration itself have refused to make public what these criticisms are.

President Asks More Defense Jobs for Colored People

able and much-needed workers are being barred from defense production solely because of race, religion, or national origin. It is said that at a time when labor stringencies are appearing in many areas, fully qualified workers are being turned from the gates of industry on specifications entirely unrelated to efficiency and productivity. Also that discrimination against Negro workers has been Nation-wide, and other minority racial, national and religious groups have felt its effects in many localities. This situation is a matter of grave national importance and immediate steps must be taken to deal with it effectively.

"I note with satisfaction that the Office of Production Management has recognized the seriousness of this situation, and that on April 11, 1941, it addressed a letter on the subject to all holders of defense contracts. As Chief Executive of the Nation, I place the full support of my office behind your statement to the effect that, 'All holders of defense contracts are urged to examine their employment and training policies at once to determine whether or not these policies make ample provision for the full utilization of available and competent Negro workers. Every available source of labor capable of producing defense materials must be tapped in the present emergency.'

"No nation combating the increasing threat of totalitarianism can afford arbitrarily to exclude large segments of its population from its defense industries. Even more important is it for us to strengthen our unity and morale by refuting at home the very theories which we are fighting abroad.

"Our Government cannot countenance continued discrimination against American citizens in defense production. Industry must take the initiative in opening the doors of employment to all loyal and qualified workers regardless of race, national origin, religion or color. American workers, both organized and unorganized, must be prepared to welcome the general and much-needed employment of fellow workers of all racial and nationality origins in defense industries.

"In the present emergency, it is imperative that we deal effectively and speedily with this problem. I shall expect the Office of Production Management to take immediate steps to facilitate the full utilization of our productive man-power."

Bomb Wounds De Gaulle General

London, June 15 (AP).—Gen. Paul Le Gentilhomme, commander of Allied forces in British and French Somaliland before the fall of France, now serving with the Free French forces in Syria, has been wounded by a bomb dropped by a plane bearing the tricolor, Free French headquarters said today.

Gen. Le Gentilhomme's arm was broken, headquarters said.

Congress Faces Tangle On Arms Bills

Congress last night was prepared for another week of determined effort to increased defense production, including consideration of measures to curb subversive strikes in vital defense industries, and to strengthen the powers of the Administration to obtain needed supplies and facilities.

The House Military Affairs Committee prepared to speed action on amendments to the Selective Service Act to broaden the President's authority to insure continuous operation of plants. Its action will be hinged on the Selective Service Act amendments adopted last week by the Senate, although some changes in the formula are predicted. The Senate Military Affairs Committee, meanwhile, will start hearings looking to a sharply modified and highly specific bill based on the War Department's suggestion that sweeping plant requisitioning powers and controls be given to the Administration.

McNary Predicts "Carving"

Senator Charles L. McNary, of Oregon, Republican leader, said yesterday he thought the plant requisitioning bill would "be carved down a lot" before it could be passed, a view which Administration officials have indicated a willingness to accept in view of the storm of opposition aroused by the original War Department proposal.

The minority leader also was inclined to think that any attempt to inject specific and drastic price-control powers, implementing the efforts of the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply, would meet considerable resistance.

Rep. May to Speed Action

Representative Andrew J. May (Democrat), of Kentucky, chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee, will try to speed action on legislation to increase the Administration's specific powers to deal with vital defense strike situations. He said yesterday he expected his committee to act on this legislation today, and announced that he would go before the Rules Committee at once in an effort to bring the proposal to the floor without delay, probably this week.

In addition, Congress will rush work on all remaining appropriation bills in order to meet their July 1 deadline when the new fiscal year starts.

While the Senate considers the $125,000,000 defense access highways bill today, the House hopes to clear away most of the remaining appropriations bills this week, leaving the last week of the month for Senate approval.

The appropriation bill for the State, Commerce and Justice Departments and the Federal Courts is expected to come up tomorrow, while the conference reports on both the Interior and Agricultural appropriation bills may also be available by that time.

In the Senate, the Labor, Army and WPA bills may come up before the week is out, but passage of these is expected without much delay.

was stopped in the first half of the third inning by the rain, while the score was Detroit, 2; Washington, 0. Three-quarters of an hour later, when the storm had run its course, the game was resumed.

In Farragut Square, on I Street between Connecticut Avenue and Seventeenth Street, a branch from a lightning-struck tree obstructed traffic for a few minutes until police removed it.

Limb Falls on Car

At 1811 Twenty-first Street Northwest, a limb was severed from a tree, and fell on a car belonging to Dr. William B. Sims, of that address, damaging a fender and the tail light.

At Twenty-first Street and Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest, a fallen limb obstructed a traffic light, and firemen were called to remove it.

Windows at 1413 Twenty-eighth Street Northwest were knocked out by a tree uprooted by lightning.

Mrs. Mary McCarthy, landlady at 1725 P Street Northest, had to call police to remove a lightning-struck tree which fell in her front yard, blocking the entrance to the house so that roomers could not get in or out.

Live wires were downed in the 2900 block of Blandenburg Road Northeast, police said. They said that more than a score of fallen limbs and trees had been reported to Police Headquarters.

More stormy weather is in prospect today, according to the Weather Bureau forecast: Partly cloudy, with occasional showers during the afternoon. However, the weather today will be a little warmer than yesterday's, which reached a minimum of 62 degrees the Weather Bureau said.

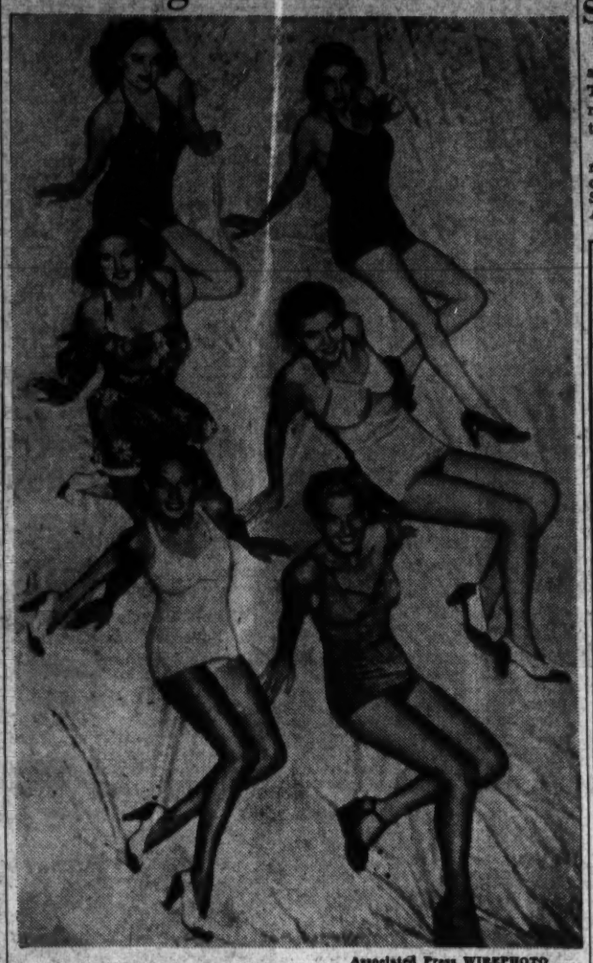
Challenge to Glamour Battle



Associated Press WIREPHOTO

WAR DECLARED—Declaring their alarm at movie studios' importation of models from New York and other Eastern centers for film glamourizing, Eloise Hart (lower left) yesterday led this group of Hollywood and Los Angeles models in a challenge to outsiders to a battle of glamour. Representatives Of 16 Countries In Europe Map Liberty Fight

Representatives of 16 countries yesterday discussed means of achieving a "democratic victory" in this war by giving aid to the peoples of the conquered countries at a conference held at the Hay-Adams House under the auspices of the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies.

The formation of an organization "to offset totalitarian ideals" and "to convince the world every nation is in danger unless the ideals of freedom are carried out everywhere" was announced. Its headquarters will be in New York City.

Alvarez del Vayo, former foreign minister for Republican Spain, told the group of more than 50 persons that "there are in the occupied countries of Europe very powerful democratic forces which could be used and should be used for victory."

He declared that the totalitarian powers are being resisted in every conquered European nation.

Wou Saofong, of the political section of the League of Nations, said his country now has 1,500,000 members of the China branch of the Antiaggression League, pledged to defend their nation.

"China will continue to fight, whatever the cost," he said.

Ninety-eight per cent of the Norwegian people are now resisting Nazi aggression, said Halvdan Koht, former Norwegian Foreign Minister.

"We are working for a new world," he said. "And we are quite sure this new world will be achieved.

Louis Dolivet, secretary of the International Peace League and a member of the French air force, declared that sabotage activities are increasing in occupied France. Newspaper correspondents are unable to file stories describing them, he said.

He charged that the Vichy Government is telling the French people that France can take the place of Italy in the Axis through collaboration with Germany.

Emphasizing that resistance is increasing, Dolivet cited instances of sabotage in Lille, Nantes and Chartres.

Count Sforza, former Italian foreign minister, declared that those who call Italy "an enemy country" instead of "an enslaved country," are wrong.

Hugh Moore, chairman of the executive committee of the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies, was appointed chairman of the organization committee for the proposed new organization.

Other members will include Dolivet, Wou Saofong, Koht, Sir Norman Angell, Robert Inch, secretary of the League of Nations Association of Canada; Court Sforza, Dr. Quincy Wright, professor of international law at the University of Chicago; Dr. Henry A. Atkinson, of the Church Peace Union; Dr. Clyde Eagleton, professor of international law at New York University; Dr. Esther Brunauer, Washington, of the American Association of University Women; Stephen de Ropp, Polish writer; Milos Safranek, former head of the Czecho-Slovakia press service, and Frederick G. McKee, treasurer of the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies.

Boys Club to Open Summer Program

Summer hours will go into effect at the Eastern Branch Boys' Club Thursday, Charles Reynolds, director of the branch, announced yesterday.

The club will be open from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m. Monday through Friday, and from 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. on Saturday, throughout the summer. A variety of indoor and outdoor activities ha sbeen planned for the summer months. These include baseball and softball leagues, hikes and picnics, paddle tennis, horseshoes, zell ball, shuffleboard and badminton.

Daily classes for beginners, meets and novelty events will be held in the swimming pool, and dances are scheduled for Tuesdays, and movies on Wednesdays. Table games, ping-pong and billiards are featured on the indoor recreation program. The roof of the club has been converted into a play spot.

D. C. Woman Goes On Trial Today In Love Slaying

Mary Elizabeth Sibley, 25, will go on trial here today for first degree murder in the death of Oscar Rush, 42, last September 17.

"I shot him because I loved him," Miss Sibley is quoted as telling an officer to whom she handed her gun after Rush was fatally wounded while he sat in an automobile at 1234 Good Hope Road Southeast.

"I shot him because I was jealous of his attentions to other women," she said later, when talking to Police Capt. Hugh H. Groves, of the Eleventh Precinct.

If convicted as indicted, she would face a mandatory death sentence. In charge of the prosecution will be Assistant District Attorney John L. Laskey.

Miss Sibley pleaded not guilty and will be defended by Attorney Charles E. Ford.

1 Citizens' Group To Meet This Week

Only one citizens' association meeting is scheduled for this week.

The Sixteenth Street Highlands Citizens' Association will hold its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Pawling, 1440 Kennedy Street Northwest, on Wednesday at 8 p. m.

Most of the local citizens' groups have suspended meetings until next autumn.

Connally Asks U.S. Guarantee Arms Output

When men refuse to produce materials vital to national defense, the Government must either surrender and sacrifice the national interest or it must step in and see that production is continued.

This was the declaration of Sen. Tom Connally (Democrat), of Texas, during a debate on the "American Forum of the Air" brodacast over the Mutual Network from the Willard Hotel last night.

Connally, author of the bill passed by the Senate last week, empowering the President to take over and operate any strike-bound plant manufacturing defense materials, said that nothing should impede this Nation from arming and arming quickly. He said:

"The Nation is engaged in a stupendous program for national defense. Every citizen of the Republic has a duty to perform. Our boys have been drafted and called to Army camps. Our taxpayers must give their savings and treasure. The hour of the Nation's peril calls every citizen, high or low, rich or poor, young or old, capital and labor, to the service of his country."

Connally then deplored strikes throughout the Nation that have hampered defense production. He continued:

"Strikes in airplane factories have crippled the Nation's wings. Strikes have halted the building of ships. Strikes in plants producing aluminum have struck at the very vitals of the program. When the safety of a nation requires production of these articles, and when men refuse to produce or let others produce them, the Government must surrender national interest or see that production goes on without delay."

"Is it fair for a few radical Communist elements of labor, after enjoying the advantages of mediation and conciliation, to defy all the agencies and tribunals established in its interest and to strike in defense plants when the Nation's life is at stake? Under my bill, those who do not desire to work, may quit. Strikes in national defense plants must stop! My bill will stop them!"

Senator George D. Aiken (Republican), of Vermont, did not agree with Senator Connally. He said there is no surer way of sabotaging our defense program than putting production of defense materials under political management. He said:

"Under the Connally amendment, such plants may be seized and operated by the President when he finds that the national defense program will be impeded or delayed as a result of a strike, a threatened strike or other cause.

"But, no attention was paid to the words "or other cause," although in my opinion these are perhaps the most important words in the whole amendment. In a frantic desire to respond to the popular appeal to do something about over-publicized strikes, the Senate started industry as well as labor down the river toward State Socialism."

Representative Luther A. Johnson (Democrat), of Texas, said that there has been in two months an increase in man-days idleness of a million and a half, caused by strikes in defense industries.

Johnson has introduced a bill, similar to the Connally amendment, in the House. He said:

"This is the only effective plan that has been offered, and its passage in the Senate by an almost unanimous vote indicates the crystallization of sentiment for it, and I hope that it may soon pass the House."

A Stalin at the White House Is Picketing the Pickets

Richard Roiderer has a lot to say in favor of democracy.

The last time he spoke for it he landed in a German concentration camp.

But yesterday he was a hero to several thousand who stopped to take his picture and wish him good luck in his one-man picketing of the "peace pickets" at the White House.

"It's a matter of idealism," Roiderer said as he marched, booted and red-coated in mockery of the dictator he refers to as "Joe Stalin."

The sign he carried was addressed to the American Peace Mobilization pickets and read: "Thanks, Comrats, for helping me and Hitler wreck democracy." It was signed "Joe Stalin."

Roiderer says maybe he could make a good living in these times if he wanted to. But that's where the question of idealism comes up.

"I came to America in 1913," he said. "I became a citizen in 1922, and then I went back to Germany where I was born to visit my mother. She was old and she wanted me to stay. So I stayed there, teching school.

"Then this man got into power. I've met him. He's a maniac. He's sincere, but he's a maniac. I saw, too, many things happening, and I remembered America, and I talked too much."

In 1935 the State Department came to his rescue and he left Germany.

Now he edits and publishes a small pamphlet in New York. "The Idealist" it's called. It's anti-Communistic and anti-Nazi, and Roiderer will pull a copy from a hip pocket and give it to you free of charge without being asked.

Rep. Kennedy Groomed to Run For N.Y. Mayor

By Cecil B. Dickson
International News Service Staff Writer

Old time Tammany Hall leaders, stirred by reports that New Dealers are trying to capture the democratic nomination for Mayor LaGuardia in the coming New York City mayoralty race, yesterday were revealed as sounding out Representative Martin J. Kennedy as a possible candidate.

The Tammany leaders hope to win the New York mayoralty this coming fall in order to recapture some of their lost political power and to wield greater influence in the 1944 Presidential campaign. Likewise, they want to defeat LaGuardia, who is likely to seek reelection, in order to remove him from the New York City and the 1944 picture.

Kennedy, known to his democratic colleagues in Congress as "No rubber stamp Kennedy," is in a receptive state of mind. He has told friends his "life-long ambition is to be mayor of my great city."

Petitions for the nomination will be circulated after July 1. Friends of Kennedy said they were going to put him into the race because they heard Adolph A. Berle, Assistant Secretary of State, was heading up the New Deal move to win the Democratic nomination for LaGuardia in order to make him eligible for the Democratic Presidential nominee in 1944.

Kennedy frankly said that there would be plenty of candidates for the Democratic nomination. He speculated that James A. Farley, former chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and Michael Walsh, New York secretary of state, and others might be in the field.

Kennedy is an old friend of the Tammany leader, Christy Sullivan. He is a prominent insurance broker and has served ten years in the House, after having been in the New York Senate for four terms. For many years he served on his local school board and was active in city affairs.

"If my party considers me for the important office, I shall be honored," Kennedy said. "If elected I would seek to give my city an efficient and intelligent administration."

Kennedy frequently has fought certain administration foreign policies in Congress but he supported President Roosevelt's domestic program.

Kennedy also has been a leading congressional advocate of the Herbert Hoover plan to feed starving people in countries overrrun by Hitler. He was a friend of the late Dan Beard of Boy Scout fame and is well known in business circles in New York City.

Admiral Taussig Retires Today

ADMIRAL J. K. TAUSSIG

By the Associated Press

Norfolk, Va., June 15.—A colorful career of more than forty years, loaded to the gunwales with action and honors and strongly flavored with the salt of the sea, closes tomorrow when Joseph Knefler Taussig swaps his cocked hat for civilian headgear.

Retirement was decreed by the Navy Department because Taussig reaches the statutory retirement age of 64 years August 30. The detachment from duty as Commandant of the Norfolk Naval District becomes effective tomorrow because of accumulated leave. He will be succeeded by Rear Adm. Manley H. Simons.

The admiral was in a reminiscent mood on the eve of his detachment.

The man who has been decorated by his Government and the governments of Great Britain and Chile, went back to boyhood memories to name "the biggest thrill I ever had." It was when the company of cadets of which he was captain at Western High School, Washington, D. C., won the annual competitive drill.

And the most exciting time of his life, Admiral Taussig recalled, was when he was "fresh out of" the Naval Academy and was serving with the United States naval forces during the Boxer rebellion in China.

Taussig was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal for his services during the World War, and also received the Order of St. Michael and St. George from the British government. He received the Chilean Order of Merit, First Class, for services rendered after the 1922 earthquake.

Upon his return to civilian life, Admiral Taussig said, he will give more time to his hobby of stamp collections.

"Also I'll probably take up golf again."

Another thing Taussig wants to do in his spare time is to chart his lifetime travels afloat and ashore. He has kept a daily log of these travels, which he estimates amount to some 700,000 miles.

Stimson, Army Head to See 'Hell on Wheels' in Action

Manchester, Tenn., June 15 (U.P.).—The Second Armored Division which prides itself on being "hell on wheels," next week will demonstrate whether this Nation's armed forces have mastered the blitzkrieg technique of warfare used by Germany's panzer units.

Secretary of War Stimson and Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, will come here to watch the first full scale field maneuvers by one of this Nation's armored divisions.

The Second Armored Division—11,000 men and 2,000 vehicles, including "several hundred" light and medium tanks—yesterday moved from Fort Benning, Ga., to Chattanooga, Tenn., where the mechanized fighting force laid over today and prepared for a mock attack on the infantry regiments of the 27th, 5th and 30th divisions.

(Maj. Gen. George S. Pattan, jr., commander of the armored division, was quoted by the Associated Press as calling his organization "the most powerful striking force the mind of man has ever evolved."—Editor Note.)

The Infantry troops already had been engaging in extended military problems in the lower middle Tennessee area.

The plan of attack of the armored division was not disclosed, but an indication of the type of assault was contained in a statement issued by the tank's force's headquarters. It said:

"Usual function of the armored division is to send out its reconnaissance elements, feel carefully along the enemy front for soft spots. When such a weak point is found, the armored division thrusts through it like a spear, and then fans out behind the enemy line, raising the dickens with enemy communications, command posts, reserves, or supplies."

The Infantry troops had dug in behind defenses in the hilly country, had laid dummy land mines and set up machine guns and antitank weapons to meet the attack of the "hell on wheels" force.

The armored division will try a new, secret, electrically-operated device "to double its maneuverability under blackout conditions."

Gates Will Head Chinchilla Group

Luray, Va., June 15 (AP).—Justin Gates, of New York City, was elected president at a meeting of the Eastern branch of the National Chinchilla Breeders' Association here yesterday.

The organization also elected Hunter Farrow, of Inglewood, Calif., and a Mr. Ward, of New York City, to the administration board. Dr. E. E. Hale, of Coalwood, W. Va., who presided, was named director.

100 at Reunion Of Bready Clan

With approximately 100 members of the clan attending from Maryland, the District, Virginia and West Virginia, the annual reunion of the Bready family was held yesterday at the home of the president, Calvin Bready, near Oakdale, Md.

Dr. Crown Biehl, of Hagerstown was elected vice president. The other officers were reelected. Calvin Bready is 81.

HALLELUJAH! It's a duty, no task and a delight to tell you all 'uns (and never mind about the murder of Southern dialect) that Don Baker and his new Musicomics at the Neptune Room are the most solid senders we've seen for months. They pick up their tunes and lay them low, send the customers high as a kite with delight.

Among the stratospheric specialties at the Don Baker opening were 'Red Boogie Woogie Fields' (the name tells the story), "Nostalgic Medley" (dated clear back to "Ma, He's Makin' Eyes at Me" for collegiate oldtimers), "Jungle Rhythm" (a field day, but 200 in the shade, for drummer Barney King), and Liszt's Second Hungarian Rhapsody done with large splashes of jive. Maybe Liszt wouldn't have liked it, but everyone else did, and he wasn't there, anyway . . . Washington's own Tommy Johnson also evoked enthusiasm a-plenty with his new-type boogie-woogie organing.

Night spot owners and entertainers made it a point not to miss the Musicomics' opening. We saw Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Gallagher, of the King Cole Room, with their little daughter, Barbara, and singer Eve Knight; Buddy Shaner from the Lotus; Johnny Longo, partner in El Patio, and singer Louise Lee.

"Amopola" and that weatherbeaten rumba, "Green Eyes," are identical tunes, says song-wise Maestro Milton Davis, of the Rainbow Room. Milt also wonders why it took the public almost three years to fall in love with "Intermezzo," has about decided that fathoming the public mind is a fathomless task.

DANCING PROPOSAL. The approaching marriage of an Army captain and a New York girl is the result of a proposal while dancing to Dick Koons' music in the Mayflower Lounge. The pair returned to their table and immediatley announced their engagement to waiting friends. We can't give you names, but the couple met in France three years ago. Since then the captain has been a United States observer of most of the big battles in Europe; only recently flew home from a mission in the Near East.

VIRGINIA JOY,
singing sweetheart of the Silver Fox

BACK-OF-THE-SCENES ARTIST. Those dashing "Strawberry Blonde" sketches on the new table cards at the Hi Hat are the work of Miss Minnie Weber, who is also the food and beverage checker for the spot. Minnie also draws all the pretty doo-dads that decorate the Hi Hat menus.

DACHSHUND DEPARTMENT. Puppchen, favorite dachshund of Max Low, amusement manager of the Shoreham, is back home and doing nicely after a long stay at an animal hospital with a mysterious ailment. Sun baths in the Lowes' Chevy Chase garden are gradually making a new girl out of Puppchen, who's a scion of the noted Woolford Dachshunds whom you've often seen on the Shoreham Terrace and at downtown theaters . . . Another prominent local dachshund is Waldie, owned by Conrad Siebold, of Restaurant "823" Waldie is 2 years old, but not much larger than a puppy in spite of an enormous appetite. She trails Conrad around "823," never misses a chance of picking up a tasty snack.

Matt Windsor, of the Anchor Room, has made a vow that he will never have his tonsils amputated, no matter what the medicos tell him. "My father has never gone to a doctor in his life," says Matt. "And my grandfather died on his 102d birthday, thus keeping his tonsils for more than a century.. Why should I break a family tradition of tonsil-preserving?"

LOVELY LISTENING. That shimmering "new" tune being played by Pete Macias' Lounge Riviera orchestra is "Stairway to Paradise." It was written by Gershwin for George White's "Scandals of 1922," but seems fresh and sharp as a newly minted dime in its new arrangement by Riviera's Art Humes. . . . Mayfair's Chordsmen have just revarnished the beautiful old "Waters of Minnetonka," and added a couple of bright ideas of their own. Throbbing tempo is contrasted against the sweet melody and the number begins and ends with an effect of faroff war drums . . . "Elube Chango," a tropical song that's also a prayer to a heathen god, is among the unsual numbers done by songstress Valentina of the Madrillon. . . . "Dolores" is being glorified, and convincingly, by the vocal trio of Dick Wilson's orchestra on the Starlight Roof.

MODE—No heat wave can keep that minx, Fashion, from having furs for summer wear. This mink cape created by Dein-Bacher has a smart double-banded "ruffle" at the hem.

TUME. The flashing Mexican costumes worn by the lasses of Lotus' "Summertime Revue" suggest that something similar would be both mighty comfy and allurnig as a play suit or on the beach. The get-ups combine briefs and bras of bright print with huge straw sombreros in rainbow colors.

FLIERS AWAY! Glen Echo's Paul Kain says that three of his former aviation instructors are now doing heavy duty. Among them are Bill Elliott, who's in England flying for the R. A. F., and Chick Wreen, who's gone with rapidly expanding Pan American Airlines in South America . . . Maestro Paul is now by way of being a rather finshed flyer himself, is looking forward to doing some hedge-hopping around the country when opportunity offers.

Michel, of the Plymouth, is now making his fiddle neigh like a horse, yip like a hound and crow like a rooster.. It's all part of a descriptive hunting number that always evokes a bushel of applause.

PEACE IT'S WONDERFUL. Especially at Olmsted's Grill, where the veteran and highly skilled waiters seem to take pleasure in looking out for special orders. And free cigarettes make it seem as though you're getting a tip for paying your bill . . . With a serene luncheon at Hogate's you get a Whistler-ish view of the Potomac estuary strained through Venetian blinds . . . When shopping or business or coping with Government agencies get them down, so many wise people recuperate in the Harrington Tavern, where peace is a pleasant and homely reality. It gives 'em the lift they need to go out and face realities.

Police, Firemen Lead District's Father's Day

Dads are obligated to give their sons both a material and spiritual heritage, Dr. J. Lowrey Fendrich yesterday told members of the District Protestant Police and Firemen's Society, at a Father's Day service.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, police superintendent, Fire Chief Stephen T. Porter, and their men, worshipped at Metropolitan Presbyterian Church, Fourth and B Streets Southeast. They marched from the Drill School at Seventh and North Carolina Avenue Southeast.

Heading the procession were members of the Metropolitan Police Boys' Club Band, in tan summer uniforms and helmets. Color bearers were Prvts. William F. Deffer, of No. 15 Truck Company, and William O'Connor, of No. 7 Precinct.

Red and blue-caped and trench-capped members of the Police Drill Team and the American Legion Post 29 of the Society formed an honor guard for participating officials.

From their reserved section the guests and their families and friends heard greetings from Maj. Brown; Chief Porter; Harry M. Carver, president of the Protestant Police and Firemen's Society; Dr. Fendrich, the society's chaplain, and others. Dr. Fendrich read greetings from the Rev. Thomas Dade, chaplain of the Catholic Police and Firemen's Society. The District Commissioners sent regrets.

Chief Porter, urging the congregation to rededicate itself to spiritual ideals, said that no democracy can long exist without the principle of free churches. The fact that several Catholic men worshipped with the Protestants yesterday is a "wholesome condition" for our country, he added. Chief Porter is president of the Harrison Men's Bible Class of Congress Street Methodist Church, and Maj. Brown is its former president.

Maj. Brown praised the religious leadership of Dr. Fendrich and congratulated the congregation on sponsoring a service in which people of all denominations could participate.

Also on the rostrum were W. B. Cryer, president of the Catholic Police and Firemen's Society; Fred L. Rawlinson and Elmer F. Stein, vice president and secretary-treasurer, respectively, of the Protestant Society.

A police quartette and William H. Bell, soloist, sang from the choir stalls. Police and firemen were ushers. President Carver, of the Protestant Society, is a deacon of Metropolitan Church.

Children Here Talk to Navy Dads in Britain

"Hi pop!"

Leaning low, excitedly, over a microphone in the Columbia Broadcasting studios here yesterday, Paul Lee, 13, 4223 Thirty-seventh Street Northwest, exclaimed the greeting to his father, Comdr. Paul F. Lee, U.S.N., in London. Twelve children followed him, and their fathers, all Navy officers stationed in Great Britain spoke back and had, from they way they talked, a big Father's Day.

Spencer McManes, 6, 212 South Cherry Grove, Annapolis, Md., asked his father, Lieut. Comdr. K. M. McManes "what are you doing?" and got the reply "I'm standing in front of the microphone trying to reach you but I can't reach that far."

The Navy officers were talking from a studio underground, which told of the war, but the day in London must have been pleasant. Comdr. C. A. Baker, U. S. N., told his daughter, Patricia, 8, 2911 Olive Avenue Northwest, that "it's lovely over here; we're having a lovely time. Don't worry. There's no danger except from these cars that drive on the wrong side of the streets. They're the most dangerous things I've seen in London."

Many of them talked family matters—the health of aunts and cousins and of how the children got on in school. Paul Lee coughed once, to lose a couple of precious talking moments, but he quickly said that all the "Lee clan" was there to hear what his father had to say across the ocean.

Anne Sylvester, 13, 4609 Landrum Lane, Chevy Chase, Md., told her father, Commander E. W. Sylvester, "You're getting an English accent" and got a long laugh. Asked if she would go to camp this summer, she said she would stay here and do Red Cross work. Mimi Austin, 13, 11 Maryland Avenue, Annapolis, Md., learned that her father is "getting plenty to eat and having a good time." He is Commander C. L. Austin, U. S. N.

The other children, who followed the same line of conversation, were Susan Sylvester, sister of Anne; Sharon and Billy Townsend, who came to the studio with Charles, their brother; Kenmore McManes, twin of Spencer; Alexandria, Jane and Leith Austin, of 1124 Bolling Avenue, Norfolk, Va., children of Lieut. Comdr. B. L. Austin, U. S. N.

Meanwhile, at the National Broadcasting studios Thomas D. Horton, of Route 1, Yemassee, S. C., talked with his five sailor sons, Thomas D., Edmund L., Hal G., William F., and John L. Horton, all stationed on the U. S. S. Wichita. The sons gave Father's Day greetings from the NBC studios in New York.

"I wish I had five more sons to give the Navy," Horton said.

Graduates Hear Rev. Edward Latch At Chevy Chase

Young people need "something greater than themselves to which they can give themselves, something worth dying for and living for," the graduating students of Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School were told at baccalaureate services last night by the Rev. Edward G. Latch, pastor of Metropolitan Methodist Church.

Speaking on "Where Are You Going?" to the senior class at Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, Mr. Latch said that young people "ask for too much and are unwilling to accept responsibility. There is a lack of dedication to a great purpose and a lack of consecration to a high ideal," he said.

Mr. Latch urged the graduates to "accept responsibilities and to dedicate yourselves to a high purpose, the way of life of Jesus Christ."

Army's Ferry Service to Speed Up and Guide Assembly of Planes for Delivery to Britain

By Charles Hurd.

Copyright by New York Times

Hidden in a back corridor of the Munitions Building is the nerve center of the Air Corps branch just created to speed delivery of American airplanes to Great Britain.

The organization, which as yet exists principally in charts outlining one of the most complicated operations under the lease-lend program, is known officially as the Air Corps Ferry Command. Its chief is Col. Robert Olds, who was assigned to create a new industrial-military operation from the ground up.

The primary function of the Ferry Command is to pick up completed airplanes at the factories scattered throughout the United States and put them down, ready for fighting, at Atlantic Coast ports, where they will be flown or shipped to Great Britain.

The Army will fly no planes across the Atlantic, but within a few weeks it will take every responsibility for getting them started.

In its ultimate development this one phase of air corps operations will use thousands of pilots, navigators and flying technical experts. In addition, it will control many production factors now supervised exclusively by the manufacturers. Finally, it will operate what amounts to great assembly plants.

The idea is not credited to any single individual, but its operation is the direct responsibility of Col. Olds. He is accountable in turn to Robert A. Lovett, Assistant Secretary of War for Air.

"The Army is taking over," Col. Olds told this reporter, "not because the manufacturers have not done a magnificent job, but because the job is getting so big. Also, we are building an air corps for ourselves."

Deliveries of aircraft to Great Britain, under the arrangement whereby the Army and Navy divide about half of their new production with that country, still are at a low rate, but informed officials predict that these will be numbered in the hundreds each month by late fall. The Ferry Command will handle deliveries of every plane destined for Britain whether it originate in an Army or a Navy factory.

"I like to compare our new job," Col. Olds said, "with the old pony express."

Other descriptions which he gave to the new task, however, indicated that the comparison falls considerably short of the work actually to be done.

In the first place, this work is taking form on maps, criss-crossed with lines drawn by Air Corps officers assigned to assist Col. Olds. The lines branch off at odd angles from central points, radiating out to manufacturers not only of completed planes but of all the planes' component parts.

The focal points of these maps, drawn to a Nation-wide scale, are the locations being selected for "intermediate stations," where airplanes not only will be gathered but where they will be assembled, so far as accessories are concerned.

Under present building conditions, each airplane built for combat service generally is held in the factory where it is made until it is a complete fighting unit. Sometimes deliveries are seriously delayed because of slow production of one part or another.

Strikes frequently have caused delays, but lack of organization also has been largely accountable, it is stated.

To meet this problem, the Ferry Command plans to place inspectors in every factory making airplanes or essential units that go into airplanes. It will attempt to chart production to the point where a nice balance will exist in the manufacture of all essentials.

Finally, it will relieve manufacturers of some of the assembly processes.

'Arsenal' in U.S. Urged to Back Palestine Jews

Affirming that American Zionists will be an "arsenal" for maintaining the Jewish positions in Palestine, the Seaboard Zionist Regional Administrative Committee yesterday requested all members of the organization to "tax themselves" $5 to aid the work abroad.

Representatives of the movement from Maryland, Virginia, Delaware, North and South Carolina and the District attended the conference held at the Ambassador Hotel.

Cooperation with service organizations providing movies, speakers and various forms of entertainment was urged. The purchase of defense bonds and savings stamps also was urged upon all members of the Zionist movement.

Delegates elected to the seaboard Zionist conference included Louis E. Spiegler, of Washington, newly elected president of the region; Joseph W. Spector, of Baltimore, and Rabbi Edward L. Israel, Baltimore.

Dr. Blaine Moore, Teacher and Tax Expert, Dies at 61

Dr. Blaine F. Moore, tax expert of the United States Chamber of Commerce, died yesterday at George Washington University Hospital after a ten-days illness. He was 61 and lived at 3625 Sixteenth Street Northwest.

DR. MOORE

Funeral services will be held at 4 p. m. today at Hysong Funeral Home, 1301 N Street Northwest. Burial will be near Republic, Ohio.

Dr. Moore was widely known as a tax expert and an authority on the Constitution. He was a graduate of the University of Kansas and received a Ph. D. degree from Columbia University.

For many years he was an educator. He began his teaching career in the Philippine Islands and advanced to superintendent of public schools there. Later, he taught at the University of Michigan, University of Kansas, George Washington University and American University.

Dr. Moore is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary Moore, of Washington; a brother, Stanley R. Moore, of Wilborn, Mont., and two sisters, Miss Bertha Moore and Mrs. May Longenbaugh, both of Seattle.

Faith Aids Liberty, Canon Says

Renewal of faith in God is the only way to "preserve the remnants of our liberty," Washington Cathedral Flag Day worshipers were told yesterday morning by Canon Chancellor Theodore G. Wedel.

"We can take fear of God for granted no longer," Canon Wedel told the congregation. "Back we must go to the ABC's of all the great religions of mankind . . . These are the last bulwarks of our real freedom under the stern laws of the universe, the last ramparts we watch.

"The Ten Commandments are admittedly not as pleasant and flattering as the Bill of Rights of the Constitution. Yet without obedience to the Commandments of God, the Bill of Rights can become a charter to chaos," he said.

Special prayers were made in celebration of the 726th anniversary of the granting of the Magna Carta. Attention was called to the Cathedral's Canterbury pulpit, made of stones from the Canterbury Cathedral. A bas-relief in the pulpit tells the story of the struggle for the Magna Carta.

Md. U. Offers Study For Air Draftsmen

An evening course in aeronautical drafting will be offered by the University of Maryland starting June 23 to meet an urgent demand for draftsmen in the airplane industry, Dean S. S. Steinberg, of the College of Engineering, has announced.

The course is being started at the request of the Glenn L. Martin Co., of Baltimore. It is open to high school graduates with two years of mathematics, and will be given three nights a week, three hours an evening.

The course will be given in Baltimore. Applications must be made in writing to Dean Steinberg, University of Maryland, College Park, Md.

False Teeth Wearers Often Worst Breath Offenders!

"Need More Than a Mouth Wash" Say Authorities... Recommend Polident

A thin dark film collects on plates and bridges. This film soaks up odors and impurities like a sponge! It holds germs and decay bacteria, and it is so tough that ordinary brushing seldom removes it. It gets into every tiny crevice where brushing can't even reach. Almost always it results in "denture breath"—probably the most offensive of all breath odors.

Yet there's a perfect way to clean and purify false teeth without brushing, acid or danger. It is Polident, a powder that dissolves away all scum, stains, tarnish and odor. Makes breath sweeter—and plates or bridges look better and feel better. Tens of thousands call Polident a blessing for comfort, convenience and hygiene. Long-lasting can costs only 30¢ at any drug store. Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau and dentists everywhere.

Cleans, Purifies Like Magic
Do this daily: Add a little Polident powder to ½ glass water. Stir. Then put in plate or bridge for 10 to 15 minutes—Rinse—and it's ready to use!

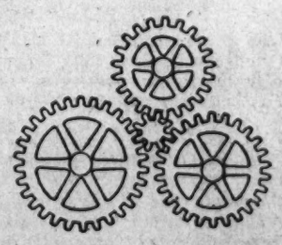
HOSPITALS
THE JOURNAL OF THE AMERICAN HOSPITAL ASSOCIATION
The Error of Complacency
The shortest road to defeatism is complacency. In the serious times that are now with us and the more hazardous periods that may lie ahead of us, our hospitals cannot afford to be complacent about anything.
But how much evidence of preparation is afforded in our institutions? What measures have been and are being employed to insure our hospitals full preparedness? Have we surveyed our physical plant, our stock rooms, our diagnostic and treatment facilities? Have we developed any plan to provide for personnel replacement? Are we developing units for emergency service in the event of catastrophy? Are we doing anything to insure the uninterrupted service of our lighting, heating and power facilities?
. . . . . Is any attention being given to the water supply for the hospital in event that the usual supply is cut off entirely or is temporarily out of commission? What measures are we to take in the event that the normal sewage disposal facilities are interrupted? Have we made any provisions for an increased patient load in the event of disaster? Are we providing bomb-proofing for our operating and delivery rooms and bomb shelters for our patients and personnel? Are we giving constructive thought to the financial resources during the emergency period? Are we thinking constructively, planning wisely, and working efficiently in due season and against the time when all these measures and many others become imperative? This is the part we play in the defense of our country.
Excerpts from Editorial in HOSPITALS for June 1941

WASHINGTON'S voluntary hospitals ARE preparing for any eventuality. Expert consultants are at work on surveys. More bed capacity—housing for personnel convertible to emergency patient use—training for more nurses and aides—outpost dispensary and ambulance service—emergency medical units—auxiliary power plants—water storage—septic tanks—removable windows, panel walls, fireproofing and bombproofing features—all are parts of a master plan.

Geared for Efficiency



This comprehensive program is being developed by affiliated voluntary hospitals through Health Security Administration.

Health Security Administration is privately organized for public service without profit. This is the third in a series of announcements made in the interest of public information and wise planning.

P. S. Public response to the query made here last week reflects a real need for more low-cost hospital beds, as called for in the program.

Golden Silence

The Ways and Means Committee has imposed upon itself a rule of silence in regard to the progress of the new tax bill. No further information is to be given out, it is said, until the bill is ready to be reported out to the House. Since a good many Congressmen do not scruple to disclose information obtained in executive sessions, it seems doubtful whether the self-imposed silence of the committee will entirely prevent leakages. But if it does, it will certainly ease the committee's work to keep the public guessing for awhile. After new tax proposals have been presented to the committee, and opportunity afforded for examining and discussing them on their merits, members ought to be protected against outside pressure while they are trying to decide what to do. It takes courage to frame a tax bill, especially one that will come anywhere near providing the amount of new revenue that we ought to have. Even a courageous Congressman may be induced to make concessions if he is bombarded daily by constituents who are alarmed by reports issuing from the committee room. So silence regarding the progress of a tax bill may literally be golden, because it will help to stiffen legislators' resolves to dip more deeply into the taxpayers' pockets.

Some Must Move

The many valid objections that have been raised against the proposed transfer of the Interstate Commerce Commission in its entirety to some inland city are a mild prelude to the loud protests that will arise when the Government actually begins to decentralize the Federal establishments. And this need has become urgent. For catastrophic congestion of local office and housing space is threatened by the unprecedented inflow of Government defense workers. Estimates of the number of new employes that will be added to the District's already swollen population during the coming year range from the "rock bottom" 12,000 of Defense Housing Coordinator C. F. Palmer to over three times that figure. Moreover, for every new Federal worker, another worker in the service trades or other employment is added, to say nothing of the families of the newcomers. So, however one figures, the prospective increase in the population of the city and its environs adds up to a formidable total.

Vacant space, both for work and for living purposes, is already close to saturation point. Even if sufficient suitable building sites were available—and they are not—it would be impossible to provide office and housing facilities for the expected newcomers within the space of a few months. Private building activity here is experiencing a tremendous expansion compared with preceding years, while Government funds are being used to provide considerable numbers of housing units in and around Washington for defense workers and enlisted personnel. But these new quarters will take care of only a fraction of the inflow. As for the problem of office space, this is already causing severe headaches. Even if the community were willing to undergo the hardships and discomforts of the excessive overcrowding that lies ahead, the country cannot afford to jeopardize the defense program by permitting key defense workers to live and work under conditions that impair their efficiency and make them easy victims of disease and epidemics.

Clearly, therefore, we are faced by conditions that make imperative the decentralization of the Government departments and agencies. The only question is, how such decentralization can be brought about with a minimum loss of efficiency. Current suggestions apparently look toward a shift of employes attached to nondefense agencies to make room for incoming defense workers. That may be necessary in some cases. But insofar as possible the Government ought to house its temporary workers outside the District in preference to shifting permanent agencies. The later have been located here for good and usually sufficient reasons. The attached personnel have acquired close community ties. Often they own homes here. To uproot them at short notice would thus cause great distress. Furthermore, many private organizations have established headquarters here in order to be in touch with Government regulatory agencies, such as the ICC. Wholesale shifts of independent agencies would, therefore, produce unexpected upheavals and confusion in business and industrial circles outside the Government field.

A survey of decentralization possibilities is now being conducted by the Budget Bureau which will doubtless throw light on these complicated problems, and guide executive decisions. We can only hope that the decisions will show due regard for the permanent agencies, and not force decentralization upon them to the point of hampering their operations. That would be extremely short-sighted, for without the aid of the permanent agencies, the emergency defense organizations would be utterly helpless.

"United We Stand . . ."

"Raiding" is scarcely an accurate term for the shifts in union affiliations which President Roosevelt has criticized. If Daniel J. Tobin's explanation of the withdrawal of the Truck Drivers Union, Local 544, from the International Brotherhood of Teamsters is accurate, it certainly was not a case of raiding. The president of the Teamsters says that the local union was dominated by radicals; that these leaders were given a hearing and then asked to dissociate themselves from a "Trotsky" organization; that they thereupon broke away from the Teamsters and sought a C. I. O. charter. Apparently the real issue is not raiding, but the acceptance by one labor organization of dangerous factions driven out of another.

Both the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. are in need of a house cleaning to rid themselves of Communists and other irresponsible leaders whose power to call strikes is an actual or potential menace to our national security. Obviously such a house cleaning will be impossible if the radical factions driven from one federation are taken under the wing of the other. What is needed is a common understanding that troublemakers seeking to undermine the defense program will not be welcome anywhere in the labor movement. Surely the C. I. O. cannot afford to accept into its ranks obstructionists cast off by the A. F. of L. To do so would cost it far more in public confidence and support than it could gain from such increases in membership.

Indications are that Communists and their like will soon be dismissed from defense jobs at the behest of the Government. Both the C. I. O. and the A. F. of L. owe it to themselves and to their country to support this move. And that necessarily implies a tacit agreement on the part of each to give no aid or comfort to subversive leaders thus or otherwise deposed. Indeed, there are many, ourselves included, who believe that all interunion warfare should be put aside for the period of national emergency. Just as competition between employers engaged in defense production has been virtually eliminated, so the men in rival unions must learn to work side by side in the national interest. Cooperation in knocking the props from under anti-American union leaders should be only a first step toward ending jurisdictional squabbles until the crisis has passed.

Invasion Rumors

The propaganda ministry in Berlin is clearly bent on exploiting in every conceivable way the psychological aspects of the Nazi victory in Crete. Basic, of course, is the implication that the Cretan campaign was a dress rehearsal for invasion of the British Isles. Last Friday, an edition of the Voelkischer Beobachter carrying an article on the subject by Propaganda Minister Goebbels, was confiscated without official reason. This naturally drew special attention to his hint that Britain might be in for surprising developments within the next two months. Moreover, the Herr Doktor stressed—with a singular lack of ingenuity, it seems—the traditionalism of the British and their slowness to cope with revolutionary attack. Such reasoning was doubtless intended to serve two purposes: to make the British more uneasy and to reassure Germans that if the invasion order is given, Nazi success will be inevitable.

From all reports the lesson of Crete has not been lost on the British. They appreciate that the Germans have human resources that permit losses, man for man, and leave a sufficient margin to make the invasion attempt at least feasible. But they also feel, as must the German high command, that equipment will probably determine the outcome. Nazi forces landing by air or by sea will be opposed by huge quantities of equipment which were not available in Crete. Whether there will be enough of it concentrated in the right places can be revealed only by test. Certainly the task facing the Nazis of landing sufficient materiel of their own would be immeasurably more difficult than in Crete, and in any case would require local mastery of the air. Perhaps the most that can be said is that the Germans have derived from their Cretan campaign a set of laboratory figures from which they may interpret the likely cost of invading Britain.

The British know that if the war drags on, the Nazis may be forced to invade. But this eventuality has confronted the British ever since the first invasion attempt last summer. The kind of propaganda designed to instill fear in British hearts will, then, fail. Propaganda such as that of Dr. Goebbels', which emphasizes recent flaws in British tactical judgment and military initiative is another matter and can be combated in Britain only by a fundamental faith in the British conduct of the war.

Mr. Hull's Blast

Secretary Hull's latest blast at Vichy was strong but no stronger than the circumstances warrant. The world has witnessed many disheartening developments during recent years but none more disheartening than the betrayal of France and French civilization by the Darlan-Laval group of Quislings. Having sold their nation to Hitler for less than a mess of pottage, they now insist that the French people carry out the deal with blind obedience. The spectacle, evidently, smells in Secretary Hull's nostrils. "The public statements of the Darlan-Laval element demonstrate," he says, "that the people of France are expected not only to surrender permanently and unconditionally their loyalty to French traditions, institutions, liberties, interests, culture, and the entire way of life which made France great, but actually to transfer all of these loyalties—all hope of the future—to Hitler in the hope of securing his personal favor."

To that same end the French stooges of the Fuehrer have demonstrated a readiness to plunge France into war on the German side and against the nation across the Channel to which the French nation and people must look for their ultimate salvation. The Vichy government, as Mr. Hull states, did not lift a finger to prevent the German use of Syria as a military base. Now "Germany seems to have prevailed on the Vichy government to do Germany's fighting in the Syria area of the general German advance." The question arises whether the time has not come for the United States to do more than protest against the betrayal of France by the men of Vichy. They never represented the real France. They certainly do not represent her now. The maintenance of diplomatic relations with a government which is less a government than a conspiracy is a mockery of good sense.

Civilian Play

So much attention is being given to adequate recreational facilities for the men in uniform that one tends to forget the similar requirements of the folks at home. According to medical authorities, physical and emotional strains during this trying period are already taking their toll in civilian casualties. One reason for this, apparently, is that there is less time for play. And yet, from the standpoint of community morale, the need was never greater for appropriate relaxation. It is reassuring to learn, therefore, that sports facilities for those who will make use of them are steadily increasing, under the sponsorship of public recreation departments, in more than 1,100 cities. This past year, according to the National Recreation Association, all-time records in the number of playgrounds, softball diamonds, and so on, were established. This is encouraging, but means little unless civilians find time to use their community swimming pools, tennis courts, bowling lawns, to mention only a few of the facilities available. Of course, a good many persons never take any exercise at all, yet seem to thrive. But for those who have been accustomed to a brisk swim or a couple of sets of tennis after work and who now find it impossible to fit this exercise into the daily schedule, the penalty may be reduced efficiency and eventual ill health.

All this has a peculiar application to Washington, especially since it became a boom town. The Capital City finds itself unable properly to serve its thousands of strangers as well as its own residents. A large percentage of draftees are now being rejected for military service because of physical liabilities which could be remedied with sound health and recreational habits. Better recreation needs could be provided by the consolidation of administration of play facilities. This, at any rate, is the policy under discussion. It is proposed to allow concessionaires such as welfare and recreational associations, which maintain golf links, tennis courts, boating and bicycling stands, to operate in Government buildings and public parks, and the project is being examined by the House District Committee. It is to be hoped that dispatch will be used in deciding both administrative consolidation and concessionaire problems so that officials may proceed to outline a permanent program.

HEAVEN

I am no more rapt scholar of the moon
Or ostentatious comet in its flight
Through the tremendous arches of the night
To the dark place where all the stars lie strewn . . .
They, too, are moths; fixed in no fairer plan
Than this that puts the green leaves on the bough
Of every tree that with its shape of shadow
A blue tree makes for grazing sheep and cow.
Enough, the rosewood oxen on the near
Green heights of timothy, the mare and colt
That run for joy to feel the wind
Against the velvet side and eye—
The meadow brook that pauses here in gold
To tumble silver where the pebbles lie—
The mystery of boughs where squirrels sit,
The green rooms full of the blackbird's wit!

Pan-Americanism

"To create a wider diffusion of knowledge among the influential thinkers of the republics, the office has fostered the exchange of professors, of graduate students, and of creative workers of recognized ability."

The foregoing paragraph forms part of the activities outline of the Office of the Coordinator of Commercial and Cultural Relations between the American Republics, an office created by President Roosevelt.

Recently I attended a dinner by the Atlanta Chapter of the Pan-American League in honor of two South Americans in this country as guests of the United States Government. One headed the Department of Public Education in Uruguay; the other was a noted Uruguayan sculptor.

"This visit," said the educator in his address, "has convinced me that only by meeting with foreign peoples in their home environments can one really come to know them. Acquaintance cannot be gained through reading, movies, or speeches. This has truly been a voyage of discovery."

The sculptor spoke of the surprising evidences of a developed artistic appreciation in a nation reputed rather for its prosaic materialism. "The Americans we usually see in Uruguay are those who come to sell us automobiles, agricultural machinery, bonds, and the like. We now know how different from these is the typical average American."

After hearing these distinguished visitors, I felt that henceforth, in the high circles of Uruguayan opinion, the United States would have at least two champions; that whenever the old charge of Yankee imperialism and dollar chasing sounded there, two influential voices would rise in our defense.

HARRY STARK.

Alien Strikers

It now develops that a leader of a recent strike in one of our largest airplane factories is an alien without citizenship papers. If we attempt to deport him, his native country will follow the lead of Russia and refuse to accept him. If our Government follows its usual practice, it will take this situation "lying down."

If we have not guts enough to handle such an individual, then why talk about going to war with Hitler? If our "action and more action" is going to be limited to demands upon the helpless taxpayer while we let aliens nullify the result of the sacrifices of the loyal element of the population, then we had as well stop where we are.

It is all very well to preach "unity" and "harmony," but in the face of such a situation as this, two-fisted action is called for. The time has come to "put none but Americans on guard." The very men who staged this strike prated about their "constitutional rights." What about the constitutional rights of the men who wanted to work and whom they threatened and physically attacked? And what about the safety of the Constitution itself, which they were jeopardizing? A continuance of such a mess as this will go a long way toward justifying Hitler's charge that democracy has broken down. There is nothing wrong with the principle of democracy, but nothing will bring it into disrepute sooner than temporizing with violations of law and order by special groups.

Oil Embargo

For the past week there has been much written and said about the oil shortage likely to threaten the eastern States. Oil company officials say that the reason is due to a shortage of tankers. Still there are others who say that defense needs make gasless Sundays urgent. I wonder whether or not Mr. Ickes is aware of the fact that we sold $3,360,000 of gasoline to Japan in the first three months of this year while during the first three months of last year we sold $1,883,000. Are we afraid of offending Japan? Do we actually fear her? Then why do we supply her with oil and ask our people to make sacrifices for the purpose of defense?

When we supply oil to Japan, we are all aware that said oil is used in bombers to bomb our friends, the Chinese. China is a democratic nation and it seems to me that we are doing our best to make her lose faith in us.

Mr. Ickes expects a democratic man to do without his automobile on Sundays for the sake of defense. If sending Japan oil is part of national defense then I am inclined to agree with the gentleman who said, "If ever a government was attempting to light the flame of patriotism with a wet match, this is it."

We Americans are not afraid to make sacrifices, but without an embargo on oil to Japan, it will be quite difficult for us to accept, with a smile, gas rations at higher prices.

Hemingway

You made a ten strike in having Ernest Hemingway on the front page June 11, and likewise today. The first article was in relation to rubber supply, with which I was conversant from the start of the tire industry and actively with one of the largest companies for a number of years. I know he told the exact truth as to why Japan would like to control the output in the Far East, which would place United States factories at Japan's mercy as to prices and volume. We are the largest consumers of raw rubber in the world and must of necessity have a hand in its supply or take a back seat. The time may come when "plantation" latex for our use can be obtained from Brazil, but it will take time and invested capital. Many years ago we used native or forest wild rubber from Brazil but the shipments were as high as $4 per pound, and contained too much dirt or foreign matter. So far as I can see Mr. Hemingway had his facts accurate.

Convoys

Mr. Lindbergh and Senator Wheeler talk repeatedly about the majority being against convoys, though the Gallup polls show an ever increasing percentage favoring them. Do these two gentlemen think that by insisting that the contrary is so it will be so? And don't they imagine that people read the papers? If the best arguments they can use are not facts, then their cause—if one can call it a cause—is lost, indeed.

State Department

If the statements contained in The Post of June 8 in an article entitled "Bureaucracy at Work," by Alsop and Kintner, charging the State Department with serious obstructionist tactics with respect to national defense, are true, then an explanation is certainly due the public, and some changes evidently in order.

The America First Committee

It should be fairly obvious by now to almost any clear-thinking and patriotic American that the America First Committee is one of the most dangerous manifestations to appear in American public life for many years.

It professes to be the savior of democracy . . . Yet its aims are to deny aid to the last great democracy fighting for that cause, even though it knows that to do so is, in effect, to aid the totalitarian aggressors. Furthermore, the committee knows perfectly well that it attracts to its banner all the elements in this country who are openly opposed to democracy. Its spokesmen vigorously deny in public any desire for these various organizations' help; nevertheless there is evidence that they cooperate privately.

The committee proclaims that "it has no list of wealthy backers." This is patently absurd. There are many very well-to-do people who are on its executive committee. It has a vast organization and spends money like water on publicity. The committee is very hazy about the basis of American security, which is control of the sea. It is rallying ground for all those elements which are discontented with the American way of life.

Furthermore, it has a front of sincere but misguided patriots who are easy game for the more dangerous elements who support the committee. It champions the cause of defeatism, the known destroyer of democracy in other countries. Some of its wealthy backers correspond too closely for comfort to the "profit before patriotism" Frenchmen, who helped bring that unhappy country to ruin, to those in Germany who helped Hitler to power, thinking they could control him.

But now we see it raising the banner of a new and more sinister cause. It has been calling recently for new leadership. If its supporters love the democratic way of life as they say they do, they ought to know that we in this country elect a President for a term of four years. We have only a few months ago conducted such an election, and while many of us, the writer included, did not vote for the successful candidate, we know, nevertheless, that he received the greatest number of votes and we intend to abide by the wish of the majority.

What then do the speakers of the America First Committee mean when they call for the new leadership? What do the audiences mean when they answer . . . "We Want Lindbergh?" What does Senator Wheeler mean when he doubts that the Army and the Navy will obey their commanding officer?

Mr. Lindbergh's so-called explanation of his remarks is, on close examination, no explanation at all, but simply a reiteration of his demand for new leadership, without any mention as to how he expects the change to be brought about. His "explanation" in fact makes his demand more ominous than ever.

Can it be that these determined people would like to take the situation into their own hands in contradiction of our democratic constitution?

The Post Impressionist

Republican Royalty

When Martha Washington arrived in New York, the new Capital, to preside over the household of the first President of the United States, she was doubtless astonished and perhaps a little terrified to read in Fenno's Gazette that the "court" had come to town. The editor named the first callers upon "the Lady Washington"; they were "the Lady of His Excellency the Governor, Lady Sterling, Lady Mary Watts, the ladies of the Most Honorable Mr. Langdon and the Most Honorable Mr. Dalton—and a great many other respectable characters." Little did Mrs. Washington suspect that the election of her illustrious husband would start up a fiery controversy over titles. To her, as to the masses, he was "the maker of a nation." To the world of fashion he was "the creator of a court."

The Gazette of the United States, established by John Fenno, a protege of Hamilton, aspired to be a "court journal," and plead for titles of distinction. Adams didn't think the Government could be carried on without proper titles. To call Washington "President" would bring him to ridicule in foreign countries and before the soldiers and sailors. Adams also proposed that the sergeant-at-arms be called, "Usher of the Black Rod." As a suitable title for Washington, Lee proposed "Highness"; Izard, "Excellency," "His Highness, the President of the United States and the Protector of the Same," was decided upon when James Madison announced that the Constitution gave the head of the Nation the title of "President of the United States."

Undismayed, Fenno continued to write courtly phrases. Social climbers, hearing of the "court," flocked to town, bringing their wives and daughters. Rents increased; the cost of living soared. When Jefferson arrived he was shocked at the unrepublican tone. A French traveler was impressed with the luxury and grandeur. "English luxury, English fashions, the most brilliant silks, and borrowed hair."

To meet the world of fashion one must walk in Wall Street. The statesmen lived in the boarding houses of that neighborhood. Ladies and dandies, dressed in gay silks and satins, passed daily on foot or in sedan chairs. Wall Street was the center of gossip. Society, then as ever, amused itself by gossiping, flirting and whispering risque stories behind fans. Fat Mrs. Knox, billowing along in her voluminous skirts, caused much merriment. She was a Mrs. Malaprop in her misuse of words. In Wall Street "the elegant Hamilton" and "the courtly Burr" bowed low over ladies' hands. A dandy in scarlet coat, with mother-of-pearl buttons, white silk embroidered waistcoat, black satin breeches, white silk stockings and a cocked hat, blessed the street with his presence.

In this age of gallantry society had much charm. Although there were many balls and teas, people preferred to dine and talk. The Knoxes bankrupted themselves with horses, grooms, servants and Mrs. Knox's hairdressing bills. She "wore her hair after the extreme fashion, at least a foot high, in the form of a churn bottom upward." Mrs. Hamilton's drawing room was brilliant. She was assisted by her vivacious sister, Mrs. Church, who brought back from London "a late abominable fashion of ladies, like washwomen with their sleeves above their elbows." Invitations were much sought to Richmond Hill, the home of John Adams, about a mile from the city. Here statesmen, their wives and social leaders talked like ladies and gentlemen of the court. Such was the elegance of the Adams household that the airs of their coachman offended persons walking in the street.

But the interest of society centered about the "court" on Cherry Street. His "Majesty" had arrived in New York in an ornate barge manned by 13 pilots in white uniforms. The great man in plain blue and buff stepped along the royal red carpet amid the roar of cannon and the peal of bells. He declined the use of a carriage and walked, followed by a crowd of women and children, to the unpretentious brick mansion that was to be his home.

Although Washington visited the wax works, the circus and was criticized severely for attending a performance of the risque play, "The School for Scandal," in the company of ladies, the "court," so far as he was concerned, was not a gay one. He was losing his physical vigor. He was "pale, almost cadaverous." Even when surrounded by beautiful girls at Mrs. Washington's drawing rooms, his sad expression "was never lightened by a smile."

Restraints of etiquette bored him. Both Hamilton and Adams had aristocratic notions of isolating the President from the people. A chamberlain or a gentleman in waiting should arrange contacts with citizens. He should give only small, select dinners.

Maclay, a guest at dinner, declared it "the best of the kind I ever was at." But silence and solemnity reigned throughout. "Not a health drank, scarce a word said until the cloth was taken away." Then Washington solemnly drank the health of each guest by name and the dinner ended in a burr of healths and thank-yous.

We hear that Washington reached the point of profanity at times but acquiesced to the ideas of his advisers when he rode out in state. The magnificence of his progress through the streets in the finest coach in America, decorated with cupids and festoons of flowers, drawn by four or six horses, was a delight to those who leaned toward monarchy.

Society, loath to give up its dream of pomp and ceremony, aped the manners of royalty and for 12 years continued to speak of the "court." But although there was so much discussion of titles and formality, the foundations of the new Nation were firmly laid. The noble names of Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Hamilton, Adams, Morris and Randolph, to name a few, still bring a thrill whenever they are heard. Surely no society has ever surpassed in brilliance that in which Washington was "King" and Martha was "Lady Washington," first lady of the 'court."

The Robin Moor Case

By Ernest K. Lindley

Theories For Nazi Attack

THE IMPORTANT FACTS about the Robin Moor, as they are viewed in high official circles, are two:

LINDLEY

1. That the ship was sunk by a German submarine with the full knowledge that it was an American ship.

2. That it was sunk in the South Atlantic, about half way between Dakar, in French Africa, and Natal, on the hump of Brazil.

That proper provision was not made for the safety of passengers and crew is deplorable, but inherent in submarine operations. This question was thoroughly thrashed out during World War I. Nobody has yet figured out how a submarine operating at sea can assure that the people aboard a torpedoed ship reach shore in safety.

Whether the ship carried "contraband" or not is a lawyer's question. Contraband can be anything which any nation wishes to call contraband. There was little that we did not class as contraband after we entered World War I. Although much may be heard about contraband in the notes or other exchanges concerning the sinking of the Robin Moor, contraband is little more than a lawyer's plaything. However, the ship carried no munitions or outright implements of war.

IT IS PERTINENT, though, that the Robin Moor was not violating the Neutrality Act and that it was sailing to a port, Cape Town, which the Nazis do not even pretend to blockade.

The significance of the torpedoing is not in the arguments which the international lawyers put together, but in the fact that it was a deliberate attack on the American flag in the South Atlantic, outside the areas proclaimed by the Nazis to be war zones. The attack must therefore modify a theory on which our highest officials have been working: that the Nazis would not invite us to engage in open warfare with them—not, at least, before September or October of this year.

Hitler's policy, as they have seen it, has been to involve us in war in the Pacific while avoiding conflict with us in the Atlantic. It was presumed that he would adhere to this policy at least through this summer—until climatic conditions no longer made feasible an all-out attack on Great Britain, if indeed the Nazis are prepared to make such an attack. What might happen after then was anybody's guess.

If American ships had openly entered the war zone around England, or if American naval ships had fired on, let us say, a German surface raider off Greenland, Hitler might have felt impelled to change his policy. But he has not waited to see whether we would initiate hostilities on the high seas. He has attacked—and not on the vital North Atlantic sea lane. He has attacked, in fact, in waters which, under the President's definition of the frontiers of the Western Hemisphere, are American.

BETWEEN THE STOPPING of the Robin Moor and its sinking there was an interval, in which presumably the submarine commander had opportunity, if he needed it, to ask for instructions from home. Knowing the discipline of the German navy, our officials do not believe this was the act of an officer going beyond his instructions.

Why did the Germans take the offensive against us on the high seas? Several theories are tentatively entertained:

First, that they have calculated that American supplies reaching the British, via the Cape of Good Hope or through transshipment from Cape Town, might enable the British to hold their position in the eastern Mediterranean and middle East. If this theory is correct, more sinkings in the South Atlantic can be expected. (Much of our aid, however, is moving via the Pacific and Indian Oceans).

Secondly, the sinking may have been designed to test American opinion, as the sinking of the Panay may have been designed by the Japanese.

Thirdly, it may have been done on the assumption that we are on the verge of protecting the North Atlantic ship lanes all the way to Great Britain. Thus it may have been intended to divert our naval strength.

Fourthly, and in line with the third point, it may have been designed to draw more American naval strength from the Pacific, with the hope that the Japanese could then be induced to attack the East Indies or Singapore.

Fifthly, it may mean that Hitler has concluded that it is this summer or never for the Nazis to win the war. If so, it may signal the desperate kind of all-out attack on shipping to which the Germans resorted at the beginning of 1917, in the belief that they could defeat the Allies before the United States could intervene effectively.

Whichever theory, or mixture of theories, may prove to be correct, high officials are examining the incident in a cold analytical way. The American response may be dressed with nice allusions to international law, and with such emotions as may be deemed useful, but it will be grounded in the hardest realities our best-informed officials can fathom.

Intervention Necessary

By Livingston Hartley

Lessons Of Robin Moor

THE SINKING of the Robin Moor has brought to a head the question of what the United States is going to do to safeguard the Atlantic sea lanes. After much public discussion and much official hesitancy this question must now be answered.

Until now, the issue has been whether we were to use forces to safeguard effectively the Atlantic lifelines to Britain. Our extension of the neutrality patrol to Greenland and beyond has not proved sufficiently effective, as the continuing high losses of vessels carrying the products of American factories to Britain show. More and more Americans have become convinced that patrolling for the purpose of finding and reporting submarines must be transferred into policing for the purpose of eliminating them from the sea lanes.

Ever since the President announced on May 27 our intention to maintain our rights on the high seas and to take "all additional measures necessary to deliver the goods to Britain," the public has been awaiting the implementation of these policies. And during this interval, expert after expert has made it clear that every day's further delay of effective action was decreasing our chances of ultimate victory over Germany beyond the Atlantic, and increasing the danger that we will have to fight a last-ditch war against a victorious Germany over here.

THIS SITUATION has been brought to a climax by the sinking of the Robin Moor. Germany has now fired the first shot against America. Germany has killed American citizens by an act which can properly be termed as one of both piracy and war. If we confine ourselves now to a mere diplomatic protest, Germany will again disregard American rights and the American flag, while our prestige and influence disintegrate throughout Germanized Europe, South America and Eastern Asia.

We are facing, therefore, a test of our national policy and our national will. If we now fail to take the action which is necessary to implement our national policies of preserving the freedom of the seas for American ships and delivering the goods to Britain, the repercusions of our failure will be world-wide and disastrous.

British morale is still firm, but the British now realize that without the direct assistance of the American Navy they can have little hope of ultimate victory. No people can be expected to stand the battering they are taking unless they remain convinced that final victory will be won.

THE POLICIES of Vichy and Tokyo depend largely today upon the attitude of America. If the Vichy and Japanese governments decide that America will not implement the policies she has proclaimed, this war will very soon spread over our oceans. It will extend over West Africa into the South Atlantic and over the Dutch East Indies into the Pacific, creating conditions which will inevitably involve us in hostilities far more dangerous to our security and far wider in scope than those which threaten us now. The surest way to keep this war out of West Africa and the Pacific is to intervene immediately to police the Atlantic.

If we intervene now, we shall convince Vichy and Japan that war against Britain will encounter the opposition of American as well as British seapower. Neither of them is prepared to clash with the United States, and Japan can now claim freedom from her commitment to aid Germany against us in the event of attack because Germany has attacked us first.

If we intervene now, we shall convince the ten republics of South America that we have the will to defend this hemisphere the only practicable way. Our action will close the fissures now opening in our hemisphere solidarity, which are caused by widespread doubt as to whether it is not safer to side with a forward moving Germany than with a hesitant United States. Finally, if we intervene now, we shall convince the British and all the conquered peoples of Europe that Nazi Germany is going to be crushed.

THE MAJORITY of the American people, as polls of opinion have shown, have long been willing to participate in hostilities rather than to face the consequences of a German victory over Britain. Like Mr. Willkie, we hoped six to eight months ago that material aid to Britain would suffice to stop Nazi Germany and defeat her. But now most of us agree with Mr. Willkie that the development of the war has made it necessary to give Britain active naval support in the Atlantic, a degree of support which amounts to intervention.

Because of the development of this war, the choice is no longer one between neutrality and belligerency. It is instead a choice between a necessarily limited use of American armed forces now and their wider or total use later.

Intervention does not mean a declaration of war. Whether it would lead to a formal status of war can be left up to Hitler, and thus place him, for once, on the defensive, uncertain as to how far he can afford to go against us. For he knows that to declare war on us would free Japan entirely from her conditional obligation to assist him, and would have the most serious repercussions on German morale.

Intervention requires primarily the full use of our naval forces to police the sea lanes. It would also require the employment of our Army air force, and perhaps relatively small military forces to prevent enemy occupation of strategic islands and of bases on the African coast.

THE PRACTICAL conditions of this war places strict limitation on the size of the military forces we could send overseas. There is no front where an A. E. F. of millions could fight, and there is not, and will not be for several years, enough shipping to transport and maintain such a force across an ocean. This is a war of machinery, not men, in which military victories are won by a few divisions of armored troops. Since the British Empire and its allies have plenty of men available and nearer the land fronts, our "all-out" effort in this war would consist of production and delivery of machinery, not in sending men.

The three alternatives we actually face today are these: If we intervene now to carry out our defense policy, our intervention, even though an "all-out" effort on our assembly lines, will be limited in both area and use of military forces overseas. If we delay, yet maintain our defense policy, we will be forced by extension of the war, to intervene later over a wider area, with more military forces and with less assurance of victory. Finally, if we abandon our defense policy and allow Germany to conquer Britain, we will have to use all our forces in a last-ditch war over here, with no prospect of victory and only the hope of gaining a truce.

Faced with such alternatives, those responsible for the destiny of America should neither falter nor hesitate.

Protecting Our Ships

By Mark Sullivan

The Minimum We Should Do

LIFT IT OUT of the tangle of legalisms. Brush away the fog of precedent and technicality. Look at it with fresh eyes as if it were something that never had happened before. See it as it would be seen by any average person if it were made simple and clear:

SULLIVAN

There was a great nation—it was, in the period when this happened, the strongest nation in the world. It was called the United States of America.

Some citizens of this nation had a ship, which they called the Robin Moor. They were proud that they, and their ship, were of this nation; they felt that their citizenship in this nation gave them respect and security. On their ship, on both sides, they painted immense flags of their nation; on the mast they kept a flag flying, with electric lights playing upon it throughout the night.

These citizens loaded their ship with cargo, at New York. They took some passengers aboard, including three married couples, and a 4-year-old child—in all the ship bore 46 persons.

THE SHIP set sail for a distant port, Cape Town in South Africa. While there was a war waging, the war was far distant from the port to which this ship was going, and far distant from the ship's route. Both route and port were thousands of miles outside any waters that had been designated a war zone. Besides, no part of the ship's cargo was contraband of war by the standards of its own Government.

At early dawn one morning, in the path of the ship, appeared a low, squat vessel, a submarine. From the submarine came a signal, a blinking light, which told the Robin Moor to stop.

The Robin Moor stopped. From the submarine came a signal saying, "Send a boat with papers." If the Robin Moor captain thought this strange or arrogant, he nevertheless obeyed—a torpedo was pointing at him. The seamen of the Robin Moor lowered a lifeboat in charge of the chief officer. The lifeboat proceeded to the submarine. The submarine's commander ordered the Robin Moor's officer to come aboard.

The submarine commander ordered the Robin Moor officer to return to his ship and abandon it. He was given 20 minutes to get all the seamen and passengers off; later the limit was extended to 30 minutes.

The seamen and passengers of the Robin Moor left the ship in four lifeboats. Thereupon the submarine fired a torpedo into the Robin Moor and later some 30-odd shells. The Robin Moor sank in about 23 minutes.

The submarine circled about for a few minutes and then moved off.

THE LIFEBOATS containing the Robin Moor survivors remained together at the scene of the sinking—they had been told by the commander of the submarine that he would wireless their position to the world, so that some steamer might come and rescue them. No rescuer came. After 24 hours the Robin Moor captain instructed all the lifeboats to proceed to a spot on the Brazilian coast some 800 miles away. The lifeboats set out and remained together for some five days. Then each boat proceeded on its own. One boat was picked up by a passing steamer 18 days after the sinking. The other boats were not heard from. Presumably 36 American seamen and passengers are at the bottom of the Atlantic, or in the bellies of sharks.

This happened to the citizens, and ship, of the most powerful nation in the world. What is this Nation to do? What are the fellow-citizens of the destroyed seamen and passengers to feel and expect? In the view of the average citizen, the sinking of the Robin Moor will be seen as gangsterism on the sea; and this view is borne out by the technical facts.

What is this Nation to do, if it is to live up to its responsibility to its citizens? What is it to do if it is to have the trust and confidence of its own people, and the respect of other nations?

THERE ARE many things for this Nation to do. Dismiss for the moment what it is to do in exacting atonement for the act already committed. Consider only what it should do to prevent future acts of the same kind.

There is one minimum this nation should do. It should enable American ships and American seamen and passengers on American ships, to feel safe wherever they have a right to be. As a detail of this, our merchant ships should be equipped with arms to defend themselves. But this is not enough. This Nation should give police protection to every American ship sailing upon any of the seven seas. The force to do the policing is the American Navy. Whenever any American naval vessels see a menace of the kind that sank the Robin Moor, they should do what any police force does about any menace. They should arrest it—that is, seize it and intern it. If the menace resists, they should attack it, fight it to the point of surrender or destruction.

That much should be done for the future, and at once. As respects the past, as respects atonement for the Robin Moor, that will be involved in legalisms. But the legalisms will not diminish the outrage. The Robin Moor contained no contraband, as contraband is defined by the United States. Germany can of course assert that anything is contraband, even the tooth brushes in the passengers' cabins.

As respects the other legalism, manner of sinking, there can be no argument. Under no law or pretext of law can a ship be sunk as the Robin Moor was sunk without seeing that crew and passengers are made safe.

The Once Over

More About Purkey

Dear Ma—

Well I am running a defense factory now or anyway I was when this letter was wrote you. And all we jeeps are getting a kick out of the unexpected job on account of ever since we was drafted we have been sore as a boil at all the strikes and when we are giving up home and everything for $21 a month it don't exactly break our hearts to read about all these strikes for shorter hours and bigger pay envelopes. I am for everybody getting a square dele, mom, and union labor is okay by me of coarse but when you are in a army working like a horse and doing what the sergeant says with no backtalk you do not like the idea of anybody holding up defense produckshun.

We all got a good look at these strikers when we took over the plant and I never seen a bunch that looked better fed and less overworked. They don't look like they was having no trouble making both ends meet and if they are having as much trouble doing it as I am in the army mom I will eat my leather belt. I don't see no strike agitator who looks like he missed any meals and some of the ones talking the loudest from the sound trucks look like they had been reaching for second helpings all there lives.

When we marched into the town where the strike was I thought at first we wood never be able to break through into the grounds on account of so many touring cars belonging to the strikers and parked all around the place. I never seen so many parked cars outside at a Yale-Harvard football game, and I don't notice many repaints neither. I can see at once that we jeeps in the draft army has done more walking in the last 24 hours than these strikers has done all their lives I gess. I have read so many stories about the tough times of the workers that I expect to see a lot of poor fellers in their bare feet, and hand-me-down clothes but they are all dressed like college students if you ask me and the only man I seen in old clothes turned out to be one of the factory heads.

And always the best dressed was the leaders. A leader who kept yelling for the workers never to give in had a stomach that dropped over his vest and two sets of double chins not to mention a silk shirt and white pants. You could tell he had never worked ten minutes under any boss like a army sergeant and what a squawk he wood make if anybody had asked him to get up at sunrise and walk in the mud until further notice.

Every other word of this man was "We demand" and I kept thinking how far we wood get with that in the Army where a jeep does what he is told takes what he gets and don't demand nothing accept a break in a crap game. Even then he don't get it.

When we reach the plant there is more camera men there than either soldiers or strikers and for a while both us and the strikers forget what we are there for and just pose for pictures which is a unresistable American habit I guess. No matter what a American is doing he will stop it for the newsreels and I guess the whole war could be stopped if enough fotograffers showed up at one time.

Well it was all exciting for a time and I sort of liked the change from peeling spuds, picking up waste papers all over camp and hiking all over the open country but I got sick of it quick because I did not join the Army to be a policeman and I know you did not raise your boy to be a production manager. I will close this now as I have got to pose for a cameraman pointing a baernet at a fat striker while we both smile.

Love, OSCAR.

Baiting The Bear

By Barnet Nover

Russia And The Reich

SINCE AUGUST, 1939, when Stalin gave Hitler the go-ahead signal for an attack on Poland, relations between Germany and Russia have been in a state of uneasy equilibrium. The pact was a cynical marriage of convenience with no love lost between the partners. It could be taken for granted that Hitler would respect its provisions only as long as it suited his interests to do so. And the Fuehrer had reason to assume that Stalin's promises were inherently no more binding than his own.

NOVER

Nonetheless, the recurrent rumors of imminent conflict between the Soviet Union and the Third Reich have all thus far been proved without foundation. Hitler may not have found exactly to his liking Russia's expansion in the Baltic nor the annexation by the Soviet Union of Bessarabia and Northern Bukovina, nor the fact that Moscow's promises of economic cooperation with the Third Reich outran performance. To take on Russia before Great Britain was disposed of was not in Hitler's cards, however.

On the other hand, there appears to be little doubt that the Kremlin viewed with real concern the German penetration of the Balkans which gave the Nazis a foothold not only on the Mediterranean but also on the Black Sea and the possibility that Hitler might establish himself athwart the Dardanelles. But Russia's feeble expressions of opposition to German activities in Southeastern Europe were followed, after the Nazi victory in Yugoslavia and Greece, by propitiatory moves. The pro-Axis government of Raschid Ali in Iraq was recognized by the Soviet and recognition was withdrawn from countries overrun by the Nazis.

Recently the air has been thick with rumors that Germany was not satisfied with the Russian deal and was contemplating a military drive on the Ukraine. These rumors emanated from points as far removed as Helsinki and Ankara, Budapest and Berne. They were so persistent that Tass, the Soviet official news agency, hastened to take cognizance of them in order to discredit them. In the very act of doing so, however, Tass confirmed the fact that a very considerable German force (estimated in some quarters as high as 120 divisions) was concentrated along the joint German-Russian frontier.

"According to information at the disposal of the U. S. S. R.," said Tass, "Germany abides by the provisions of the Soviet-German pact of nonaggression as unswervingly as the Soviet Union, in view of which, in the opinion of Soviet quarters, rumors of Germany's intentions to disrupt the pact and undertake attacks on the U. S. S. R. are devoid of any grounds, whereas the dispatching of German troops relieved from operations in the Balkans to eastern and northeastern districts of Germany, which now is taking place, is connected, it should be assumed, with other motives having no bearing on Soviet-German relations."

This statement has all the earmarks of a bid to Germany to make it clear that the German troop concentrations are not intended for an assault on Russia rather than proof that they are not so intended.

THE IMPRESSION which the Tass statement creates is that Hitler has put or is about to put the heat on Russia. That he will go as far as attacking that country is not certain. Such an attack would create far more problems for the Third Reich than it would solve. However weak Russia may be vis-a-vis Germany, the addition of her strength to that of Great Britain at this time might have fatal consequences for the Nazis. It is far more likely that Hitler is carrying out an elaborate game of bluff, the purpose of which is to capitalize on Russia's weakness and her fear of involvement in war to draw her closer into the orbit of the "new order."

In other words, Hitler may be trying out against Russia the same tactics he employed against Yugoslavia and Greece with the difference that he is probably less willing to carry the matter to extremes this time and Russia is probably more willing than were Yugoslavia and Greece to meet his desires in order to avoid war.

The pact of August 23, 1939, was Stalin's Munich, although on the surface the Russian dictator gained by the deal while Chamberlain and Daladier were the losers in their Munich. Now Stalin faces the inevitable sequel to a policy of appeasement. He must fight or capitulate. Perhaps the test is not yet at hand, despite all the rumors of growing German-Russian tension. Sooner or later, however, the test will come and the choice will have to be made.

EARLY THIS YEAR Hitler promised the German people that the war would be won in 1941. Later he had to modify that pledge by suggesting that perhaps the war might have to go into another year. But if it does extend into 1942, Germany will have to reckon with the rapidly increasing industrial power which the United States is planning to throw into the scales and, it is not at all unlikely, with the actual armed hostility of this country.

To offset the American contribution to Great Britain and her allies Hitler needs more than the uncertain pledge of support he is getting from Japan, Admiral Darlan's pledge of wholehearted Franco-German collaboration and the continued cooperation, if that is the word, of a bankrupt and broken Italy. He needs supplies. Some of them are not to be had unless and until the British blockade is broken. Others can be had from Russia. It is not at all unlikely that Hitler is placing a pistol at Stalin's head, to compel the latter to vouchsafe Germany these needed supplies.

There is, in addition, another and equally weighty reason why a showdown in Russo-German relations may not be far off. With the United States pledged to give its full support to Great Britain, a frontal assault on that country might prove so difficult and costly as to weaken Germany to the point where Russia might find it advisable to join the fray and give the Reich its coup de grace.

So, even as he found it necessary to make a deal with Russia before attacking Poland, Hitler may have decided that the necessary prelude to an all-out attack on GreatBritain is an arrangement with Russia—at the point of the bayonet if necessary—that would preclude the possibility of a stab in the back. The present British concern over the rumors of a rift in the Communazi lute is more justifiable than the earlier rejoicing regarding them. The possibility that, faced by a real threat of war, Stalin would capitulate to Hitler, is one that cannot for a moment be discounted.

Carol, Mentally, Still Sits Upon Rumania's Shaky Throne

Inez Robb, who accompanied former King Carol and his "uncrowned queen," Mme. Lupescu, to Havana aboard the S. S. America and had a rare opportunity to get to know them personally, herewith begins a series of articles on the latest chapter in their royal romance.

By Inez Robb

International News Service Staff Writer

Havana, Cuba, June 15.—The Salvation Army has convinced the world that a commoner may be down but never out. By the same token, Carol II of Rumania is living proof that a King may be out but never down.

Let there be no doubt about the present whereabouts of His Majesty, the King of Rumania. As far as Carol is concerned, the King is not in Bucharest. The King is in Havana. And while the Nazi regime continues to refer to Carol's 19-year-old son, Michael, as the occupant of Rumania's royal throne, Michael's father considers him as nothing more or less than a bench warmer for daddy.

"His Majesty, King Carol of Rumania," is registered as such in firm, bold script in the luxurious Hotel Nacional. His little court, consisting of Mme. Lupescu and his chamberlain, Col. Ernest Urdarianu, address him always as "Your Majesty." So do all others summoned into the presence.

No "ex" marks the spot where this bold, willful and ambitious King has taken his present stand.

His Majesty merely finds it expedient to be out of his own country temporarily. As long as Hitler dominates Europe and the Fascist Iron Guards run Rumania for him, Carol has no choice but to bide his time in the New World.

But if and when Great Britain and her Allies win the present war, Carol believes he can return in triumph to the country he tried to throw into the Allied column in the Second World War as his monther, Queen Marie, succeeded in doing in the First World War.

In the eyes of his adoring father, no less than in those of the world, young Michael is once more the stooge King of Rumania. In private conversations, Carol has expressed his conviction that Michael is virtually a prisoner, if not a hostage, within the country where Carol has every determination to rule again.

In its most purple moments, Hollywood has never produced anything to hold a Klieg light to the factual record of Carol's life or Rumania's history. The long flight of Carol, Mme. Lupescu and the colonel across Europe and the Atlantic to safety in Havana is of a piece with the rest of Carol's implausible career.

In European diplomatic circles it is axiomatic that almost anything is for sale in Rumania. During his 24 hours of grace, Carol, by hook or crook, contrived the safe exit from Rumania of the two most hated persons within its borders, Mme. Lupescu and Col. Urdarianu.

It is reported that Carol bought the safety of himself, madame and the colonel from the Iron Guard for a consideration amounting to $2,000,000.

For 18 years, during which no moment of her life was worth a plugged nickel, Mme. Lupescu had been loyal to Carol. For the ten years of his reign, Urdarianu, who looks like a sleek, Balkan George Raft, had been his faithful henchman, fiscal agent and pay-off man.

There is not the slightest ostentation to indicate that His Majesty is a tremendously rich man, with a great fortune secretly placed at his command in this hemisphere.

With the exception of the King's insistence on his title, there is nothing remotely regal or resplendent in their manner or mode of life. But the King does insist on his titular due.

(Tomorrow: "That Woman"—Mme. Lupescu.)

Cots in Church, Georgetown Gym, For Service Men

Recreational facilities for service men on leave in Washington were greatly overtaxed during the weekend and makeshift sleeping quarters were resorted to in order to take care of the overflow.

The Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Club, with a capacity of only 160 beds, was compelled to turn away more than twice that number of men, according to information from the United Service Organization, and the Y. M. C. A. was unable to provide for the number requesting sleeping accommodations.

Makeshift sleeping arrangements were set up at Georgetown University gymnasium, and about 100 cots were placed in the Episcopal Church of the Ascension, Twelfth Street and Massachusetts Avenue.

The United Service Organization is trying to raise $250,000 here for recreational facilities for service men on leave.

Hundreds Brave Rain To Attend Two Parties

By Elizabeth Henney

"I weep for you," the weather said," "I deeply sympathize. On Father's Day I'll send you all the teardrops from the skies!"—Which is just about what happened yesterday, much to the bafflement of many papas and families who had planned outdoor events for the occasion.

Two out-of-town events were so popular that they persuaded hundreds of Washingtonians to brave the storms and put in an appearance. Arrivals at one party (the one given by Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Z. Henle at Plum Point) found they had left the storm behind them and had a completely sunny afternoon.

Those who went out to Laurel, Md., for the party given by Mr. and Mrs. William Stanley were not so lucky, but the host and hostess had moved the mint julep party onto the wide screen porch, and a house with two large drawing rooms, dining room and den on the first floor as well as the large porch, can accommodate quite a crowd. It did yesterday. Over 200 were there, and between gusty curtains of whirling rain they could look from the great white frame house, out over 3 acres of rolling green lawn, which was being rapidly turned into a series of small lakes.

Inside, though, all was gay, and beside the famous mint juleps, which were served on the porch, there was a dining table loaded with the proper variety of edibles to go with juleps.

Vivacious Mrs. Stanley had chosen for the afternoon a full length tea gown of aqua blue crepe and with it she wore a corsage of sweetheart roses. Generally assisting her were her daughter, Misss Mary Jane Stanley, looking like a jonquil in a yellow silk jersey frock; Miss Betty Mills, of Baltimore, who wore white linen, and Misss Lena Little, in a black and white ensemble.

'Jumping Jupiter,' Invitations Say

A party whose invitations are as unusual as those the Stanleys sent out for theirs, is off to a good start before it begins, and this one kept up a good pace far into the evening. The invitations, printed on a filing size card, showed a wild-haired young man with a megaphone.

Below the message read "Jumping Jupiter! It's Father's Day Again! So—Jump in your jalopy and jog out for a joyful julep at Bill and Molly's on Sunday, June Fifteenth. Julep mixing starts at 5. The Lawn, Laurel, Md." At the bottom of the card was the mysterious word "(over)", and on the other side it read, Printing done by Snowden Stanley." The 13-year-old son of the house was on hand yesterday also to see the gathering brought there by his handiwork, and he seemed completely satisfied with the results.

Among those who "jogged out in their jalopies" to greet the Stanleys were the head of the Export-Import Bank and Mrs. Warren Lee Pierson, Treasurer of the United States William A. Julian, the former Minister to Canada and Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, former Ambassador to Hungary John Montgomery, former Attorney General Homer Cummings, Judge and Mrs. James Morris, Col. and Mrs. Leslie Garnett and countless more.

* * * *

Meanwhile those who had made the 43-mile trip to Plum Point found sunshine and an afternoon of hilarity to greet them, for host and hostess Raymond Z. Henle had issued red, white and blue command invitations to "flag-raising ceremonies" which were almost hair-raising as well.

Can-Can Band Plays Patriotic Music

The Can-Can Band (and could it?) welcomed the guests with patriotic airs as they arrived and "found seats in the amphitheater," Claude A. Mahoney, Emcee for the afternoon, brought down the house consistently with his announcements and introductions, one of the first of which was Edwin W. Gableman and a chorus, singing his famous Watermillion Vine saga.

Upon the completion of the unveiling of the Memorial Match-Case Screen and reading of messages from absent flag-wavers, there was a sudden commotion, which swelled to a roar at the appearance of the procession of the Queen of the Day. The Queen (Mrs. Robert Sherrod) "exquisitely gowned" in red, white and blue tissue paper, was borne on a royal palanquin which was mounted on the shoulders of two "nubian slaves." The palanquin was a "bee-ooti-ful" set of springs from an Army cot, and the Nubian slaves had, as a final touch, large and vivid Uncle Sam hats on their woolly heads. Following the palanquin were the "ladies of the court," also "exquisitely gowned" like the queen. They included Mrs. Norman Baxter, Mrs. Mark Foote, Mrs. Emil Hurja, Mrs. Franklyn Waltman, and Mrs. Jim Wright.

The "Dean" John Russell Young of the School of Expression, delivered the oration of the day, (accompanied by whoops from the audience,) following the astounding rendition, by Turner Catledge's choir, of "Hail the Flag, the Queen, the Dean." Members of the choir were Phelps Adams, Charles Gridley, Jay Hayden, Bernard Kilgore, Duke Shoop, and Richard Wilson. Sound effects were supplied by Prof. Ray Ehrensberger of the University of Maryland.

After the ceremonies, the exhausted audience, not to mention cast, were revived by healthy rations of baked beans and ham, rye bread and beer, and after the meal, settled down for a wild evening of darts, bingo and mumblepeg.

Norse Royalty Lease Estate

New Bedford, Mass., June 15.—Crown Princess Martha of Norway who recently was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur A. Houghton, jr., at their estate The Meadows, Smith's Neck, South Dartmouth, has leased the summer estate which she visited. She will arrive with her three children and servants Saturday, July 5, for the summer.

The royal visitor, wife of Crown Prince Olaf, is fond of this section of New England. Last September she and her children, Princess Ragnhild, Princess Astrid and Prince Harald, with Countess Ostgaard, lady-in-waiting, and aides spent several weeks at Wianno. The previous summer they were at Manchester-by-the-Sea.

Engagement Announced

The Hunt Country

By Nina Carter Tabb

A lovely wedding was that of Miss Emily Elizabeth Wilbur and Lieut. Marshall Wallach Saturday afternoon at Loretta, the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Haserick, near Warrenton. The bride came down the long stairway with her stepfather, Mr. Haserick, and crossed the hall to be married in front of the mantel in the living room, which had been decorated with white flowers and lighted with cathedral candles. She was wearing a gown of white tulle, simply made with tight bodice, heart-shaped neckline, long sleeves and a full skirt ending in a long train. She wore a tulle veil, and over that an exquisite heirloom rose-point veil that brides in her family have worn for generations. The lace veil was fastened to her head with a spray of orange blossoms and fell to the bottom of the train. She carried a bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. The Rev. Paul D. Bowden, of Warrenton, performed the ceremony.

Miss Jane Wilbur, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and only attendant. She wore a costume of pale blue marquisette, with tight-fitting bodice, square neckline, short sleeves, a full floor-length skirt and carried a bouquet of pale pink roses.

Lieut. Wallach, U. S. Army, was in full dress uniform and had as best man his brother, Robert Wallach, jr., of Washington. Lieut. Wallach is the son of Col. and Mrs. Robert Wallach, of Warrenton. Miss Wilbur is the daughter of the late William F. Wilbur, of Philadelphia and Warrenton, and Mrs. Haserick.

Ushers at the wedding included William N. Wilbur, brother of the bride; Henry Wallach, brother of the bridegroom; King Stone, jr., and David Warren, of Warrenton.

The bride wore for traveling a dark blue and white figured ensemble with a white pique collar, and a blue hat trimmed with white flowers. Upon their return from the wedding trip they will live at Fort Myer, Va., where Lieut. Wallach has been stationed.

Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Innis Forbes, uncle and aunt of the bride, of Huntington, W. Va., and their daughter, Miss Georgia Forbes, and their son, Innis Forbes, jr.; another uncle and aunt of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Wilbur, of Philadelphia; Mrs. Woodbury Blair, Mrs. Edward A. Mitchell and Mrs. Wallach Merriam—all aunts of the bridegroom—of Washington, and two first cousins of his, William Merriam and Jock Merriam, of Washington.

Miss Annie Rankin Gives Luncheon For Cousin Guest

Miss Annie Laurie Rankin, daughter of Representative and Mrs. John E. Rankin, of Mississippi, entertained at a luncheon in honor of her cousin, Miss Jane Burrous' of West Point, Miss., on Saturday, at the Shoreham Hotel.

Miss Burrous is visiting her uncle and aunt before attending the summer session of the Plymouth Dramatic School at Plymouth, Mass. She is a student at Mississippi State College for Women, where she is active in dramatics.

The luncheon guests included Miss Dorothy Douglas, of Omaha; the Misses Ann and Margaret Wotherspoon, Miss Habel Cunningham, Miss Elizabeth Case, Miss Jane Lesh, Miss Julia Mills, Miss Harriet Whitehurst, Miss Sue Lee Silvester, Miss Frances Lee, Miss Janet Johnson, Miss Mary McLaughlin and Miss Ann Sacks.

Troth Announced Of Lois Thornton

The wedding will take place sometime in October.

Bar Group To Honor The Halifaxes

The Ambassador from Great Britain and Viscountess Halifax will be guests of honor at a dinner which will be given this evening at the Wardman Park Hotel by the Federal Bar Association.

Among the guests will be the Federal Security Administrator, Paul V. McNutt, who will serve as toastmaster; the Minister from South Africa and Mrs. Close; Representative Sol Bloom, of New York; Representative and Mrs. S. Otis Bland, of Virginia; special assistant to the Attorney General, Alexander Holtzoff; Assistant Solicitor General and Mrs. Charles Fahy; Assistant Attorney General and Mrs. Norman M. Littell; Assistant Attorney General and Mrs. Francis M. Shea; Robert Stewart, chairman of the European Division of the State Department, and William E. Reese, president of the association.

A violin ensemble will play during dinner and an orchestra will come in afterwards for dancing. Kenneth H. Bruner is chairman of the arrangements committee, and William E. Vallance is assisting him.

Walter Duranty Takes Spotlight At Martins' Dinner

Walter Duranty, noted foreign correspondent and author, was the center of attention at the dinner given by the Brazilian Ambassador and Mme. Martine on Saturday evening at the spacious embassy on Massachusetts Avenue.

The party, which began as a picnic, ended as a dance. Supper was served in the garden, where small tables had been set up around the lawn, and favorites on the menu were a number of unusual Brazilian dishes. Later guests separated into groups, some to play bridge, some to dance (the Samba being the favorite) and many to form a sort of court around Mr. Duranty.

Mr. Duranty, who came to the party with Dr. Eugene de Savitsch, is in Washington for a stay of several days and is at the Shoreham.

Others at the party included the Counselor of the French Embassy, Guillaume Georges-Picot, and Mme. Georges-Picot; the First Secretary of the French Embassy, Baron James Baeyens and Baronne Baeyens; the Assistant Military Attache of the Brazilian Embassy, Lieut. Col. Stenio Caio de Albuquerque; the Second Secretary of the Brazilian Embassy, A. Boulitreau Fragoso, and Mme. Boulitreau Fragoso; Dr. and Mrs. Clarence Lee Miller, Miss Evelyn Peyton Gordon, Count and Countess Igor Cassini and several others.

Mrs. Lockwood To Visit D. C.

Another in the ever-lengthening list of evacuees from the Philippines is Mrs. Benjamin Lockwood, who arrived a few days ago in New York on the United States Army transport Republic. She will come to Washington next week-end for a brief stay with Mrs. Stanley P. Smith at her home, 5625 Moorland Lane, Bethesda.

Mrs. Lockwood is the wife of Col. Lockwood, inspector general of the Philippines and who was formerly on duty at the War College here, where they have many friends. Accompanying Mrs. Lockwood is their tiny daughter, Cherry.

Mrs. Lockwood is the former Miss Cherry Lane, and will go on to Detroit, Mich., next week to stay with her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Long To Mark Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. J. Stanley Long have issued invitations to a reception on Saturday, to celebrate their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary.

The event will take place at their home, 5733 Nebraska Avenue, from 8 to 10 p. m.

Mary Jeffries Becomes Bride Of Lieut. Miles in Culpeper

Flowers Bedeck St. Stephen's Church For Ceremony

Culpeper, Va., June 15.—The wedding of Miss Mary Helen Jeffries, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Lewis Jeffries, to Lieut. Hugh Smith Miles, jr., of Blacksburg, took place yesterday afternoon at 4:30 in St. Stephen's Episcopal Church. The rector, the Rev. James Edwin Bethea, officiated in the presence of relatives and friends. Church decorations were ferns, white peonies, regal lilies and tall, white candles.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was gowned in magnolia satin, pearl embroidered lace yoke, long fitted sleeves and full skirt ending in a circular train. Her veil of illusion was held by a lace cap, and her flowers were cream roses and gypsophilia. The bridegroom wore the full dress uniform of the service.

Bridal attendants wore pink marquisette, made with long, full skirt, shirred bodice and lace inserts. Miss Marjorie Nimmo, of Suffolk, was maid of honor. Miss Margaret Jeffries, a sister of the bride; Miss Martha Johnson, Miss Kitty Leigh Williams, of Culpeper, and Miss Murrell Prince Richardson, of Petersburg, bridesmaids, wore marquisette dresses in blue, with caps of lace in "Mary Queen of Scots" style, and carried large bouquets of mixed garden flowers, but tied with contrasting blue ribbons.

Lieut. Miles had as best man his father, Hugh S. Miles, of Suffolk, and his ushers were John L. Jeffries, jr., brother of the bride; his brother, Lewis Miles, of Suffolk; James Graham, jr., and Randolph Lassiter, of Newport News. Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jeffries, on West Street, for the bridal party, out of town guests and the families.

The couple left later in the evening for a brief wedding trip, following which they will be stationed at Fort Eustis, where Lieut. Miles was recently ordered for duty. The bride wore for traveling a white crepe sport suit with blue and white accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Conleys Fete West Point Class of 1897

In spite of stormy weather, the classmates got together just the same and had a wonderful time even if it couldn't be a garden party. The event was a cocktail party and reunion of the West Point class of '97, given yesterday afternoon by Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Edgar T. Conley at their estate, Greenridge, in Fairland, Md. It was in honor of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Halstead Dorey, who will leave Washington today to return to their home in San Antonio, Tex.

Gen. and Mrs. Dorey have been visiting their son-in-law son and daughter, Maj. and Mrs. Melville Grant, in Washington for the past few days. While in the East they also visited Mrs. Dorey's family home at Manchester, Conn. Mrs. Dorey, who was Miss Dora Cheney, is a cousin of Col. Sherwood Cheney, who formerly was stationed in Washington and since his retirement from active service has been making his home in Boston, Mass. Col. Cheney is another West Point classmate of Gen. Dorey and Gen. Conley.

Assisting Mrs. Conley during the afternoon were her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Reginald Conley, and her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Morgan Watlington. Mrs. Watlington, who has been in Washington for the past couple of months and has been entertained extensively during her stay here, will leave the first of July for Fort Sill, Okla., to rejoin Maj. Watlington.

Accompanied by her two children, Mary Clare and Tommy, Mrs. Watlington came to Washington from Fort Bragg, N. C., early in April, but it was not until recently that quarters on the post at Fort Sill became available for the Watlington family.

John Thomas Caskey and Bride Will Live Here

Miss Jane Kelley Married Saturday In Cathedral

Mr. and Mrs. John Thomas Caskey, whose wedding took place on Saturday, will make their home in Washington. The former Miss Jane Kelley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kelley of 3726 Connecticut Avenue, and Mr. Caskey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Caskey, of 3024 Tilden Street, were married at St. Mary's Chapel of the Washington Cathedral. Canon Albert Lucas officiated at the 5 o'clock ceremony. Paul Calloway, the Cathedral organist, played the nuptial music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in floor length marquisette, fashioned with a lace girdle and lace panels from the shoulder to the waist, full sleeves and a high neckline. With it she wore a small turban of draped tulle with a shoulder length veil and carried a bouquet of gardenias and bouvardia.

Maid of honor and only attendant was Miss Dorothy Henry, of Atlanta, Ga. She was gowned in yellow marquisette and lace, fashioned with long sleeves with deep cuffs of the lace and a long, full skirt. With it she wore a halo bonnet of yellow starched net and carried a bouquet of yellow daisies, blue cornflowers and larkspur.

The bridegroom's father, Fred A. Caskey, was the best man and the ushers were James Gouldin, Philip Kelley (brother of the bride), James McKay and Winburn Stewart, of Columbia, S. C.

Benson Weeks.

MRS. JOHN THOMAS CASKEY

Supper at the Home Of Bride's Parents Follows Ceremony

After the ceremony there was a wedding supper at the home of the bride's parents. The mother of the bride wore a black and white print frock with a black hat and a corsage of red roses and baby's breath. The mother of the bridegroom was in printed chiffon and wore a white orchid corsage.

When the couple left for their wedding trip the bride was wearing a green and gray silk print, with a jacket of green, matching accessories and a gardenia corsage.

Mrs. Caskey was graduated from Duke University in 1939 and is a member of Pi Beta Phi Sorority. Mr. Caskey, also a Duke University graduate, is a member of S. A. E. Fraternity and is attending Georgetown Law School.

Among the out-of-town guests were Miss Virginia Rheutan, of Richmond, Va.; T. M. Girdler, of Cleveland, Ohio, and Mr. and Mrs. Philip Arnold, of Cleveland.

It's Possible To Eat Better, Lose Pounds

By Ida Jean Kain

THE GOVERNMENT is putting on a nutritional campaign—the likes of which has never before been known—to encourage every person in the land to eat the foods that will build abounding health and vitality. And yet American women are spending $25,000,000 a year to reduce because they are going right along eating the wrong food.

It is about time we get together with Uncle Sam. The emphasis of a good diet for the nation is on the protective foods. The emphasis of a diet to bring the weight down to normal is on the protective foods. It is basically the same diet. Nothing is changed except the calories.

If you are overweight, your calories have been too high. You have taken so many fats, sugars and starches that there has been a calorie surplus which has been stored as adipose tissue. But many of the protective elements cannot be stored. They must be furnished in the three meals a day.

Overweight—Undernourished

Many an overweight is not well nourished. Hard as it is to realize, you can easily get too many calories without getting enough of the protective elements. Even though it causes you to put on weight, this is a poor diet. The deficiency may not be so acute as to result in actual illness, but it takes its toll in chronic fatigue and lowered vitality.

As a rule, the overweight favors a diet that is high in calories and low in the protective foods. Besides, the stored fat is a liability in itself—it is a load you have to carry and it doesn't pay the freight. In view of these facts, a campaign to cut down national overweight would be in the interests of public health.

You can reduce your weight liability on nutritionally better menus than you have been accustomed to following so there is no object in shifting to a faddy, inadequate reducing diet.

Recent surveys show the nation's need for a 10 to 20 per cent increase in the use of milk (the balanced reducer's diet specifies two glasses of skim milk or buttermilk daily, or one glass of skim milk plus a serving of cheese); from 25 to 70 per cent more tomatoes and citrus fruits; about 100 per cent more green, leafy and yellow vegetables.

Based on Dairy Products

The balanced reducer's diet is based on dairy products—milk, eggs, cheese and butter; lean meat, fish or fowl fresh fruits and vegetables, and whole grains. These protective foods can be included in adequate amounts within the 1,000 to 1,200 calorie limit per day. You can lose between one and two pounds each week on a diet that has been given Uncle Sam's approval.

To be sure that you are getting your rightful share of the essential protective elements, "Count Your Vitamins" with the aid of Ida Jean Kain's new chart of this name. In writing for the chart, please inclose a large stamped return envelope and send to the Promotion Dept., Room 600.

Summer Black Makes Its Debut

Summer black, the perennial uniform of smart cosmopolites, is appearing earlier this season than ever before. It may be the weather or conditions in general—but whatever the cause, it's here and more distinctive than ever. Above is shown a sheer black crepe frock of duPont rayon in a youthful summer mode with a high V-neckline and cape-like sleeves. It is an ideal warm-weather outfit and is suitable for almost any daytime occasion

Contract Bridge

When you're getting to bid six you have to watch out for psychic bidders; they'll confuse you if they can. Even tournament champions are not above becoming muddled when a slick bluff bidder goes to work. Note today's hand, played at a national championship, on which Dr. Henry Vogel kept his opponents from reaching a slam at spades by bidding the suit, and so addled became the declared when he realized his loss that he went down at his five-heart contract. Mrs. Donald B. Tansill, Regency Club player, was the doctor's partner.

Dr. Vogel opened the club king, which lost to dummy's ace. Declared played one round of hearts, winning the ace, and then planned to enter dummy again to try the trump finesse. He was afraid to lead spades for fear West or East might ruff, so he decided to lead two rounds of diamonds, entering the dummy with the second. Dr. Vogel won the diamond ace, played the club queen, which declarer trumped, and then spoiled North's plans by ruffing the second diamond lead. A low spade put declarer where he wished to be, but now he was not so sure he wanted to finesse. He played a heart; Mrs. Tansill quickly followed with a low card, and after a little hesitation, declarer, who was unhappy about the whole thing, went up with his king. The queen failed to fall, and this card, with the diamond ace and the ruff, defeated him one trick.

Six hearts can be made with a successful trump finesse, but six spades is the safer contract; the heart queen can then be trumped.

As a defender of a slam you have to be just as careful on these bluff bidders, else they will fool you out of making the best or, in some cases, the setting lead.

Such Lovely Things!

"Have you been in the dining room yet?"

"No, I simply can't tear myself away from these marvelous Russian chalices."

"I'm absolutely mad about those old Spanish shawls! I wonder if Mabel's seen them?"

"I don't know. She's gone completely insane over that Flemish glassware. You know how mad she is about crystal——"

"Say, look! For heaven's sake, look!"

"What?"

"Those miniatures! They're studded with diamonds!"

"No! . . . Why . . . why they really are! Mabel! Mabel! . . . Where IS Mabel?"

"Out there mooning over those porcelain animals. Mabel! Come here quick! . . . Yes, come see these miniatures! They're studded with diamonds!"

"It's no use. You can't do anything with her. She's simply unmanageable when she gets around china . . . Say, have you seen the photographs?"

"No, who are they of?"

"Oh, kings and queens . . . and prizefighters—all sorts of wonderful people. And they're in hand-carved quartz frames! . . . and sterling silver——"

"No, I can't bear it!"

"I wonder if Mabel's seen them. She'll simply go wild—Oh, how do you do, Mrs. Husk? . . . The Chinese things? . . . No, I haven't . . . Not REAL jade! . . . In the Oriental room? Oh, thank you so much. Say, did you hear what she said? . . . Oh, Mabel!"

"Honestly, did you ever see anything as lovely in your life as those Persian tapestries? They simply leave me speechless!"

"Me too! And those teakwood cigarette boxes! Really, I don't see how Mrs. Plush can bear to live among all this beauty. I would simply collapse."

"So would I——Oh, how do you do, Mrs. Minch? . . . Yes, isn't it all unspeakably lovely? . . . Yes, I've always been mad about everything Chinese—what? . . . Chiang Kai-shek? No, I don't believe I know his dynasty—what? . . . Oh, yes indeed, I think we really should help China—oh, say, here's the jade collection we were looking for! Mrs. Minch did you know that was REAL jade?"

"Let's go in this room—oh, say, THERE'S the Crown Derby china! Where's Mabel? She'll simply lose her mind when she sees this!"

"I wish you'd look at that perfectly fascinating old hand-hammered Colonial silver!"

"Yes. Wasn't it wonderful what they could do in those old days—Oh, how do you do, Mrs. Ramble? . . . the garden? . . . No, we haven't . . . What? . . . Not African daisies! How wonderful! Well, no, we couldn't right now We simply can't tear ourselves away from this priceless old silver"

"Say, I've found the ivories!"

"No!"

"Yes! Right in this alcove! See—there's Czar Nicholas himself—all carved in ivory!"

"I can't believe it! Where's Mabel?"

"Oh, say, here's some Egyptian things. They must be millions of years old!"

"I'm mad about Egyptian things—Oh, how do you do, Mrs. Flitter . . . Yes, aren't they beautiful? . . . Yes, from Egypt. What? . . . The Egyptian campaign? . . . What about Gen. Weygand—wait! Did you ever see anything as wonderful in your life as that Italian marble console?"

"Say, we'd better get on to the dining room or we'll miss the Belgian laces."

"I know, but we must find Mabel. She'd simply die if she didn't see this console.—Oh, how do you do, Mrs. Earnest? . . . Yes, the view is lovely. Yes, it is nice to get away from it all . . . The strikes? . . . Yes, they are too bad . . . You hear what—oh, wait! There's Mabel! Mabel! Mabel! Come here quick! . . . Yes, and see this perfectly marvelous Italian marble console."

Mary Haworth's Mail

Parents Wanting Vacation Apart From Children Are Advised by Experienced Mother to Leave Them at Home, in Charge of Trustworthy Woman

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Why did you stop in the middle, so to speak, of your advice to the young mother who wishes to have a vacation away from her 2-year-old son? (I am referring to your column of June 12.) She wants to know some safe place to leave the child, while she and her husband go away to the mountains for a week or two. You say there are no such "organizations" here, and suggest that she take him along, in care of a practical nurse, who would have full charge of him for the duration of the holiday.

Your suggestion of getting a competent older woman to look after him is excellent. But the easiest, cheapest and wisest arrangement is to leave the practical nurse at home with the child,—in the parents' home, I mean. Small children are definitely happiest and most easily cared for right in their own home. I have been married for 15 years and have four children. My husband and I have always managed some yearly "escape,"—two or three days at first, and now two weeks annually,—by leaving the children at home in safe hands. When routine is maintained in familiar surroundings, children thrive and are happy in their parents' absence.

A friend of mine, more fearful than I, has her parents, as well as a nurse-housekeeper, come to stay with her children when she goes off on vacation. There are numerous older women, often grandmothers in their own right, who are eager to find this type of employment.

A. C. R.

Sound Suggestion, If Negotiable

DEAR A. C. R.: Your suggestion is an improvement upon mine, perhaps;—providing the parents can find an absolutely trustworthy woman, willing to take 24-hour-a-day care of the child, during the week or two weeks they would be away from him.

As a matter of fact, another correspondent feels as you do,—that the child should be left at home, if the parents are to have a real holiday. She says, "A child of 2 wants to cling to his mother when she is around, and it would be particularly true in this case, if the child went with his parents to the mountains and was left to his own devices with a new nursemaid. He would feel lost in the new surroundings, unacquainted with the nurse, and inconsolably anxious out of sight of his parents." While I don't agree entirely with this statement,—knowing that a healthy, intelligently reared and hence happy child never "clings" to his parents,—I concede there is logic in her viewpoint.

"Constant Reader," whose request for advice precipitated this discussion, may be interested to know that nine women have volunteered since her letter was published) to care for her son in her absence. Seven offered to "board" him; one would care for him in his home; and the ninth wants him as a guest for her 2-year-old son, who is rather lonely for contemporary-age companionship.

Government Employe Wants Budget Advice

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Could you send me a budget for average, unmarried girl Government employe, who is living away from home? I realize I haven't specified my salary; but what I want is a budget system based on percentage disbursements of a dollar. Thank you in advance.

D. R. B.

Get Uncle Sam's Leaflets on Subject

DEAR D. R. B.: The Bureau of Home Economics of the Department of Agriculture knows a lot about budgeting and makes its information available to the public in leaflet and booklet form. There is, for instance, Bulletin 1553-F, on "Planning and Recording Family Expenditures." Also, Bulletin MP 324, on "Factors to Be Considered in Preparing Minimum Wage Budgets for Women"—which is now obtainable from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, for 15 cents. This bulletin gives special attention to women's wardrobe needs.

When living away from home, expenditure for food demands intelligent management, — and Bulletin S D 1757, on "Diets to Fit the Family Income" (issued free by the Bureau of Home Economics) contains helpful pointers. Women in the higher-than-minimum income bracket (say, those earning between $1,500 and $2,000 annually) could read with profit the Bureau's mimeographed treatise on "How Professional Women Spend Their Money."

This column has never undertaken to plan budgets for either individuals or families—but with the help of these bulletins (which a trained economist has specially recommended for you) you should be able to draft the best possible budget for yourself.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Maple Sugar Hint

There's more to maple sugar than candy. Bette Davis, who is New England enough to appreciate that pure maple flavor, suggests its use for sweetening practically any favorite dish. You can, for instance, add cinnamon to maple sugar and use the mixture for cinnamon toast. Also try mixing it with granulated sugar, using it to sweeten fresh fruit or any cereal, fruit pies or puddings.

Methodists Assume New Pulpits Here

Methodist congregations of Washington and Maryland yesterday greeted new pastors, as the recent Baltimore Conference assignments of last Sunday night became effective.

As they were formally presented to congregations by lay leaders, the clergymen called for continued loyalty from their new flocks, and pledged to carry on in their new fields of endeavor.

In his sermon debut at Emory Methodist Church, Dr. Edgar C. Beery said, "Christ still has the answer to man's problems, and He is evident in the world today in spite of war and other crises."

Seated in the congregation was Dr. Beery's mother, Mrs. S. P. Beery. His father, who until his illness of six months ago was long-time teacher of the Box Bible Class at Emory, was unable to attend. Dr. Beery recently finished his six-year term as superintendent of the East Washington Methodist District. Dr. Horace E. Cromer, Emor pastor, succeeded him.

Preaching his inaugural sermon as pastor of Metropolitan Methodist Church, the Rev. Edward G. Latch proposed the Christian way of life as a challenge to the world, saying:

"We must keep our minds and hearts surrendered to God and then challenge the world with our Christian living."

Mr. Latch was pastor of Chevy Chase Methodist Church, whose new minister is the Rev. C. H. Richmond, formerly of Baltimore.

Worshipers at Brightwood Methodist Church heard the Rev. Robert K. Nevitt say the world must follow the designs of "the Master Builder" if it is to avoid a collapse of its moral structure. Mr. Nevitt, who is former pastor of Mount Rainier Methodist Church, was introduced by D. Stewart Patterson, lay leader of the Baltimore Conference and also of Brightwood Church.

The Rev. George Bennett, Lincoln Road; the Rev. S. K. Cockrell, Union; the Rev. Chesteen Smith, Marvin; the Rev. Samuel E. Rose, Waugh; the Rev. Charles Phillips, McKendree; the Rev. W. Pierpont, St. Paul's; the Rev. L. S. Rudisill, Gorsuch; the Rev. E. A. Wilcher, North Carolina Avenue; the Rev. C. E. Wise, Wesley; the Rev. C. C. Day, Wilson Memorial; the Rev. Arthur C. Day, Mount Tabor.

700 Attend Rites as Archbishop Curley Blesses New $190,000 Church, School, Convent Edifice

OUR LADY OF LOURDES—Archbishop Michael J. Curley yesterday blessed the new church and school of Our Lady of Lourdes on the East-West Highway, Bethesda. Participating clergymen and others are shown with the archbishop

With nearly 700 persons in attendance, the Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, Archbishop of Baltimore and Washington, yesterday afternoon blessed the new church, convent and school building of Our Lady of Lourdes Parish, East-West Highway, Bethesda, Md.

Archbishop Curley expressed pleasure at construction of the building, which cost $190,000, and particularly of the convent, which will house the Sisters of St. Francis. He praised the work of the Rev. Joseph A. Little, the pastor, and his staff.

Honor guard for the archbishop was composed of members of the Holy Name Society, whose president is Charles E. Corcoran.

The Rev. Joseph Buckley, of St. Francis Xavier Parish, preached the sermon on "The Value of Catholic Education." By maintaining its own schools the church saves the Government a great deal in educational expenditures, Father Buckley declared.

Solemn benediction was pronounced by the archbishop, with the assistance of the Right Rev. Joseph Nelligan, chancellor of the archdiocese; the Rev. Cornelius Gargan, of Georgetown Preparatory School, and the Rev. Joseph Leary.

Although the church is already in use, the school and convent will not be opened until September. The architect was Hamilton Wilson. T. Calvin Owens, of Bethesda, was the builder.

'Blackface' Gangster Flees Jail

Thomas English, 28, one-time member of Washington's "Blackfaced Gang," walked off from a work detail at Occoquan workhouse last Wednesday, eluded a searching party of officers and continues at large, officials disclosed yesterday.

English first was seen moving toward the Richmond Highway from the prison, then doubled off into woods. Pursuing officers from the prison lost his trace almost immediately. A lookout for him was given Washington detectives at the roll call Saturday night.

The so-called "Blackfaced Gang" had its heydey here in 1935 before being smashed by police. Escape of English recalled episodes police marked as ended on October 23, 1935, when detectives returned here from Detroit with Edward J. Fitzpatrick and Vivian Marie Jenkins, last members of the gang to be caught.

The 24-year-old man and 19-year-old girl were taken in Detroit after fleeing Washington when Morris C. Beck, leader of the gang and sweetheart of Miss Jenkins was shot on October 6, 1935. Police had identified the gang in more than a score of robberies of liquor stores, restaurants and filling stations. Their depredations were started in August, 1935 and obtained more than $2,500 in loot.

English in 1935 was sentenced to serve three to seven years for robbery

U. S. Should Mediate War, Dr. Jones Says

Dr. E. Stanley Jones, famed missionary to India and leader of the National Christian Mission here last February, yesterday urged here that America take the roll of mediator in the world crisis.

He addressed more than 1,200 people in the morning at Calvary Methodist Church, and more than 400 in the afternoon at the Woodrow Wilson High School's baccalaureate service at the Washington Cathedral.

Sees Three Choices

The choices which America faces, he said, are:

Isolationism, bringing possible security for us ;entry into the war, with a possibility that we may become the greatest military power in the world; or sacrifice of our life to reconstruct the world.

Dr. Jones suggested seven steps for America to take in the present situation. They were:

Give equal opportunity to everyone within our own borders; equal opportunity to all to come to our shores; redistribution of world's raw materials; restoration of land opportunities; freedom and unhampered opportunity be given all subjected peoples to choose their own destinies; opportunity to enter a federated union having the limitations of national sovereignity; cancellation of all debts owed us by other countries.

World Distribute Gold

In conclusion, he urged that America place at the disposal of the proposed federated union all gold in her vaults, providing it is used for world reconstruction on the basis of need.

Dr. Jones, in his Cathedral message, deplored the fact that youth is "facing a war which it had no part in bringing about."

"My generation has little of which it may be proud," he told the graduates, "although we can at least offer you the life of Christ as an example for all young people."

Day Urges Probe Of 'Union Now'

Representative Day (Republican), of Illinois, urged the House Committee investigating un-American activities last night to inquire into the movement for "union now" with Great Britain.

In a letter to Chairman Dies (Democrat), of Texas, of the committee, Day termed the movement "un-American" on the ground that it was "carrying on an extensive campaign of propaganda to induce the American people to abandon their form of Government under the Constitution."

At the same time, Day declared in a radio address that "Lord Halifax has been sent here to put this deal over."

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

'Working Gal' Letter Found Propaganda

A neat bit of Communistic propaganda has been discovered in a Federal agency where some employes are suspected of being Communists or sympathetic to their cause. Apparently it is the hope of Communists that the "party-liners" will be inspired to write the President and protest against war, the defense program and high living costs after reading the propaganda sheet. The letter is addressed to President Roosevelt and it's signed by "a working gal." It says in part: "The Communists, as far as I can see, have been trying to keep us out of war and get us better working and living conditions. At least in my union, the Communists seem to be the ones who do the job best."

The "gal" goes on to say that she might join the Communist Party. She says that she'll continue to read the Daily Worker "and get the truth out of the news." She invites the President to read the Communist publication and she lists the places in Washington where it can be bought. The "gal" also wants Representative Dies investigated.

A fight will be made in the Senate against the House provision in the 1942 relief bill that would prevent employes paid from emergency funds in Treasury, GAO, CAA, Employes Compensation Commission among other agencies, from being covered under Civil Service. The House rider also bans Civil Service for WPA 20,000 administrative employes. Several Senators are understood to have promised to make the fight and that's why the provision was permitted to pass in the House without a scrap.

UFWA has called a conference of representatives of its 40 WPA and NYA locals here to protest against the patronage riders. . . . Thirty-three high ranking young engineers will report for work today at REA. . . . Civil Service tests for mineral economists, cylinder pressmen at GPO, gardener at Fort Belvoir, and assistant agricultural aid at Beltsville have been announced.

They claim they are compelled to work nights, Saturdays and Sundays.

David Meeker, former Special Assistant to the Agriculture Secretary, has been appointed assistant director of the Office of Agricultural Defense Relations. Former Gov. Townsend of Indiana, is director, and his special assistant is Tris Coffin, former Indiana newspaperman. Robert Shields, AAA solicitor, has succeeded Meeker in the secretary's office. The defense office, now a bureau in Agriculture, probably will be divided into four divisions. It will use AAA to stimulate production of farm products to feed Britain, another division will be set up to supply farm labor, transportation and storage of farm products will be the job of another division, and the job of keeping the farm fitted with supplies and equipment will be the task of the fourth division.

PWA would be given new life by a bill passed by the Senate which authorizes an appropriation of $150,000,000 to construct sewers, water mains, hospitals, and schools in defense areas. Now Congress must appropriate the money. PWA will get it when that's done and furloughed PWA employes will be called back to work. . . . Jerry Kluttz will be the guest of Carl Berger on his "Your Government and Mine" program which can be heard over WINX tonight at 8:30.

Representative Taber of New York claims WPA administrative employes here are paid an average of $2,436 which he says is "one of the very largest of any institution in the Government . . . and upward of $400 above what the average is for other Governmental outfits." . . . For the first time in five years FCC's 770 employes will meet outside the new Postoffice Building. A reception and dance will be held Friday at the Shoreham. Arrangements are in the hands of Janet Fisher, Pauline Edlin, Robert Seaks, and N. F. Cureton.

Three Killed, 19 Injured In Traffic

Rain, Sweeping Roads, Blamed; Mother, Son Among Crash Fatalities

Three persons were dead and 18 injured yesterday as rain-slicked roads sent autos skidding in Washington and nearby areas.

Killed when two autos crashed on Route 1 near Perry Hall, Md., northeast of Baltimore, were, according to Maryland State Police, Mrs. Elma Creel, Mrs. C. P. Bailey, and her son, Guy Bailey, 27, all of Auburn, Ga.

Eleven-year-old Kay Bailey, of Kingsville, Md., granddaughter of the dead woman and niece of Guy Bailey, the other passenger of the auto in which the three died, was reported in a serious condition at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore last night.

Injured in the other auto were Anthony Volp, 26, and his wife, Doris, 19, of Mapleshade, N. J.

Seven persons were injured last night when an auto police said was driven by Paul L. Kirby, assistant director of the District Board of Public Welfare, collided with an auto operated by Belvin W. Weakley, 3822 North Seventh Street, Arlington, Va., on the Leonardtown Pike near Mechanicsville, Md.

Treated at the Leonardtown Hospital were Mrs. Kirby, Miss Caroline Mason, 1517 First Street Northwest; Mrs. E. C. Stillwell, Baltimore; Mrs. Roger L. Motten and Mrs. Eva Dunstan, both of Hartford, Conn. The two drivers were not injured seriously, hospital authorities said.

Mrs. Irene O'Keefe of 4500 Sixteenth Street Northwest, received a fractured left arm early yesterday afternoon when a car driven by her husband, Dr. James A. O'Keefe, collided with an auto police said was operated by Joseph Henry Jenifer of Charlotte Hall, Md., at Camp Springs on Route 5 in Prince Georges County. She was taken to Providence Hospital.

Seven other persons were injured, none seriously, in a three-car crash three miles south of Frederick, Md., on Route 240. According to State police, Francis Wagner, his wife and small daughter, all of Frederick, were riding in one car and a group of Pennsylvanians in two other cars going in the opposite direction.

The Wagner child opened the door and the father lunged to catch her, losing control and driving into the path of the Pennsylvania cars, police said. The Wagners and four Pennsylvanians were taken to Frederick City Hospital.

Th body of Charles W. Holmes, of near Rohrersville, Washington County, Md., was found yesterday in his wrecked automobile about 6 miles from Boonesboro, Md. The car apparently had gone over a bank in the night and was covered over with leaves and tree foliage so that it was not visible from the road, Maryland State Police at Frederick, said.

D. C. Man Hurt

A Washington man on his way to a beach outing on the Chesapeake Bay near Solomons Island was injured early yesterday afternoon when he stepped from a parked automobile into the path of an oncoming car at Wells Corner and Hills Bridge, Upper Marlboro, Md.

The victim, Lewis Whirle, 35, of 442 Emerson Street Northwest, suffered a broken leg. He was taken to Gallinger Hospital by the Marlboro Rescue Squad.

Robert V. Gary, of 2303 Leslie Avenue, Alexandria, was reported driver of the car which struck Whirle.

Two colored persons were involved in a second collision yesterday when they were being taken to Freedmen's Hospital by the driver of an auto who had struck them at New Jersey Avenue and H Street Northwest. They were Herbret Payne, 39, and Lillian Ellerbee, 27.

The driver of the auto in the two accidents was James Haynesworth, 25, colored, 1814 Eighth Street Northwest. His second collision occurred at First and P Streets Streets Northwest when he struck an auto police said was operaed by Henry L. Lacoste, 20, of 2013 New York Avenue Northwest.

Randolph Assails Subversion in Flag Day Talk

Parade Precedes Meeting Sponsored By Elks; Rev. Phillips Gives Invocation

Representative Jennings Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia, condemning subversive influences, said yesterday that "we will see that men and women working in Government and industry are Americans through and through."

Often interrupted by applause in his address to the Washington Lodge of Elks' Flag Day program in the Sylvan Theater, Randolph charged that 150 workers from Government agencies attended a New York meeting and sat in conferences "aimed at undermining all we hold dear."

The time has come, he asserted, for Americans to "ferret out" influences which spread discord. Harry Bridges' telegram to the North American airplane plant strikers to "carry on," as Randolph described it, was mentioned. At that moment a loud voice from the audience called out:

"Then why don't you deport him?"

Assails "Complacency"

Randolph apparently did not hear the exclamation. But a few minutes later he said: "We should have deported Harry Bridges long ago, long ago, long ago." He said there is no place in America for those who don't believe in what we are doing." No longer, he said, "can complacency be allowed."

While recommending deportation for Bridges, he urged similar action also be taken with other aliens who won't become citizens of the country. He said he could not understand why any labor organization would permit a man, not a citizen, to attain a key position. This sort of procedure, he predicted, "cannot go on long in this country."

Parade Precedes Session

The meeting, threatened at the outset by rain, was preceded by a parade the line forming at Ninth and H Streets, Northwest, and proceeding to the Sylvan Theater. Included were the American Legion, its guard of honor and auxiliary; Americanization School Association, Boy and Girl Scouts, Catholic War Veterans, Disabled American Veterans, Jewish War Veterans, Job's Daughters, Knights of Columbus, Knights of Pythias, Military Order of the Cootie, Military Orders of the World War, Odd Fellows and auxiliary, Spanish War Veterans, Veterans of Foreign Wars and auxiliary, Royal Arcanum, Veterans Club, Inc., and Patriarchs Militant.

A history of the flag was given by Sefton Darr, former president, District Bar Association; the invocation was made by the Rev. ZeBarney Phillips, chaplain of the Senate; Allen J. Duvall, exalted ruler of the Elks, presided. The national anthem was sung by Miss Marjorie Brett, accompanied by the Elks' Boys Band, James L. Kidwell, directing.

Man Drowns, Girl Rescued In Boat Mishap

A 24-year-old Pennsylvania man was drowned, and his companion, Miss Frances Buck, 22, of 2902 Dumbarton Avenue Northwest, was rescued when their canoe overturned in a whirlpool near Chain Bridge yesterday.

Harbor police attempted to drag the Potomac for the body of Gerald Gregg, 24, of South Langhorn, Pa., who had come to Washington for a week-end visit. But they found the waters too swollen to begin dragging operations.

Miss Buck is a secretary with the World-Wide Branch of the Y. W. C. A.

Miss Buck told police that they had gone in their canoe above Chain Bridge, and returning, shot the rapids successfully. Then their canoe caught in a whirlpool, overturning and sending them both into the river.

Miss Buck said that she was under water when she felt the canoe glide past above her. She grabbed it and managed to clamber aboard.

Twice, said Miss Buck, she saw Gregg's head above water. The first time, she said, he was close behind her, and holding on to his canoe paddle. The second time, she saw him some distance back, from the canoe, and he was too far away to reach.

Miss Buck said that she floated down stream from the point the canoe overturned to near the Key Bridge, when two men came out in a canoe and took her in with them to shore, pulling her canoe in too.

She said that Gregg was a farmer in Pennsylvania, and the son of Dr. Edward Gregg, a Waterbury, Conn., minister.

William E. Wood, jr., 16, of Baltimore, Md., was drowned yesterday afternoon while swimming in Stony Creek at Lombardy Beach, Md. Anne Arundel police said the boy was stricken with cramps after entering the water too soon after eating.

Big Detectives Find Boy, 3, Too Tough to Handle

A 3-year-old child upset the dignity of the new Municipal Building yesterday after he had strayed from his home, 415 Sixth Street Northwest.

The child, Peter Dale, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Dale, was found toddling aimlessly at Fifth and E Streets Northwest, by a man who took him to police headquarters, a short distance away.

Peter didn't like his surroundings and he started to bawl. His screams echoed through the long corridors of the building, reaching the ears of scores of detectives who were at roll call.

The detectives, many of them ostensibly impervious to sentiment, tried to assuage Peter. They bought him ice cream. But still Peter bawled. They let him play with their blackjacks and gushed baby talk to him but to no avail. In desperation, they took him to the Receiving Home.

Motorman Is Robbed of $126 In Daylight Streetcar Holdup

A streetcar motorman was held up while operating his car in daylight yesterday at Upshur and Fifth Streets Northwest, and robbed of $126.

Benjamin Loeffler, 50, 647 Main Avenue Southwest, told police that a colored man pressed an object against his back and demanded his money.

Loeffler said the man got on his car earlier and waited until the other passengers had left before attempting the holdup.

Sidney Wolf, a liquor store proprietor at 81 Florida Avenue Northeast, was held up Saturday night and robbed of $45.

Wolf told police two colored men entered his establishment, pointed pistols at him and demanded that he turn his face to the wall. He did so, he said, and they fled after rifling the till.

Allen Masters, 28, 1739 P Street Northwest, reported to police that he was robbed at pistol point of $30 and a watch at Ninth and Q Streets Northwest, after being beaten by five colored men Saturday night.

Masters said he had been followed by two colored men and when they reached the street intersection, they were joined by three others. When he resisted, he said, the men beat and choked him and then took his money, and watch.

Gas Company Man, Father of 4, Is Dead; One Victim Believed Fugitive From Law

One man was dead, another lay near death in Emergency Hospital last night, and four others were treated at Washington hospitals as the result of gunshot wounds over the weekend.

Dead was Robert Muir, 36-year-old Gas company employe and father of four children, of 68 Allison Street Northeast.

Close to death in Emergency was a 35-year-old Washington man, James Maylone.

Jack Mathey, 56, 822 B Street Northeast.

Freddie Baxter, colored, 21, of 1525 Fifth Street Northwest.

Leroy Darby, colored, 25, of 1128 Reeves Court Northwest.

A 40-year-old man, of Atkinson, N. C.

Muir was shot through the head by a 38-caliber revolver belonging to Michael Sternik, 29, of 2125 H Street Northwest, a guard at the Washington Gas Light Co. Sternik told police that Muir grabbed the gun from him and shot twice, the first shot going wild. The wounded man died at 11:15 a. m. in Emergency Hospital.

Detective Lieut. George H. Darnall, chief of the Police Homicide Squad, said that Muir had been at home until around 8 p. m. Saturday night.

He went out then, Darnall reported, and returned about 4 a. m., telling his wife, Mrs. Mary Muir, that he had been sitting in the car. He made some coffee in the kitchen, and about 4:30 a. m. went out again.

Darnall said he showed up at the Gas Light Building in the 700 block of New Hampshire Avenue Northwest, and spoke briefly with another employe, Elmer Crabbe, of 216 Twenty-first Street Northeast. According to Darnall, Muir told Crabbe that he had come to work early, then went and filled a milk bottle with water, and went back outside.

There Muir was sitting in his car, with the door open, when Sternik saw him and asked what he was doing there so early. Muir replied that he always came to work early, then grabbed Sternik's gun and fired twice.

Acting Coroner C. J. Murphy said that he was awaiting further police investigation before issuing a certificate.

Talked of Suicide

Malone was rushed to Emergency Hospital, after he was shot twice through the chest in an alley near the corner of Thirteenth and N Streets.

Two acquaintances, William Chase, of 1307 Twelfth Street Northwest, and Joseph A. Mason, of 1214 N Street Northwest, told police they had been with the man most of the day, and had attempted to argue his out of a plan to shoot himself.

Shot in a Fight

Mathey was struck in the right leg by a shell splinter which ricochetted after a police private, Paul H. Clarke, of the first precinct, fired one shot to stop a 25-year-old white man fleeing arrest in the 40 block of G Street Northwest. Mathey was treated at Casualty, and later sent home.

Baxter was treated at Freedmen's for a wound in the leg, after he was shot during a fight in the 1000 block of O Street Northwest. He was sent home after treatment.

Carry Through, Graduates Told

The greatest need of the hour is the lifting of personal aspirations and living with the firm belief that God is always with us, the Rev. William M. Vincent said yesterday at the Eastern High School graduating classs' baccalaureate service. It was held at the Eastern Presbyterian Church, Sixth Street and Maryland Avenue Northeast.

"My definition of character is the ability to see things through," he declared, instructing the graduates to face issues squarely as they go forth to find their places in life. His theme was "Shooting at Life."

An offertory duet, "The Lord Is My Shepherd," was presented by Miss Patricia Comingore and Miss Mary Spielman, accompanied by Miss Virginia Nalls at the piano.

Two hundred and twelve graduates were present. They represented a little more than half of Eastern's 421 graduates, one of the largest classes in the history of the school, which dates to 1891.

Representing Eastern's faculty were Nathaniel A. Danosky, assistant principal; Miss Katherine C. Moore, in charge of the graduating ceremonies, and Miss Mary M. Watts, former assistant principal, who retired in 1939.

D. C. Baptists Dedicate New Bible School

Dr. Johnson Urges Religious Training Campaign as Aid To Democracy

A campaign of Christian education was urged as the best guarantee of democracy by two nationally prominent clergymen as the National Baptist Memorial Church yesterday dedicated its new $132,000 Bible schoolhouse, at Sixteenth Street and Columbia Road.

Dr. Gove G. Johnson, pastor of the church, said that "upward of half" the total cost of the new building was financed by "one generous giver who prefers not to have his name mentioned."

Dr. Luther Wesley Smith, executive secretary of the American Baptist Convention, advised the morning worshipers that the crisis faced by the United States and other democracies is due to the "crisis faced by Christianity the world around."

"Our schools and churches have not grown with our country," asserted Dr. Smith. "Compared with 76 per cent of all young poeple attending church schools in 1922, only 48 per cent are in attendance today. Of 31,000,000 school children, 17,000,000—Catholic, Protestant and Jewish—receive no religious education.

At this rate, how long will it be before our country becomes pagan?" he asked.

Nazi Germany was built by an intensive propaganda campaign among German young people, Dr. Smith said. "Hitler youth leaders reached every youth in every block in every city and every town every week," he said.

"The best preparation we can make for whatever is ahead is by living within Christ," Dr. Thomas Luther Holcomb, executive secretary of the Baptist Sunday School Board of the Southern Baptist Convention, said at the evening service.

The school addition was first planned four years ago and was built by the contributions of church members. E. H. DeGroot, jr., is chairman of the general building committee, J. A. Jones, secretary, and Henry A. Magnuson, chairman inn charge of architecture.

Fr. Elmer Taylor Celebrates First Solemn High Mass

The Rev. Elmer Taylor, recently ordained to the priesthood, yesterday celebrated his first solemn high mass at St. Patrick's, Tenth and G Streets Northwest, his boyhood parish.

Assisting in the services were the Very Rev. Lawrence J. Shehan, the Rev. Thomas B. Dade, and the Rev. John L. Bailey, all of St. Patrick's.

The dignity, permanence and stability of the priesthood were stressed by Dr. John K. Cartwright in his sermon. He is rector of the Church of the Immaculate Conception.

Father Taylor will become assisting priest at the Shrine of the Sacred Heart, at Mount Washington, Md., on June 27.

Alfred Lunt Will Direct Helen Hayes' New Play

Accepts Invitation to Stage Anderson Work; Churches Plan to Present Biblical Films; Short Takes and Gossip of Amusements

ALFRED LUNT, at present vacationing with his wife, Lynn Fontanne, at their Genesee Depot, Wis., home, has communicated to the Theater Guild his acceptance of their and the Playwrights Company's invitation to direct Maxwell Anderson's new play, "Candle in the Wind," in which Washington's Helen Hayes will be starred. . . . The two producing units, as in the case of "There Shall Be No Night," are pooling their resources in bringing the new Anderson work to the stage. . . . Rehearsals will start with Mr. Lunt's arrival in New York in mid-August. . . . Ray Bell—no relation—formerly of the Loew interests in Washington and now with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer in New York, writes that Carey Wilson, that prodigious worker who makes short subjects and supervises the Hardy and Dr. Kildare pictures for M.-G.-M., was discernible along Broadway last week and may be in Washington this . . . "We talked of Red Skelton the other day and Wilson thinks it only a matter of time when Red will be listed among the screen's top comics. He's progressing beautifully." . . . Then, a day or two later, a card from Ray, postmarked Rochester, N. Y., saying "Living across the street from Seneca Park and resting so hard I ache with laziness." . . . Probably in Shanghai by now. . . . "Fantasia" enters its sixth and final week today at the National Theater. . . . Anyone who lets it get away stands in need of psychiatric attention.

A project is afoot to present motion pictures based on Biblical subjects in the churches of the country on Sabbath evenings. Ministers of Washington, and nearby Virginia and Maryland, church officials and Sunday School superintendents, and their wives, packed Foundry Methodist Episcopal Church on Friday night to witness a preview screening of the first of 52 releases to be available one a week. The picture shown on this occasion portrayed the birth of Christ. Addresses were made by Daniel C. Roper, former Secretary of Commerce and United States Minister to Canada; Charles Anson Bond, president of Biblical Photo Plays, and Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, pastor of Foundry, who presided, all lauding the new enterprise as of great value in quickening interest in the greatest of all books.

A "Sleeper" Coming to F Street

If the grapevine isn't too twisted, a surprise film is coming to the screen at Loew's Capitol on Thursday, in the Twentieth Century-Fox production of "Man Hunt." . . . Based on "Rogue Male," Geoffrey Household best-seller, the film concerns a big game hunter who looks through the sights of his rifle at the world's most hated man. . . . High adventure, mystery, suspense and gooseflesh is what everybody who has seen it says. . . . "Crazy With the Heat" will be on the stage, getting here in June, instead of July, after all. . . . That "Apple Blossom" business was so successful a year ago that the Earle Roxyettes will present their second annual perfume number, come Friday . . . Helena Rubenstein's "Heaven Scent" will be squirted into every nook and cranny of the Earle through the ventilating system, in conjunction with a special stage concoction Harry Anger now has in his test tubes. . . . When the Roadside Theater opens its season tonight with "The Mountain Limited," the resourceful Betty Gray again will be at the piano with a de luxe musical accompaniment she has dug out of the song hits of the '80's and '90's. . . . As high as 11 to 10 that "She'll Be Comin' 'Round the Mountain" will be in there somewhere.

Chantecler has regained his voice—if that is what it is. After having used a silent, streamlined rooster in shadowy form on its main title for eight years, Pathe News has reverted to a crowing barnyard fowl, to be heard for the first time when Issue No. 84 is unspooled for RKO-Radio conventioneers in session at the Waldorf Astoria, in New York, this week. Henceforth the cock-a-doodle-doo will be heard around what is left of the civilized world via the daddy of the newsreels, now in its thirty-first year. The original trademark rooster was adopted by Pathe Freres, in Paris, to typify aggressiveness—like ringing doorbells in the middle of the night!

Columbia Is Up and at 'Em

Private preview report from an old friend, who snuck out to Chicago to see them, brings word that Columbia has six knock-out pictures on the way, in "You'll Never Get Rich," costarring Fred Astaire and Rita Hayworth; "Heaven Can Wait," with Robert Montgomery and Claude Rains; Gregory Ratoff's "Woman of Desire," starring Loretta Young; Ida Lupino, Louis Hayward and Elsa Lanchester in "Ladies in Retirement;" "Our Wife," with Melvyn Douglas, Ruth Hussey and Charles Coburn, described as "the laugh hit of the season," and Barbara Stanwyck and Henry Fonda in "You Belong to Me." . . . Well, what are we waiting for? . . . The Hiser Theater, Bethesda, Md., is still bearing down on British films. . . . Margaret Lockwood in "The Girl in the News" will be on its screen for four days, beginning Wednesday . . . The Variety Club is pitching its first "Indoor Carnival" in the clubrooms tonight. . . . Prizes, peanuts, popcorn and hot dogs, plus air-conditioning—something you don't get out on the lot.

Vital News Is Fully Covered At Trans-Lux

This strike situation on defense work certainly faces an all-out blackout, if the pictures at the Trans-Lux Theater for the current week are any basis for judgment. The outstanding shots are those at the North American plane plant, Inglewood, Calif. Here is a complete story, starting with the chain picketing, bringing tear gas attacks by police and the grand finale, with Uncle Sam's regulars quietly, but effectively, pushing back the lines to permit, at once, some 5,000 workers to return to their tasks.

More than interesting pictures from the other side of the Atlantic are those of the Vichy French cabinet meeting to vote collaboration with Germany and views of feverish work on the Rock of Gibraltar to make it more formidable than ever.

More On Our Hemisphere

Returning home to affairs of the Western Hemisphere, the survivors of the "Zamzam" arrive by clipper, while Fort Storey, Virginia, shakes to the roar of huge coast defense guns. The Virginia convention of 1775 is reenacted, including Patrick Henry's famous speech; the West Point graduation thrills you with the marching cadets, while other shots include war maneuvers, on Cape Cod, Mass.; battleship "South Dakota" launched, pier fire at Jacksonville, Fla.; National Air Show at Birmingham, Ala.; big California rodeo and Bill Conn training in New Jersey for the heavyweight title.

The short subject section is topped by beautiful pictures of the "Quaint Missions" of Southwestern United States and Mexico, followed by a novel "Stranger Than Fiction." "Meet the Stars" brings a Hollywood party and the cartoon is "The Goose Goes South"—by hitch-hiking. Very funny.

Columbia

Always a more accurate screen historian than most, Alexander Korda did not break his admirable rule in creating "That Hamilton Woman!" now back on F Street at the Columbia after two weeks at the Palace.

With the enchanting Vivien Leigh to play the fated beauty, this spectacular film depicts the romance of the hero of Trafalgar, Lord Nelson, and the wife of the Ambassador to Naples, Emma, Lady Hamilton. As an Englishman, the producer-director is inclined to over-emphasize the parallel between the years of Napoleon and the years of Hitler.

But the dramatic story of the title figure is told shrewdly and thoroughly. For Emma did rise from poverty to great worldly position and then fall to shame and jail before she died.

Laurence Olivier, Alan Mowbray and Sara Allgood have the other leading roles, with Olivier doing a workmanlike job as the unhappy Nelson. The production is lavish and has a warmth of feeling which overcomes its occasional arid spots.

Broadway Medley

New York, June 15.

David Selznick instructed his London representative, Harry Hamm, to return to this country, and so he left London and went to Hollywood. There, he told Selznick and Max Gordon, the producer, about the recent day when the Savoy Hotel was hit by a bomb. . . . "I was sleeping in room 528," Hamm related. "Suddenly, I was thrown out of bed—when a bomb hit room 527, right next door, and demolished it. The room right next door. That was too close for me." . . . "So what did you do?" Gordon asked. . . . "I did what any reasonable man would do under similar circumstances," Hamm reported. "I moved to room 518."

Manhattan's first large-scale test-evacuation will be made at Rockefeller Center. . . . After all these years, New York's long-planned movie production is ready to boom—if a satisfactory arrangement with the unions can be made. A group of independent foreign producers then will start making movies here—chewing the completed film at a local theater, before arranging national distribution. . . . Carl Sandburg's drama-poems, "Mr. Lincoln and His Gloves" and "Mr. Longfellow and His Boy," have been set to music. Sandburg's collaborator in this classic venture is Gerald Marks, who wrote the music for such juke-box favorites as "All of Me" and "Is It True What They Say About Dixie."

The big cafe-society news story of the week concerns the mysterious lady who slapped Pippo Russo's face, at Dr. Alexander Hamilton Rice's elegant party for Free France . . . Dr. Rice expressed puzzlement at this report, and indicated that he knows nothing about the face-slapping episode . . . But Dr. Rice's puzzlement isn't unusual—for, throughout that party for the benefit of Free France, he went from room to room, anxiously inquiring: "But where is Henri-Haye? Why hasn't Henri-Haye come yet?"

A recent dispatch from Washington, reporting the new Supreme Court appointments, stated: "The proposed elevation of Stone came as more or less of a surprise." Owen Davis is dramatizing the best-seller, "Whistle Stop." . . . Edna Ferber's Defense bond broadcast from the White House last week was read from a manuscript which consisted of napkins and scrap paper. Ten minutes before the broadcast began, Miss Ferber was shown the speech which an official had written for her. Edna, whose "Saratoga Trunk" brought the highest price paid for any story in the history of literature, decided to write her own—and scribbled it, on the nearest scraps of paper and White House napkins. . . . Her niece, Janet Fox, was shown through the White House by Alexander Woollcott. He took her to the room in which he had slept. "The bed's so high, how'd you get into it?" Miss Fox asked him. . . . "Oh, that was easy," Alex explained, "My man Hennessey made a cradle out of his arms, I stepped into it—and up I went" . . . He started to show her another bedroom, and was stopped by six guards. "I'm Mr. Woollcott," he told them. . . . "Yes. But in there, sleeping," they told him, "is Mr. Hopkins."

At Cooper Union this week, where Eleanor Roosevelt was guest of honor, Newbold Morris and Lucy Monroe found themselves on the same platform—the fourth time, within ten days. "We're in a rut," Morris told Miss Monroe. "Next time, let's try something different, YOU speak—and I'LL sing 'The Star-Spangled Banner'" . . . M.-G.-M.'s production of "The Yearling" will be postponed for another year. . . . Warner Brothers' adaptation of "The Male Animal" is all ready for filming, but will have to wait for the fall—because Jimmy Stewart, for whom it had been written, is in the Army. Henry Fonda will play the role. . . . Robert Tapscott, the young British seaman who survived after a 70-day ordeal in an open lifeboat, is writing the story for publication by Random House.

If This Was a Joyous Vacation, We'll Sit Tight at Galley Oar

By Frederick C. Othman
United Press Hollywood Correspondent

Hollywood, June 15.—Barbara Stanwyck finished up "The Great Man's Lady" at Paramount, feeling pretty rocky with a bad cold. Her husband, Robert Taylor, completed "Billy the Kid" at M-G-M about the same time, and he didn't feel so hot, either. So they decided to take a vacation. Taylor goes on with the story:

"We went to Arrowhead Springs," he said, "but it was cold outside and magnificent inside and Barbara's cold was bad and we stayed just one night, going on to Palm Springs next day.

"We both got badly sunburned there and Barbara's cold got no better and I caught some kind of intestinal ailment. I had to come back to Hollywood to see my doctor for that. So we started our vacation all over again. We flew to New York.

"It was rainy there and it didn't seem as if it was going to be any too much fun and Barbara still had her cold and we got hold of some cruise literature and first thing we knew we were on a boat for the West Indies. Beautiful days and cool nights, the booklet said. Quaint islands and white beaches.

Blew Both Hot and Cold

"For the first couple of days it was cold and damp. Then it got hot and clammy. By the time we got to Puerto Rico, Barbara had pleurisy and they had to tape her side. She still had her cold and I didn't feel so well, either, and we couldn't sleep and when we got off the boat, Puerto Rico was dirty and hot and squalid. They said they'd take us to a beautiful beach, and we went there and the beach was full of dead fish and grapefruit rinds. We got back on the boat.

"Then we went on to the Virgin Islands and I must say that was a beautiful spot. It did have white sand and crystal water—and our boat was scheduled to stay there a half day. Barbara's cold got worse."

"We went on to Haiti. That was worse than Puerto Rico. I never saw such dirt. We went to Cuba. We knew we'd like it there, because Director Archie Mayo had told us about a wonderful beach 125 miles from Havana. So we ate some clams, drove the 125 miles back to Havana and caught another boat for New York.

Tired Out Resting

"We were tireder than when we started. So we thought probably we could get a good rest if we went to a first class dude ranch in the West. We got some more literature and studied it all and finally picked out a place in Wyoming, which talked about its 200 riding horses, its fine fishing, its tennis, and its pack trips into the mountains.

"After the rouzhest plane ride either of us ever experienced, we staggered into Billings, Mont., rode 120 miles to Cody, Wyo., and 40 miles on to the ranch, where we had De Luxe accommodations. I'll say they were De Luxe. They cost us $300 a week. We had a great big barn of a cabin and no hot water.

"At 6 a. m. a bell rang to wake the help. At 6:30 another bell called the help to eat. At 8 a bell rang to wake up the customers. At 8:30 a. m. there was another bell to call us to our breakfast. It was regimentation—and no late sleep.

Sports Parade in Reverse

"We took our tennis rackets out and walked over to the court and it was waist high in weeds. We put on our riding clothes to try out some of those 200 horses. There were exactly three horses and one of the hired hands said they hadn't been ridden for a year and he'd advise us to stay off of them. So I said we'd go fishing. 'Oh, no, you won't,' the guide said. 'The snow is melting and the rivers are muddy and the fish aren't biting.'

"We stayed three days and then drove back to Billings. We tried to catch a plane for the West, but it was storming and the only ship out was to Cheyenne. We went to Cheyenne. There we caught a milk train and after a while we landed up back in Los Angeles.

"I never was so glad to get home in my life. Barbara's cold immediately got better and after I'd rested up from my vacation, I began to feel okay, too."

Taylor begins at once a picture called "When Ladies Meet." Miss Stanwyck begins "The Doctor's Husband."

'And then," said Taylor, "we're planning on going on a vacation."

Sparks Are Apt to Fly at M-G-M

Hollywood, Calif., June 15. Watching Clark Gable do his first flirtatious love scene with Lana Turner in "Honky Tonk" it struck me that sparks will fly between these two, and Metro may have another Gable-Harlow combination.

LANA TURNER

They complement each other, and the contrast is very pictorial. Clark plays one of those no-good, rowdy, he-man gamblers. He was wearing a broad-brimmed hat which was driving the cameraman "nerts," because as Clark stooped down in a crowded railway coach to pick up Lana's hanky, they could get no light under the hat onto the Gable puss. But heck!—with Gable, the back of his head is just as good as his face, and I don't mean his ears, either.

Don't know where the silly rumor started that "Rags" Ragland won't play his old part in "Panama Hattie." Metro signed him for it. . . . Among his sailor buddies will be Red Skelton, one of the funniest boys we've ever had here. The original test he made at Metro has been run so often it's now on its third print.

After the studio turned down half a dozen benefits for him, Skelton said, "Oh, gee whiz! I like benefits. I love that noise an audience makes if you go over!"

Not that Judy Garland needs any defense, but you should have heard Mickey Rooney go to town about her when someone suggested she was too young to marry. Mickey said, "I don't think it's anybody's business but Judy's, and no one has the right to tell anyone else what they should or should not do about marriage."

At that point Pat Dane barged up, and I explained about the diamond clip she was wearing on her revealing dress. She said, "It's all right, but it's not real. I'm getting a real present in a few minutes—it's on its way now!" Before I could ask what, she told me—a diamond-studded cigarette case from Cedric Gibbons. Mickey laughed and said, "And wouldn't your face be red if it never arrived?" That's the little girl who was fired because she couldn't be on time for one of the girls in "The Ziegfeld Girl," then got an acting plum in "Life Begins for Andy Hardy."

"Out of the Fog" pictures the impact of violence on the lives of peace-loving individuals, and brings out some of the best sheer acting you've seen to date. Ida Lupino, Eddie Albert, John Garfield, Tommy Mitchell and John Qualen are at the top of their form.

Almost best of all was seeing Aline MacMahon once more, making an unimportant character stand out like a sore thumb.

Did you know that little "Farina," the colored girl of "Our Gang" comedies, is now one of our soldier boys at Camp Ord?

Fibber McGee and Molly have top Crossley rating on the air and are heard by millions weekly, but their faces are still not well known in Hollywood. Other day when Molly went to be measured for her costumes in the picture "Look Who's Laughing," she gave her name as Mrs. Jordan. The girl asked what picture she was going to be in. She told her, and the girl said, "Oh, you'll have such a wonderful time with that Molly!"

Jack Henley tells this on Noel Coward, who is a notorious ribber. When in New York Noel dropped by Western Union to send an insulting wire signed "Mayor LaGuardia" to an actor friend. The operator refused to accept it. "Well, then sign it Noel Coward," he said. "Sorry, sir, we can't accept messages signed under assumed names." "But I really AM Noel Coward." "Oh, excuse me—in that case you can sign it Mayor La Guardia."

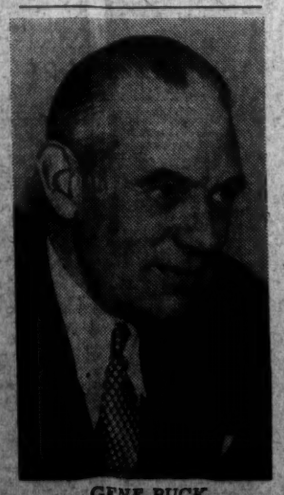
Bill Cunningham's Column: . . . Southwest Wishes Nation Still Had Will Rogers

By Bill Cunningham

Between Texas and Arkansas, and, boy, is it raining!—This entire district, where they mostly only play cowboy today, but where they still remember the real McCoy, is still saturated with the personality of a sleepy looking puncher with a drawl, a cowlick and a cud of chewing-wax, who's gone to the last round-up. Claremore, Okla., was the real Will Rogers country, but he perambulated back and forth all through here.

The cowboy philosopher, his words, his logic, his earthy, cockleburr country way of saying big things simply, are, still part of the living gospel in this part of the world. Not once, but a dozen times a week and in a dozen different places, a stranger will hear, "What this Nation needs most right now in all this confusion and crisis is Ol' Will. He had more sense than all the rest of 'em put together. The worst thing that possibly could have happened to this country was to have him go when he did."

With this in mind, it was interesting to hear firsthand, and from the mouth of the man who did it, the story of how Will Rogers really was set on his way toward becoming the common man's idol. The man who told the tale in simple reminiscence, which somehow became transfigured into hushed tribute as he talked, was Gene Buck, current president of ASCAP, but for years chief talent scout and general production manager for the Great Ziegfeld.



GENE BUCK

It was exactly 26 years ago, as Buck tells it, Rogers and another hand had received some laudatory newspaper publicity for bravely and successfully tackling a steer that had suddenly gone loco near a crowd of helpless people. The reward had been the offer of a brief neighborhood vaudeville engagement.

Buck, who haunted burlesque houses, vaudeville of all grades and similar temples, even church services occasionally, in an endless hunt for new faces and sorts of attraction, saw the homely, unkempt, gum-chewing Rogers and immediately got a crazy idea. He would take the frowzy, homely, rope-spinning cowboy with a squint and a smirk as his stock facial expressions, and throw him into the middle of the show on the New Amsterdam Roof—a show that featured an even three dozen of the most beautiful girls top salaries could hire.

Ziegfeld vetoed the idea. He was all for beauty and glamour. He couldn't see a cowboy of any sort, unless maybe a handsome tenor dressed like one for a number. And Rogers, with his dirty chaps, his twirling rope, his homely face and bunkhouse monologue, was repellent to his professional sensibilities.

"But," said Buck, "as homely as he was and as corny as his act was, I couldn't get him out of my mind. He did something to you even as a ham starting out. The reason was, he had the greatest gift God can bestow on a human being—personality. You have that or you don't. He had it."

Buck started him in at $175 a week. That wasn't much of a salary for that spot and these times. And the act began to die after a couple of weeks. The sight of a real cow-puncher in an old dirty blue shirt, his hair a stranger to a comb and the rest of him in character, cracking a few jokes in the middle of a girl show, got by as novelty for a while, but he used the same jokes every night, and the roof mostly had the same customers every night.

Buck begged the boss for a little more time, and to Rogers he diplomatically confided that he'd like to give him some suggestions for new gags and more up-to-date business for his monologue. This was like Kreisler offering to lend a corn-stalk fiddler his best violin. Buck was the top gag-writer of Broadway at the hour, his material being the stock-in-trade of such stars as Bert Williams, W. C. Fields and the rest of Ziegfeld's historic funny men.

"I got an idea," he said. "I know I ain't makin' good, but I ain't goin' to make better tryin' to say another man's words. You talk about material. There's an awful lot of material right on the front page of that newspaper layin' there. How about me just walkin' out and more or less readin' the paper to 'em?"

That was the start of it.

Making good on "the roof," he automatically moved up to the varsity, which was the Follies, and from there, in time, the next stop was the movies. His famous column began in a strange way.

He was playing London, as an actor, and Lady Astor, as a fellow-American, extended the hospitality of the British to Will and his beloved wife, Betty. The cowboy was so impressed with the horse-sense as well as the charm of the lady that he composed a cablegram to the New York Times and paid for it with his own money, urging the Times to "get behind this plain American gal from down there in Virginia and try to help her get elected to this Parliament over here."

WILL ROGERS

The cable was so quaintly phrased, yet said so much that the Times printed it in a box and cabled Rogers to send another commenting on anything over there he saw that interested him. That was the start of one of the most popular columns in the history of American journalism.

"He's the most missed man in America today," concluded Buck. "He was the common people's voice. He spoke for millions. They loved him and believed in him. The big guys were afraid of him. Maybe respect would be the better word, for they knew when Will spoke, the real America was speaking. If we only had him today . . ."

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

The retirement of Mr. Harry (The Horse) Raskin from the psychological field is a possibility this evening. Mr. Raskin, the headless horseman of Ninth Street, is sending his man, Buddy Scott, against Bob Pastor at Griffith Stadium tonight, and it comes under the heading of the science of the mind and its phenomena.

POVICH

Dr. Raskin for the past two weeks has been bringing Scott to a slow boil mentally with his clever machinations in Scott's corner. The big idea is to win the fight before it starts. Dr. Raskin, who says he has explored all the possibilities, has deduced that Scott can lick Pastor if Scott can be convinced to that effect before they enter the ring.

"I am doing a job on Scott," says Raskin. "He is going to beat Pastor or make bums out of us. But I think I am going to unveil a new Buddy Scott. In fact, I do not think his best friends will recognize him. If they do, we're sunk, but I am completely satisfied with our progress to this point."

The specific magic that Dr. Raskin has been working on Scott was just a bit vague until the eminent doctor himself explained all.

"For two weeks, I have been telling Scott that he can't beat Pastor by boxing him. I have been saying to Buddy, 'those twin 3-year-old girls of yours are worth fighting for, so stop boxing. Go out there and fight.' That struck home. Every day, I am reminding Buddy about those twin girls, and I got him believing me.

"That's the whole idea—to make Scott fight. All his life he has been a boxer when I know he can fight. He don't want to get licked, so he won't gamble with a punch. I am going to make him gamble in there against Pastor if I have to bite him to make him mad. Thus he will belt Pastor out of there and I will have a title challenger on my hands."

And if it is Scott who is belted out? Dr. Raskin had an answer for that one. "To hell with this psychology business. It has no place in the prize ring."

It seems that Scott has something to recommend him in addition to the mental wonders Raskin may be working on the fellow. He comes from a fighting family of Texans. Brother Howard fought Lightweight Champions Tony Canzoneri, Lew Ambers, Henry Armstrong, Lew Feldman and Bat Battalino, and at one time was third-ranking lightweight of the world. Brother Tommy Scott had won 32 consecutive fights before he burned to death in an oil field fire. Raskin's man, Buddy, has lost only five of his 83 fights, all by decisions.

At 183 pounds, Scott will be giving away only 3 pounds to Pastor. Being in there against Pastor will be no new experience for Scott, incidentally. . . . A year ago last Christmas Eve he fought Pastor to a split decision at Dallas.

"And," exulted Dr. Raskin, "that fight at Dallas is one of the reasons I think Buddy can lick this Pastor. Down there, 18 months ago, he was giving Pastor almost 15 pounds in weight. Buddy weighed only 171. Pastor won't be able to shove him around like a middleweight this time. Buddy's going to punch back with 12 extra pounds."

All the same, Pastor will be a pronounced favorite to beat Scott this evening despite the mental ministrations of Dr. Raskin. On the best day that Scott ever had, Pastor has always been rated the better fighter. Joe Louis had a sincere compliment for Pastor last month while training here for his fight with Buddy Baer.

"When yo' talk of my tough fights, yo' gotta include that last one with Pastor," Louis said. "Tommy Farr and Arturo Godoy went the limit with me, but Ah never was bothered much by them. I knocked that Pastor down three times in the first round, and it was still a pretty close fight in the ninth and tenth. Ah was glad when Ah nailed him in the eleventh."

Pastor, paradoxically, got small credit for lasting the 10-round limit with Louis in their first fight. At Jimmy Johnston's orders he made a running fight of it and his feat of staying the limit was lost in the public mind because it was such a dull battle. However, in his second fight with Louis, Pastor demonstrated that he could fight.

There is evidence that Pastor has grown up to be something of an underrated figure in the prize ring. Lou Nova, who will soon fight Louis, could get only a draw with Pastor. It was Pastor who exploded the Bob Nestell bubble in California by flooring him and winning a decision in Nestell's native State. He went to Al McCoy's home town of Boston and beat McCoy. In his last fight, Pastor was knocked down six times in the first round by Turkey Thompson, California Negro heavyweight, and came back to score five knockdowns of his own to win the decision.

These are only a few of the items Dr. Raskin may have overlooked.

Ernie White, St. Louis Rookie, Holds Flock To 2 Hits in 3-0 Nightcap; First Game Is 8-1

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, June 15.—St. Louis' Cardinals clung to the National League lead by beating Brooklyn, 3 to 0, in the second game of a doubleheader today after the Dodgers had walloped the leaders, 8 to 1, in the first contest.

A double victory for Brooklyn would have put it in first place by 6 percentage points, and it might have been a double win except for Don Padgett's sensational one-handed stop in the third inning of the second game with the bases filled. That pulled Rookie Pitcher Ernie White out of a hole and he went through the game allowing only two hits—both doubles.

Lew Riggs drove in four of the Dodger's eight runs in the first game and Resier had two hits in two official times at bat. After a 3-run rally in the sixth the Dodgers had things their own way.

Johnny Hopp, who has been subbing for the injured Johnny Mize at first base for the Cards, was ejected by Umpire Babe Pinelli for arguing too vociferously about a third called strike in the eighth inning of the first game.

Blozis Sets Two Records In New York

By the Associated Press

New York, June 15.—Al Blozis, of Georgetown University and the New York A. C. showed a crowd of 18,000 Father's Day fans at the Polo Grounds today just how a record-breaking shot putter breaks records.

In a series of exhibitions Blozis bettered by 4 feet 2 inches the the standard for the eight-pound shot, which he tossed 74 feet 2¼ inches, and surpassed his own American record with the standard 16-pound ball, which he tossed 56 feet 6½ inches.

Other exhibitions saw Gene Sarazen and Jimmy Hines beat Paul Runyan on approach shots to the pin from 100 and 75 yards; Mary Hardwick beat Alice Marble, 6—4, in a one-set tennis match; an all-star six-man football team, starring Charley O'Rourke, formerly of Boston College, and Sid Luckman, of the pro Chicago Bears, whip a New York Giants sextet, 14-7, and Greg Rice and Jimmy Herbert win special two-mile and 440-yard races.

Brownell Wins M. A. Amateur

BOBBY BROWNELL

By Merrell W. Whittlesey
Post Staff Writer

Hot Springs, Va., June 15.—The new amateur golf champion of the Middle Atlantic States is Robert William Brownell, a 22-year-old resident of the Nation's Capital, who today climaxed a weekend of marvelous golf over the Cascades course with a final-round rout of the defending champion, Spencer S. Overton. The margin was 5 and 3.

Thus the lean, blond shotmaker from Manor Country Club added the sectional title to his Southern Intercollegiate crown just 10 days after receiving his Duke University degree. And a year ago this month Bobby was walking on crutches as a result of a broken leg that threatened his golfing career.

Brownell's golf speaks for itself, for when the 43-year-old Overton walked across the fifteenth green for a congratulatory handshake Bobby had just completed 73 holes of golf over a real championship layout in just two over par figures.

A Great Exhibition

The old-timers, who remember most of the 37-year history of this section's oldest golf association, could not recall a one-man show such as Brownell put forth over this picturesque layout.

The grim, determined youngster, who is all business the second he leaves the first tee, qualified within a shot of the medalist pace and then waltzed through four opponents by a margin of 22 holes. He lost only three holes during the entire tournament. He ended one match on the twelfth green, another on the thirteenth and today he let his opponents off at the fifteenth. It wasn't even close.

Overton's putter was a betraying implement in the afternoon final, but his Baltimore backers did not feel too bad about his losing for he was a fortunate man to be in there at all. In the morning semifinal with Charlottesville's 17-year-old Pat Janssen, Overton was 4 down and 7 to go before he pulled the match out of the first with a 1 up victory on the eighteenth.

Overton Squares Match

Overton took over on the twelfth tee and with two pars and two birdies, one a No. 4 wood shot which almost found the cup, he squared the match in four holes and won it on the seventeenth with a par five—when it looked as though he was going to lose the hole instead of win it. Janssen started the match with three straight birdies.

Meanwhile Brownell advanced over Columbia's co-medalist, 19-year-old Earle Skinker, by a four and three margin, his smallest of the tournament. Skinker won the

Welsh, Leavens Net Match Final Set Next Sunday

The City of Washington men's tennis tournament finals match between Champion Barney Welsh and second-seeded Don Leavens at Edgemoor was postponed by rains yesterday and is scheduled to be played next Sunday together with the doubles finals.

Tournament promoters held hopes of staging the match until late in the afternoon when, even after the showers stopped, it was decided that the courts would not be usable for hours.

43,962 See DiMaggio Hit Long Home Run; Jim Bagby Routed In Fourth Inning

By the Associated Press

New York, June 15.—The New York Yankees swept to their seventh straight victory and moved within two games of the Cleveland Indians today by putting the American League leaders through a 3-to-2 wringer before 43,962 fans.

Joe DiMaggio rifled a tremendous home run into the uper tier of Yankee Stadium in the third inning for what proved the winning margin and extended his hitting streak to 28 consecutive games.

The Yankees greeted Jim Bagby roughly in the first inning when Johnny Sturm and Red Rolfe opened with singles and Sturmy scored after a long fly by Tom Henrich. They collected another run in the second on a hit batsman, a walk and Rolfe's double into the right-field corner.

After Bagby was replaced by Lefty Al Smith in the fourth, the Bronx Bombers were muffled to one scratch hit and came out of the contest with the meek-looking total of five hits, one less than the Tribe.

The veteran Red Ruffing kept Cleveland subdued except for the eighth inning, however, and achieved his fourth straight victory with comparative ease. He allowed no hits for three innings and the one single he gave up in each of the next three frames proved harmless.

It took an error by Joe Gordon for the Indians to break through in the eighth. With one out the Yankee second baseman, who had been playing a sparkling game in handling ten fielding chances, dropped Gee Walker's pop fly. Singles by Jeff Heath, Clarence Campbell and a fly by Hal Trotsky then accounted for two runs.

Athletics Defeat Browns, 10 to 4

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, June 15.—Unlimbering their war clubs in a violent eighth inning, the Athletics came from behind today to whip the St. Louis Browns, 10 to 4, in the first game of a scheduled double-header. A heavy rainstorm at the end of the first contest washed out the nightcap.

Trailing 3-2, after home runs by Rick Ferrell and Harland Clift, of the Browns, the A's piled on Pitchers Bob Harris and Bill Trotter for eight hits in the eighth, including Bob Johnson's thirteenth four-bagger of the year with one on base. Frank Hayes hit his eighth circuit blow in the stanza.

Umpire Cal Hubbard and A's Coach Al Simmons engaged in a spirited dispute after Hubbard called Dee Miles safe, then out at second in the sixth inning as Bob Johnson grounded into a double play. Several pop bottles were thrown from among the 19,347 fans but no one was injured. Simmons was banished from the field.

Heafner Wins Mahoning Golf Tournament

By the Associated Press

Girard, Ohio, June 15.—Blond-browed Clayton Heafner, a steady money winner but never before first in a major tournament, waded over the rain-soaked Mahoning Country Club layout today to win the $5,000 Mahoning Valley open with a four-under 276.

The 26-year-old Linville, N. C., professional, a former candy factory worker, has been playing tourney golf for three years. Last year he won $5,500 and today's triumph with its $1,200 first prize boosted his 1941 "take" to $4,855. Heafner was in ninth place at even par of 140 when the final 36 holes got under way. He slashed three strokes off regulation figures on his first trip around and kept one shot under on the final round despite increasing showers.

Nelson Is Second

Byron Nelson of Toledo, the P. G. A. Champion, came in with a brilliant 67 for a 277, missing a 30-foot putt by inches on the eighteenth green that would have given him a tie. His prize was $750.

Blazin' Ben Hogan duplicated Nelson's finish to card a 278, deadlocking with Suave Lloyd Mangrum of Monterey Park, Calif. The Hershey, Pa., sharpshooter's $500 prize kept him first in money winnings with $9,017.

Lawson Little of San Francisco and Bobby Cruickshank of Richmond, Va., failed to stand up under the weather and slipped to 279. Craig Wood, the national open champion, never hits his stride after taking a seven on the second hole of tournament play and ended with 283.

Heafner Cards 9 Birdies

Heafner had nine birdies on his 36 holes today. His putting was a big help, three 15-footers dropping.

A 220-pound husky, his previous victories were in two minor tournaments, the Carolina and Blue Hills opens. He did not attempt to qualify for the coming P. G. A. classic.

Marshall Carlson, of Toledo, the Ohio conference champion, was low among the amateurs with 290.

Cubs Purchase Babe Dahlgren From Braves

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 15.—General Manager Jimmy Gallagher announced tonight the Chicago Cubs had bought Ellsworth (Babe) Dahlgren, veteran first baseman, from the Boston Braves for an undisclosed amount of cash.

DAHLGREN

The Braves acquired Dahlgren from the New York Yankees this spring. He is expected to report here tomorrow.

Dahlgren, rated a fine fielder and spasmodic long-distance hitter, batted .264 last season for the Yankees, with which club he had played since the retirement in 1939 of the late Lou Gehrig.

Salica, Forte Fight for Title

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, June 15.—Balked by rain last week, Bantamweight Champion Lou Salica, of Brooklyn, and Philadelphia's Tommy Forte ill climb through the ropes of a Shibe Park ring tomorrow night for their 15-round world title bout.

Neither Salica nor Forte seemed to feel that the four-day extension of their training, necessitated when rain forced a postponement of Philadelphia's first major outdoor show of the year last Thursday, would hurt their chances tomorrow night. Both continued their workouts, including loosening up exercises today, and neither expected any trouble in making their 118-pound limit for their second weighing-in tomorrow.

The bout will mark the introduction of the State athletic commission's new no-foul rule, under which a fighter who falls to the floor, claiming a foul, will be counted out. If he gets up before the ten count and finishes the round, he will be credited with the round on a foul.

Under the old rule, a boxer claiming a foul was given a rest period not exceeding 6 minues, in addition to credit for the round.

Newsom to Face SteveSundraToday In Series Finale

Buck Newsom, the Tigers' $20,000 a year pitcher who has won only five games against seven defeats this season, will take the mound against the Nats today in the series finale at Griffith Stadium.

NEWSOM

Newsom's last pitching effort was a six-hit victory over the Athletics.

Manager Bucky Harris will send Steve Sundra to box. Before the game Harris will warn Detroit coaches that if they attempt to tip off Sundra's pitches to the batters it will be on their own responsibility. Harris accuses the Tiger coaches of "calling" Sundra's pitches and last night he declared "if they guess wrong and somebody is hit by a fast ball when he is told to expect a curve, that will be too bad."

Bosox Sweep White Sox Bill, 8-6 and 6-4

By the Associated Press

Boston, June 15.—The Red Sox thrilled a capacity crowd of 34,500 today by taking both ends of a double-header from the Chicago White Sox, 8 to 6 and 6 to 4.

Lefty Bob Grove, who gained his 297th victory last Sunday at Ted Lyon's expense, made another start against that Chicago veteran, but was forced to retire in the fourth inning after being hit on his pitching arm by a line drive off Joe Kuhel's bat.

The blow caused Grove's arm to tighten and he was replaced by Mike Ryba after the Chisox clouted him for four of the five hits they made in that frame, to gain a 6-to-5 lead. The Red Sox, who belted Lyons for 15 hits, scored twice in the sixth and again in the eighth, to decide the game in Ryba's favor.

Heber (Dick) Newsome went the distance for the Bosox in the nightcap and held the opposition to eight hits, including a homer by Taft Wright. The Red Sox pounded

Parker Captures Triple A Tennis As McNeill Bows

By International News Service

St. Louis, Mo., June 15.—Frankie Parker, of Spring Lake, N. J., today defeated Don McNeill, of Oklahoma City, 6—2, 6—4, 6—2, in the men's singles final at the Fifth Annual Triple A Invitational Tennis Tournament.

Parker thus took over the title vacated by Frankie Kovacs of San Francisco. The new champion today played with machine-like precision, scoring 106 points to 73 for McNeill and sharply upsetting advance dope which had named McNeill the favorite.

Wayne Sabin, of Reno, Nev., and Gardner Mulloy, Coral Gables, Fla., won the men's doubles title by defeating Parker and MacNeill, 6—2, 6—3, 6—3. The winners went through the match without losing their services.

Lyn Lary Released

Newhouser Routed In Opener; Tigers Hop on Leonard For Nine Safeties

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

Washington's baseball athletes won the first game of a double-header with the Tigers yesterday, 7 to 5—and then the Nats went native. They lost the second game, 4 to 2.

At the end of five and a half hours of intermittent baseball and rain, the 10,000 customers in the stands were eating for dinner the successors to the hot dogs they had for lunch earlier in the afternoon. At 7 p. m. the umpires called that second game at the end of six innings on account of darkness.

It was probably just as well that the second game was called at the end of the sixth. The Nats were being held to three hits by Paul Trout, and hadn't scored a run for five innings. And there were definite indications that they would not score.

Game Starts at 5:35 P. M.

That second game set some sort of a record for Griffith Stadium. It did not commence until 5:35 p. m. Reason was a delay of an hour and 45 minutes in the third inning of the opening game when rain threatened a U-boat invasion. The outfield was a young lake, and only the heroic efforts of the bucket and broom brigades permitted play to resume. As it was, the outfielders were slashing around in water most of the afternoon.

Before relating how Frank Higgins' three errors in the sixth inning of the opening game gave the Nats three important runs that proved the winning margin, it might be observed that Dutch Leonard was no help whatsoever to the Nats as their second-game pitcher.

The customers, in a gay mood after sitting out the rain and watching Sid Hudson beat the Tigers in the opener despite three runs he permitted in the ninth, visioned a duoble victory for the Nats when Leonard moved into a 2-0 lead in the first inning.

Heavyweight Bout Set for 10 Rounds

Pastor Is Heavy Favorite; Good Supporting Card Includes DeChard

By Al Hailey

Buddy Scott will gamble his all on the left hand he used for a one-round knockout in his last fight when he steps out to meet Bob Pastor tonight at Griffith Stadium in a heavyweight encounter scheduled as a 10-round affair.

The 24-year-old Texas-born Washingtonian, under the gentle proddings of Harry Raskin, has come to suspect he has undiscovered power in that left, and he is going to stake his future on it carrying him through to a quick-knockout.

In his last time out, Buddy flattened a nonentity named Johnny Hogan with the punch, a nice, clean left hook that looked quite nifty. Johnny and Buddy moved to the center of the Turner's Arena ring, touched gloves lightly and then—presto—it was all over. That open-ing gesture was the last time Johnny laid a glove on Scott.

Buddy's fondest dream is for something similar tonight—but, sadly enough, it's one he hardly can expect to come true. Whereas Johnny was a lead-footed target, Bouncing Bob will be moving around quite some.

Stayed 21 Rounds

Robert's speed and nerve carried him through 21 rounds of fighting with Joe Louis, and his punching aptitude gave Joe a bit of a fit in the second and championship fight in which the Bomber finally knocked out Pastor in the eleventh after taking a good shaking up himself in the eighth.

The former New York University football star will be a heavy favorite over young Scott.

Pastor and Scott are both skillful workmen and are running hot campaigns for a Louis fight. James Jay Johnston, who always manages to find enough fighting material to keep heckling Louis, stands a good chance with talking Pastor into the next waltz with Louis.

First bout on tonight's star-studded card starts at 8:30 p. m., but because of the National Broadcasting Co. broadcast by Sam Taub and Bill Stern, the main bout probably will go on at 9:30 p. m.

Italo Colonello, Pastor's stablemate and a headliner around New York's smaller clubs, meets Jimmy DeChard in what amounts to a second feature. The 21-year-old Washingtonian, in his third heavyweight start as a pro, will be up against a tough customer in Colonello.

Kid Tunero, colored Cuban middleweight who Johnston calls the uncrowned champion, meets Joey Sutka in another top-notch prelim. Jabo Kenner, local colored heavyweight, meets Joe Monier in a six and Lou Bass makes his pro debut against Chappie Manning in a four.

Reds Defeat Giants Twice, 5-2 and 6-3

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, June 15.—The Cincinnati Reds gained undisputed possession of third place in the National League today by clubbing New York Giant pitchers for 19 hits in taking both halves of a double-header, 5-2 and 6-3.

Bucky Walters hurled seven-hit ball in the nightcap, starting shakily, but fanning two Giants in the final frame after the Reds grabbed the lead on a four-run rally in the eighth.

Helen Jacobs Wins Over Quaker Star And Retains Title

By the United Press

JACOBS

The Berkeley, Calif., player mixed heavy chop spins with hard straight drives to overcome her opponent who is ranked tenth nationally. Keeping perfect control throughout the entire match she held her errors to 15.

Miss Knowles' game was not up to par and she failed to win a single service game. Her long drives consistently overshot the line and she accounted for 46 errors.

Metropolitan Police Take Trophy Shoot

The Metropolitan Police Pistol Team No. 1 captured the Woodridge Trophy Class of the Twelfth Precinct Invitation tournament yesterday with a score of 1,134 out of 1,200. The White House Police were second and the Quantico Marines third. The winning team members are W. B. Slack, J. B. Layton, R. B. McMahill and G. M. Stewart.

In the .22-caliber individual match, Bert Cline, Washington, took honors with 294x300. John Cash, White House Police, was second with 292 and third went to Robert Schreeman, Quantico Marines, with 291.

Cash won the individual center-fire match. A rapid-fire round was used to decide the winner after a three-way tie. F. K. McLaughlin, White House Police, and E. Reynolds, Washington, had tied with Cash.

The Vermillion Trophy class was taken by the team from the No. 1 team of the Twelfth Precinct (J. W. McCormick, L. L. Clair, P. L. Briton and G. E. Cooper). Winning score was 1,065x1,200. No. 8 Precinct was second and the Twelfth Precinct No. 2 team was third.

Navy Yard Netmen Beat Greenbelt, 8-0

The Navy Yard's well balanced tennis team smashed Greenbelt's representatives, 8 to 0, yesterday on the losers' courts. In only one macth was a third set necessary.

Singles—Burns (N. Y.) defeated Blanchard, 7—9, 6—4, 6—4; Herbert (N. Y.) defeated Hennessey, 6—3, 6—1; Seaman (N. Y.) defeated Skinner, 6—3, 7—5; Matthews (N. Y.) defeated Fulmer, 6—3, 6—4.

Zugates Wins North-South Skeet Honors

Literally swooping down out of the murky sky, Anthony Zugates, Pennsylvania State skeet champion, grabbed the most important prize yesterday as the National Capital Skeet Club concluded its annual two-day North-South shoot.

The swarthy sharpshooter from Indiana, Pa., who flies his airplane from one skeet tournament to another, registered a perfect 100x100 to capture the individual high gun award. His was the fourth perfect score in the eight-year history of the event.

Unable to reach Washington in time for Saturday's opening day activities, Zugates beat out three marksmen from this vicinity for yesterday's big prize. George Deyoe, the police sergeant who starred Saturday with triumphs in the 410-gauge and 20-gauge events; Rufe Watson, of Laurel, Md., and N. C. Britt, of Roanoke, all finished with 99x100. Deyoe won the shootoff for second with 75 straight.

The five-man team championship went to a squad from New Jersey calling itself the Westbrook Cardinals. The team, composed of G. L. Hutchison, E. Wylie, R. R. Bogie, Ed Garland and Dave Sklar, wound up with an aggreate of 484. One target back were the National Capital Reserves and Rebels, the Reserves taking second after the flip of a coin.

Ken Deavers Hurls A 'Perfect Game'

A 6-inning no-hit, no-run game was credited to Kenny Deavers, Eastern High pitcher, yesterday as Police Boys Club No. 4 and Cardinal A. C. battled to a 0-0 stalemate in the National City Junior Baseball League, Spicer, of the Cards, allowed only 2 hits before rain forced calling the game.

ARGYLE

Nolan Gibson and Mrs. Ethel Anderson took top prize in the mixed scotch foursome at Argyle, netting a neat 30 with an 8-stroke handicap. Second went to Andy Black and Mrs. Ruth Mothershead, with 43-9, 34. The teams of John Rice and Mrs. R. M. Terrell and Cliff Scoggins and Mrs. Dot Chamblin finished in a deadlock for third.

MANOR

The husband and wife tournament at Mannor Country Club was dominated by Mr. and Mrs. Neff, who combined for a 181. Their 13-stroke handicap gave them 168, one stroke better than the net of Mr. and Mrs. Daily and Mr. and Mrs. Stokes, who tied for second.

INDIAN SPRING

Louis Watzman, shooting a pair of 44s, walked away with the British War Relief tournament prize at Indian Spring. His handicap of 21 gave him a 67, just ahead of Charles Wells' 80-12—68.

ANACOSTIA

Its third straight victory over Ocean View Club, of Norfolk, was registered by Anacostia's team over its home course, 22-14. The feature match was that in which Bill Staylor and Charles Hayes, of the invaders, and Bill Carson and W. W. Seay battled for 23 holes to no decision. Neither pair boasted an edge at any time during hostilities as every hole was halved.

Another tangle with Ocean View on the out-of-town layout is scheduled for the Anacostians on July 13.

EAST POTOMAC

Don Stone won the British War Relief tournament at East Potomac with a 74, from which he subtracted a 9-stroke handicap. Second was Art Myers, with 75-9, 66.

BANNOCKBURN

Play in the Barry Page Cup tournament was launched at Bannockburn with a total of 14 two-man team matches.

M. B. Shaw-T. G. Crawford defeated William Fendergast-S. S. Fletcher, 1 up; William Houshton-F. Durham defeated Ken Spencer-James Carpenter, 1 up; B. Mrstik-Pat Laushlin defeated T. H. Brewer-G. On the Line

—With CONSIDINE

New York, June 15.—What's on your mind? The fight?—we think the odds on the Louis-Conn match, quoted in some places as short as 2-to-1, are ridiculously out of line. In our book, which is not to be confused to Shaw's or Mara's, Louis should be a 1-to-10 shot. A year or so ago the thought of a Conn-Louis fight was laughable, if they had been matched at that time there might have been a little trouble getting a sanction from the New York State Athletic Commission.

CONSIDINE

What has really happened in the meantime to bring so many Conn men out of the woods? Louis has belted out every one they fed him; Conn's most imposing wins were over Bob Pastor and Lee Savold. But Pastor was plainly out of shape that night, as he recently admitted to us, and Savold, for some reason either very hard or very easy to figure, kept his right hand in a sling all night. He was unmarked at the end of his fight with Billy, but Billy was chewed up pretty good.

In other words Conn hasn't improved so all fired much, nor has Louis gone back any faster. In fact in some spots of the Louis-Buddy Baer fight, Joe looked as good as he was the night he beat Sergt. Schmeling. As we see it, Joe still hits much too hard for the still fragile Conn, and Conn hasn't learned to hit, nor has he learned to control the gaudy temper which would have gotten him knocked stiff against Louis a year ago and which will get him knocked just as stiff Wednesday night.

Bobby Jones' return—Bobby recently asked one of his closest friends what the friend would think if he returned to competition. "I'd think you were a—fool," the friend said, and then went on to explain to Jones what a terrific anti-climax it would be to a fabulous career. It would be a case of Cobb or Ruth trying to come back, and having the wonderful memories of them destroyed by the sight of their striking out, the friend told Jones.

As a result of that conversation, the greatest golfer of all time gave up his probably worse-than-slight desire to enter the recent United States Open. But the old urge to get out there and battle refused to be snuffed out in Jones. He has agreed to head a hand-picked team of pros to meet our inactive Ryder Cup team. The dough will go to the U. S. O., this splendid organization which is doing so much for the boys in Army training camps. His presence will add thousands to the fund, for after all these years he remains the No. 1 figure in the sport. The Ryder team is made up of Byron Nelson, Henry Picard, Sam Snead, Paul Runyan, Horton Smith, Dick Metz, Jimmy Hines, Ralph Guldahl, Vic Ghezzi and Jug McSpaden, and is captained by Walter Hagen.

Jones would have a lot of good names to add to his own team. Craig Wood, for instance, and Ben Hogan, Jimmy Demaret, Lawson Little, Gene Sarazen, Clayton Heafner, Johnny Bulla, Denny Shute, etc.

Jones himself was down in the 60's twice over the East Lake Course near Atlanta, just before the Open. He retired from golf in 1930, after doing what no other man had or has ever done, yet his touch remains so razor-edged that he had a 29 on one of the nines at East Lake.

Baseball?—League standings should change more often than women's hat styles in the next 10 days. With Brooklyn battling the Cards, for first place and the Reds against the Giants, with third place at stake, and the Cubs faced with the chance of using the Phils as a means of vaulting into the third place picture, the National League is full of impending shuffles. Cleveland, at the outset of an important Eastern invasion, has collided with its roughest foe, the Yanks. The Red Sox, White Sox and Tigers, all five games off the pace, are certain to come out of their initial series in different spots.

Speaking of tight races, the American Association is putting on a classic this year. As of today, Columbus was leading Kansas City by a half a game, Kansas City was leading the third place Minneapolis team by half a game, and Minneapolis was leading the fourth place Louisville club by half a game. Louisville had a game and a half lead on the fifth place Toledo club, which was leading the sixth place St. Paul by 3½ games. The seventh place Indianapolis Indians were a half a game behind St. Paul—and only seven games out of first place.

20 Mid-Atlantic Golfers Battle Today for 3 P. G. A. Berths

Special Dispatch to The Post

Richmond, Va., June 15.—Twenty Middle Atlantic P. G. A. members are expected here tomorrow to battle for three places to the National Championship in Denver over the Lakeside Country Club course. The rounds will be 36 holes medal play.

State Open Champion Chandler Harper is the outstanding local favorite as Bobby Cruikshank is not expected back from the Mahoning Valley Open and John O'Donnell is laid up with injuries from a recent auto accident.

Wiffy Cox, Bob Barnett, George Diffenbaugh and Gene Larkin have definitely entered from the Washington district but Al Treder, Cliff Spencer, Al Houghton, Lewis Worsham, Mel Shorey, and Leo Walper are expected to be on hand.

Rut Coffey, Hagerstown, and John Bass, Baltimore, will lead the Maryland State delegation with Andy Gibson and Ralph Beach expected to be here for the tests.

The three low qualifiers will represent this section in the July championship. Part expenses will be paid by the association.

Lady Bee Triumphs in Two Classes in Bridle Trails Show

Edgewater Mare Takes Title Lead

Nanette Scores Over Goldacious and Jeremiah; Talbert's Good Friday Wins

A smooth-moving mare named Lady Bee, from the Edgewater Riding Academy, carried Phyllis Buxbaum to victory in both classes for school mounts at the Washington Bridle Trails Association's horse show at the equitation field in Rock Creek Park yesterday morning.

Winning both the walk-trot-canter class and the outing over fences, Lady Bee was the only two-time winner of the day as she marked up a lead that wsa difficult to top in the race for the championship of the two-show series. Final event, sponsored by the association, will be held next month.

Among the privately owned bridle path hacks, Charles Fletcher's Nanette bounced back from a hard trip to the St. Margaret's Horse Show, near Annapolis, Md., yesterday, where she entered eleven classes, to win the blue over Mrs. Robert Watson's well-mannered colt, Goldacious. Elizabeth McGowan's Jeremiah and Eva Rabbitt's Jack's Queen were third and fourth.

Eddie Talbert's dependable Good Friday, with his owner aboard, took the knockown-and-out event over Lady Bee after the latter hit a 4½-foot jump. Third was Clara Kretzinger on Greystone, over Mrs. George Mueller's Brown Bonnet.

Potomac Riding School mounts were second, third and fourth behind Lady Bee in both hack and jumping events, as Pal, Duchess and Fred scored in that order over fences and Duchess, Pinto and Rob Roy won ribbons under saddle.

Mrs. Frank Smith's Timber Queen, with Bertha Buckley up, topped Mr. and Mrs. Mueller's Brown Bonnet and Swing Easy among the privately owned jumpers, with Edith Adams' Gypsy fourth. Sam Nash rode the three minor winners.

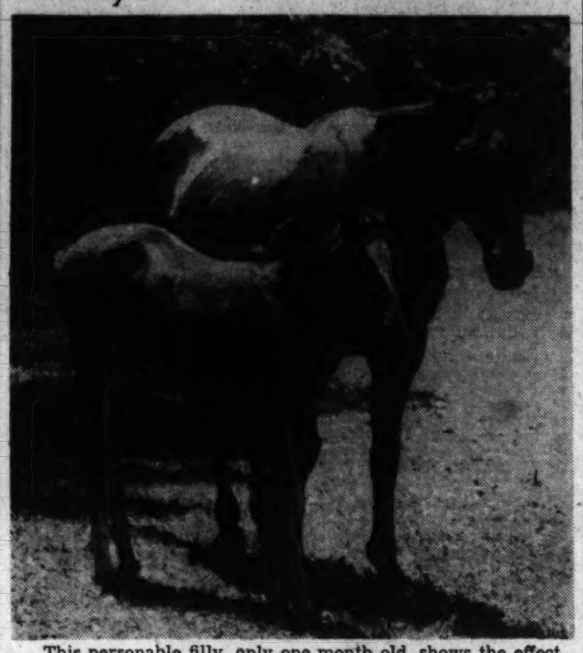
Background of Blue Ribbons—IV:

Dover Farm in McCormick Family for 135 Years



This personable filly, only one month old, shows the effect of limestone land, producing strength-giving grass, and early feeding of grain at James McCormick's farm near Middleburg, Va. She is by My Broom and her mother is by Halderman, a great hunter sire

Huge Breeding Farm One of Few To Remain in Same Family Since War

By Anne Hagner

With the so-called "Yankee invasion" of many of Virginia's famed old estates, very few have managed to remain in the same family since the belt-tightening days following the Civil War, when many farms began the break-ups that are still going on today.

One, however, has survived a multitude of misfortunes and changes to be handed down through the generations to James P. McCormick, who now owns and manages the historic 100 or more acres known simply as Dover, between Aldie and Middleburg.

For 135 years, a long series of McCormicks have been farming and raising thoroughbreds on Dover's broad pastures. Although the land has remained under the same ownership, the beautiful red brick house has served as a variety of community necessities—before and during the War Between the States, it was a school; immediately afterward, it was a hospital for wounded Confederate soldiers; and even later it was used as a post office.

Better Times

Dover is enjoying easier times these days as its owner specializes in raising conformation horses headed for the show ring. Some he raises from his own mares and some he buys as youngsters, but always the L-shaped stables are filled with topnotch prospects.

Jimmy manages his horses on a somewhat different line than do most hunt country folk. Instead of going in exclusively for showing, he is content to develop young horses that can go on, after their 3-year-old seasons, to other owners because he and Mrs. McCormick prefer hunting to show-ring riding.

Dover horses are either bred on the farm or purchased as yearlings, before they have been broken or handled in any way. In that way, Jimmy can break them according to his own ideas—and before they get many ideas of their own.

When a youngster arrives at the farm, he is first worked on a long line and a 'bitting rig," so that he is fairly bridle-wise when Owner McCormick climbs aboard for the first time.

No end of patience and kindness is used during the initial rides, but most youngsters who have been handled quietly around the stable offer practically no resistance.

Lunge-Line Preferred

In contrast to many horsemen's tenet that colts should be jumped, sans rider, in a chute, Jimmy does his early schooling on a lunge-line and then preceded with someone in the saddle. The McCormick farm has no chute, so firmly does its owner believe in his own method.

At Dover currently is a pair of topnotch 2-year-olds, one a gray by Time Maker and the other a brown by Grand Time. When the twosome was entered in the Upperville Horse Show Saturday, the gray made his initial appearance under the colors of U. S. Randle, prominent Washington horseman. Jimmy still owns the brown and considers him the best prospect he has had since the days of his well-known Raus Mitten, now in Indianapolis.

In addition to a number of hunters, spending a placid summer on grass, Dover boasts of a month-old filly by My Broom and out of a daughter of Halderman, a good hunter sire.

Jimmy, asked the name of the filly's dam, scratched his head thoughtfully. "Funny thing," he admitted, "but I can't think of that mare's name to save my life. Must be too many horses around this farm."

Post . . and Rail

By Anne Hagner

Rail chips from everywhere: In case you are still fretting over Looter's failure to win the 3-year-old title at the Upperville Colt and Horse Show's opening session Friday, there is news to put your mind upon other things . . . It is that U. S. Randle has regained ownership of Sport Marvel . . . The exchange occurred at Philadelphia early last week, when George Benoit consented to sell the horse back to his former owner . . . Loudest in cheering at this moment is Margaret Cotter, who had some grand rides on the big gelding when he was a member of the Randle string several years ago.

Miss Hagner

Speaking of Margaret . . . Rocksie won the triple bar class and several other good ribbons at the Sewickley (Pa.) show . . . In addition, his owner changed mounts long enough to win a large variety of hunter classes with Robert Waters' Royalty II, from Johnstown . . . Having won his share at Upperville last year, when he won the championship, Waters decided that he would try for other honors in the North this year.

Dr. E. H. Marsteller's chestnut yearling colt, sired by Repulse, was a standout in his class at Upperville Friday . . . Ernest L. Redman, who makes an annual custom of dominating the half-bred classes at Grafton Farms, did it again when his No Mistake was the victor among a large group of halfbred 2-year-olds . . . Lucille II, the bay Redmon-owned broodmare, topped Rokeby's The Nun among that competition of halfbreds . . . Edgewood Farm's peppy little chestnut colt, by Breast Plate out of Magician, was best of the foals, with Rokeby Stables' filly by Double Scotch pinned second . . . Mrs. D. N. Lee's Glamor Man had a regular field day, winning two big classes.

Even though Meander Farm's Mathematician won the juvenile title at Upperville, this department clings to the prophecy that Springsbury's Looter will turn the tables at succeeding shows and will be the Virginia 3-year-old champion at Warrenton. Anyone want to bet?

Speaking of Warrenton, President North Fletcher reports that a tri-color for working hunters has been added to the prize list . . . also a couple of junior events and a pony championship.

Selections at Charles Town

Dear Al:

With Delaware Park having an off day, this track will have the turf show hereabouts exclusively. Racing Secretary Freddie Burton has lined up a good card headed by a handicap, located fifth on the program. The battle is at a mile and an eighth and will pit Tyr, Annikin, Hot Man and others against Mrs. H. W. Boyle's Sturdy Duke winner of four straight races on the Maryland millers this spring. Before going any farther with these lines, I want to say a few words in defense of Jockey Palumbo. The veteran rider is in a slump. He just can't seem to do anything right and the constant booing he gets is not helping him. He has been beaten lately, right and left, on horses that certainly figured to win. However, it is absurd to think that he is pulling" these horses. In the first place, if he did want to keep certain horses from winning, Palumbo is smart enough to pick spots. He wouldn't be beaten on five, six or seven in a row. He has put up some rides that I did not like and has been guilty of using bad judgment. However, he is out there trying. Don't think for a minute that the stewards are not watching him. They can hear that booing and if Palumbo was not doing the right thing he would have been chased long ago. Then again, Palumbo has a wife and a growing family. He needs the job of riding to keep bread on the table. Bettors who wager on Palumbo, regardless of his mounts, are among those who are yelling loudest. They are used to getting the best of it through Palumbo's riding and now that he is in a slump they are beefing their heads off. After one race last week a man on the rail is alleged to have remarked that he was going to shoot the boy. One thing is certain, Palumbo isn't asking these people to bet on his horses.

BILL.

Phils, Cubs Break Even In Twin Bill

By International News Service

Chicago, June 15.—The Chicago Cubs and the Philadelphia Phillies today split a doubleheader before a crowd of 7,001 fans who braved darkened skies to see the games.

Claude Passeau won a 6-to-0 victory for the Cubs in the first game, going the route and holding the Phillies to nine scattered hits. The Cubs got five of their runs off Tom Hughes, the losing pitcher, before he was retired from the game.

The Phils pounded out an 8-to-4 win over Charley Root and Larry French in the second game. All eight of the Philly runs were scored in the sixth inning. John Podgajny was the winning pitcher.

About Boats:

By Marshall Andrews

Despite its losses to the Naval and Coast Guard Reserves, Corinthian Yacht Club is prospering these days in a manner to make many members' heart glad.

ANDREWS

Already the largest and most completely equipped club for boat owners in the Potomac River area, Corinthian has about reached the limit beyond which it cannot expand. Very shortly, according to present information, it will close its membership lists.

Likewise, other yacht clubs in Washington are nearing the capacity of their berthing facilities. Berths are at a premium and many boat owners, joining the club of their choice, have been forced to place their names on waiting lists for mooring space.

All this is evidence that Washington is waking up to the magnificent oppostunities afforded for the finest of all sports by its network of rivers and creeks and the proximity of Chesapeake Bay. Then, too, there has been a tremendous influx of inlanders to whom all the water hereabouts is an invitation to make use of it, something which too frequently never occurs to one accustomed to it for years.

Lieut. William H. Carlin, harbor master, has reminded District boat owners they have only 18 days more in which to register their craft with Washington police. Boats which must be registered are all habitually moored in District waters, which includes those kept at Alexandria and between Alexandria and Washington.

Boat owners should file information covering the names and Federal registration numbers of their boats, length, beam and draft and location of boat. The owner also must include his home address and telephone number.

Last year about 600 boats of all types were registered here. So far this year, between 400 and 500 have been registered and Lieut. Carlin said he expects at least 300 more, due to the boats bought or brought here by new residents.

Added to last year's purpose of keeping check on boats in use here, in case of loss or theft, there is the added incentive this year of the possible need for boats should this country become involved in war.

All in all, District boatmen are sympathetic with the purposes of the requirement. There are not a few, however, living in Arlington and Alexandria, Va., who have been annoyed by receipt of demands and threats from the District tax collector for taxes on boats already taxed in Virginia.

This department takes this opportunity to point out to the District tax collector that boats owned in Virginia and registered at Norfolk bear the number 14 before the letter in their registration numbers, while those owned in the District and registered in Baltimore bear the initial number 13. It also wishes to point out that a residence address in Arlington or Alexandria indicates that the boat owner lives in Virginia and that neither the State nor its municipalities is to any extent lax in collecting taxes.

Braves Take 5-to-1 Game From Pirates

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, June 15.—Rain halted the second game of a doubleheader between the Pittsburgh Pirates and the Boston Braves today with Pittsburgh at bat in the third inning. The Braves won the first game, 5-1. The Pirates held a 1-0 lead when the nightcap was called.

Nats Divide Double-Header With Detroit

stop Frank Croucher muffed Johnny Welaj's grounder, and on the next play Higgins made his fourth fumble of the day, a muff of Cramer's grounder. Buddy Lewis drove a line drive to center and when Pat Mullin failed in an attempted for a shoestring catch, the ball went for a triple, scoring two runs.

The Nats abandoned Lewis on third despite the fact that none were out, but there was no great consternation, inasmuch as it figured to be an abbreviated game and a two-run lead for Leonard as very encouraging.

But Leonard gave those two runs right back to the Tigers in the second inning. York beat out a hit into the box, and Bruce Campbell bumped his ninth home run of the season over the right field fence to tie the score at 2-2. The Tigers made two more hits in the inning, but Leonard limited the damage to a pair of runs.

Leonard lost the ball game in the fourth when the Tigers came up with another pair of runs. With one out, Tebbets and Croucher singled, and with two out, Pat Mullin sliced a two-bagger to left that scored them. Before Leonard retired for a pinch hitter in the fifth, the Tigers had rapped him for nine hits.

Trout was giving the Nats little encouragement. In fact, after the first inning when Lewis tripled, they made only two hits—singles by Welaj and Cramer, and no runs at all.

In that first game, Bucky Harris' revised batting order virtually roared into action, knocking Newhouser loose from two runs in the opening inning. Lead-off man Johnny Welaj banged a double into left field and Cramer followed with a single to left. Welaj held up at third, and the bases were filled with none out when Lewis walked.

Travis got one run home on a ground ball that saw Lewis forced at second, and then George Archie, who had been honored in pre-game ceremonies at home plate, fetched home the second run. Archie, who was presented with the Sporting News Trophy in token of his selection as the most valuable player in the Pacific Coast League last year, with Congressman J. Percy Priest making the presentation, beat out a bunt to Rudy York best described as nifty, and Cramer scored from third with the second run of the inning.

Hudson pitched two-hit ball through the first five innings, and by that time the Nats had a 3-0 lead. Hudson himself launched a Washington run in the fifth when he singled to center with one out. Welaj drew a walk and Cramer scored Hudson with a single to center.

All of a sudden in the sixth, Hudson developed a wild spell. After Mullin opened the inning with a double to right, he walked Gehringer, and with one out he filled the bases by walking York. A run scored when Campbell drove a long fly to Cramer, but Hudson refilled the bases by walking Higgins. The damage was limited to one run when Sullivan popped out.

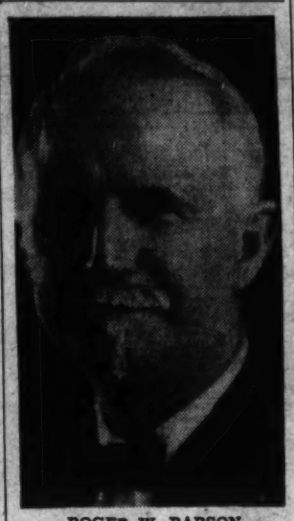
Fundamental Facts

By Roger W. Babson

Human Nature Doesn't Change

Letters are coming to me from manufacturers, merchants, salesmen, and others asking as to how the war will affect their businesses,—such questions as, "Will I be able to sell electric refrigerators?" "Will installment buying be allowed?" "Will more oil burners be manufactured?" etc. These people see so much in the papers about priorities, control of raw materials, manufacturers restrictions, and the like that they are thoroughly scared. They wonder whether they will have the goods to sell and whether people will be in a buying mood if they do have the goods to sell.



ROGER W. BABSON

The first thing to remember is that human nature cannot be changed by legislation. I learned this during World War I when I was national director of information and education at Washington. We shut down on Sunday motoring, but the money went into silk shirts instead of into gasoline. In England, they first shut off the sale of cosmetics to English working girls in the factories. The authorities soon found, however, that unless the girls could buy what they wanted the production of munitions fell off. Then, the government went to the other extreme and installed in all factories slot machines for the sale of cosmetics.

I repeat: No government restrictions can change human nature. This means that industries can't be killed. People will change their habits of riding from a stagecoach to a railroad train and from a railroad train to a bus or aeroplane; but the transportation industry is fundamental. Men will change their mode of fighting from bows and arrows to pistols and guns and then to tanks and bombing planes, but warfare is fundamental. We change our method of heating from wood pile to coal stove and then to the oil burner; but the heating industry still remains funamental. Those who stick to their industry but are willing to change their methods are, in the long run, successful.

Our great grandparents did their reading by candlelight; our grandparents read with a kerosene lamp; our parents lit the house with gas while we use the incandescent lamp. The mode of lighting changed, but those who stuck to the lighting industry and were willing to change the method of lighting came through with flying colors. The easily frightened and the "die-hards" were wiped out. Certainly, there is a lesson in this for all of us today. Do not give up the business or line of work for which you are trained because Harold Ickes says "Boo" to you and tries to scare you.

There is something more in this connection, however, which we should now remember. It is this: Nothwithstanding the changes from candles to kerosene and to gas and electricity, this astounding fact is true: More candles are sold today, more kerosene is sold today, and more gas is sold today than ever before in history. This means that even some of those who remained in these "vanishing" businesses are making millions today. They are making these millions because they developed new uses for their products. They taught people to use candles for decorative purposes; to use kerosene to operate the kitchen stove; and to use gas to heat the house, operate the icebox, and a score of other things never dreamed of before.

A famous magazine publisher interested in developing national advertising once gave me the job of discovering some industry in which no one was then making a fortune. I spent a year on the quest, travelling thousands of miles and making all kinds of inquiries. I was absolutely unable to find a single industry from cradles to coffins in which someone, somewhere, was not making millions. Certainly, this proves that it is the man rather than the industry which determines success or failure.

If you lack courage and imagination, better get a job with the Government or enlist in the Army as soon as possible. These are two fields where you need to do only what you are told and you will get your pay check just the same. If, however, you have courage and imagination and are willing to use your brains and your shoe leather, you need not fear how war will affect your business. Remember that you have in your head the most wonderful and profitable machine which God or man ever created. For heaven's sake use it for something besides supporting a hat!

The priority regulations chiefly affect metals. These regulations would have been a severe handicap to manufacturers of refrigerators, vacuum cleaners, radios, etc., during World War I, if these things had been in general use 25 years ago. Since then, however, the use of plastics has been discovered. In most things now sold for household use, plastics can today take the place of metals. Think this over before getting frightened! Also remember that plastics are only one of a score of other important substitutes which have been developed since World War I. Make priorities and other war restrictions steppingstones to better business, more profits, and real prosperity, instead of getting frightened and running for cover.

Auction Sales

THOS. J. OWEN & SON, Auctioneers
1431 Eye Street Northwest.

TRUSTEES' SALE OF VALUABLE TWO-STORY BRICK DWELLING, BEING PREMISES NO. 1700 MONTELLO AVENUE NORTHEAST.

By virtue of a certain deed of trust duly recorded in Liber No. 6793, folio 89, et seq., of the land records of the District of Columbia as modified by an unrecorded extension agreement dated March 1, 1940, and at the request of the party secured thereby, the undersigned trustees will sell, at public auction, in front of the premises, on TUESDAY, THE SEVENTEENTH DAY OF JUNE, A. D. 1941, AT FOUR-THIRTY O'CLOCK P. M., the following described land and premises, situate in the District of Columbia, and designated as and being Lot 33 in Square 4053 in W. Zarin's subdivision of Lot 1, Block 14, "Trinidad," as per plat recorded in Liber No. 80, folio 34, of the Records of the Office of the Surveyor of the District of Columbia. Subject to covenants of record. Subject to the right of redemption by the makers of the aforesaid deed of trust, their heirs and assigns, within a period of sixty days from date of sale, not excluding Sundays and holidays, as provided in said deed of trust.

TERMS OF SALE: Subject to any and all liens created by conditional bills of sale for heating and other equipment, if any, and overdue water rentals. All other taxes and assessments to be adjusted to date of transfer of title. One-third of the purchase money to be paid in cash, balance in two equal installments, payable in one and two years, with interest at 5 per centum per annum, payable semiannually, secured by first deed of trust upon the property sold, or all cash, at the option of the purchaser. A deposit of $300.00 will be required at time of sale. All conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps, etc., at cost of purchaser. Terms of sale to be complied with within ten days from expiration of redemption period, otherwise the trustees reserve the right to resell the property at the risk and cost of defaulting puchaser, after five days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C.

Official Notices

GOVERNMENT OF THE DISTRICT OF Columbia, Washington, June 10, 1941. ORDERED: That the Police Regulations of the District of Columbia be, and the same are hereby, amended by including therein a new Article under the title of "RODENT CONTROL," to be known as Article XXXII and to read as follows: ARTICLE XXXII RODENT CONTROL. Section 1. The Health Officer of the District of Columbia is authorized to make or cause to be made inspections of existing buildings and other structures to determine the prevalence of rats, and, if necessary for the protection of the public health, he may order the following things to be done:—first, the vent stoppage of any rat-infested building or other structure or part thereof; second, the removal from the premises of trash or refuse which may provide rat harborages; third, the protection of food and garbage from rats; fourth, the extermination of rats on the premises by baiting or trapping, or both. Section 2. Any person who shall refuse to permit or shall interfere with such inspections, or, any owner or occupant of a building or other structure who shall fail, within thirty days after the issuance thereof, to comply with an order issued under Section 1, shall be guilty of a violation of these regulations. Section 3. Any person violating any of the provisions of these regulations shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not more than $50.00. M. C. HAZEN, J. R. YOUNG, C. W. KUTZ, Commissioners. D. C.

GOVERNMENT OF THE DISTRICT OF Columbia, Washington, June 11, 1941. ORDERED: That Article XXVII of the Police Regulations of the District of Columbia be, and the same is hereby, amended to read as follows: "HACKERS' IDENTIFICATION LICENSES. SECTION 1. All persons making application to the Director of Vehicles and Traffic for an identification license pursuant to Paragraph 31 (e) of the Act approved July 1, 1932, (License Act) as amended, shall be required to fill out and to file with the Traffic Division of the Police Department a personal description sheet containing such information as the Director may require, including a full statement by the applicant of all charges placed against him, both criminal and traffic, in the District of Columbia and elsewhere. The application shall be accompanied by two new full face and one profile head and shoulders photographs, size 2½x2¾ inches, and by three sheets of fingerprints of the applicant taken at the Headquarters of the Metropolitan Police Department. One sheet of fingerprints shall be furnished to the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The application shall contain the signatures and addresses of six persons, at least three of whom shall be responsible business men, who have known the applicant for a period of one year or more and who will vouch for the sobriety, honesty, and general good character of the applicant. If the applicant is a resident of the Metropolitan Area as hereinafter defined, the persons whose signatures and addresses are required shall be residents of the District of Columbia, and if the applicant is not a resident of the Metropolitan Area the persons whose signatures and addresses are required shall be either residents of the District of Columbia or of the place where the applicant resides. SECTION 2. An application shall be accompanied by a certificate from a reputable physician of the District, certifying whether in his opinion, the applicant is afflicted with any disease or infirmity which might make him an unsafe or unsatisfactory driver of a public vehicle: Provided, that in case the applicant is not a resident of the Metropolitan Area the required certificate may be from a reputable physician of the place where the applicant resides. SECTION 3. Before any application is filed out said applicant shall be required to pass a satisfactory examination as to his knowledge of the city and to show that he has a current and valid operator's permit authorizing him to drive such vehicle in the District of Columbia. SECTION 4. An investigation of each applicant shall be made by the Traffic Division of the Police Department and a copy of the traffic and police record of the applicant, if any, together with a recommendation shall be attached to the application and forwarded to the Director. SECTION 5. No such license shall be issued unless the applicant is twenty-one years of age or over and is, in the opinion of the Director, of good moral character and is mentally and physically qualified to carefully and courteously operate public vehicles, and has been, for at least one year immediately preceding the date of the application, a resident of the District of Columbia Metropolitan Area, which includes the District of Columbia, the municipality of Alexandria and the counties of Arlington and Fairfax, Virginia, and the counties of Montgomery and Prince Georges, Maryland: Provided, however, that where the application is to operate only a public vehicle described in Paragraph 31 (c) of the License Act, the applicant need not be a resident of the Metropolitan Area. Every identification license issued to an applicant who is not a resident of the Metropolitan Area shall have stamped or otherwise placed upon the face thereof a provision that said license is limited solely to the operation of public vehicles described in Paragraph 31 (c) of the License Act. SECTION 6. Any person who violates any of the provisions of this article shall, upon conviction, be punished by a fine of not more than $300 or imprisoned for not more than 90 days." M. C. HAZEN, J. R. YOUNG, C. W. KUTZ, COMMISSIONERS, D. C.

I THO'T SO—HAW! HAW! THERE'S YER HERO TOOTSY—NOW DON'T NOBODY MOVE—IF ANYBODY STEPS OUTSIDE FER A HALF HOUR THEY'LL GIT KILLED SEE!!

WINNIE WINKLE — Turnabout — BY BRANNER

I WAS JES' GOIN' TO TAKE TH' TWINS OUT IN TH' PARK FOR SOME AIR—
YOU'LL DO NO SUCH THING, RIP WINKLE!
—YOU AN' YOUR LOW-DOWN SCHEMES FOR MAKIN' MONEY! I CAN'T TRUST YOU WITH TH' BABIES—I'LL TAKE 'EM OUT MYSELF—
OKAY! THAT SUITS ME—
-AND YOU CAN DO TH' HOUSEWORK!

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY — BY CLIFFORD McBRIDE

LOOK, QUICK! WE'VE GOT A SMART LITTLE VISITOR, NAPOLEON!
IT'S A TRADE RAT! THEY NEVER STEAL BUT ALWAYS LEAVE SOMETHING IN EXCHANGE. THIS TIME HE'S TAKING RAISINS AND LEAVING ME TWIGS. THERE'S A LESSON FOR YOU, NAPOLEON. THEY'RE THE ONLY HONEST MEMBERS OF THE ANIMAL KINGDOM!

JANE ARDEN — Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. — Competition — BY MONTE BARRETT AND RUSSELL ROSS

THEY'RE AFRAID OF AN EPIDEMIC
WE'RE ANXIOUS TO GET THERE TOO!
YEP! THIS IS A BIG STORY
WHILE AT A NEARBY FIELD—
SURE—FIRST WITH THE BIG NEWS—THAT'S ME!
SO YOU'RE HI CALBER—I'VE READ SOME OF YOUR STORIES!
GIVE HER THE GUN, PAL—I'M OUT TO BEAT THE WORLD ON THIS FLOOD STORY!
I'LL GET YOU THERE—THIS IS THE FASTEST COMMERCIAL PLANE AROUND HERE!

SUPERMAN — Overeager — BY JERRY SIEGEL AND JOE SHUSTER

CRIMINAL SCIENTIST BLOCK HAS KIDNAPPED LOIS LANE AND IS ATTEMPTING TO LEARN SUPERMAN'S REAL IDENTITY FROM HER. LIL DANVERS, "THE BLOND TIGRESS" COMES TO LOIS' AID. MEANWHILE, SUPERMAN, ENTERING THE CASTLE HIDEAWAY, IS SIGHTED BY A WAITING GUARD.
AS SUPERMAN ENTERS A METAL ROOM, THE TRAILING GUARD STEPS QUICKLY IN AND LEVELLING A RAY-MACHINE AT THE MAN OF TOMORROW, PULLS A SWITCH...!
THAT CLICK! WHAT—??
WARNED BY HIS HYPER-SENSITIVE HEARING, SUPERMAN WHIRLS AND DUCKS JUST IN TIME TO DODGE THE DEADLY RAYS BLASTING AT HIM!
SO THAT'S HOW IT IS!
MISSED!

Grin and Bear It

By Lichty

"Otis certainly has grown up these last eventful months—in December he was writing to Santa Claus—now he writes to our Congressman!"

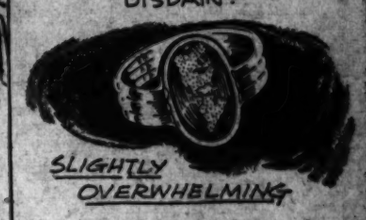
Private Lives

By Edwin Cox

QUEER THINGS ARE HAPPENING IN THE VICHY SELL-OUT TO HITLER. NOT ONLY ARE PUBLIC OFFICIALS FORBIDDEN TO USE THE WORDS "LIBERTY, EQUALITY, FRATERNITY," BUT EVEN THE STIRRING MARSEILLAISE HAS BEEN RE-WRITTEN, BY PETAIN HIMSELF! THE GREAT OLD SONG NOW MUMBLES POLITE GENERALITIES.

STRICTLY LOWER CASE

WHEN QUEEN MARY MENTIONS THE GERMANS IN HER LETTERS NOWADAYS, SHE SPELLS THE NAME WITH A SMALL G—OUT OF QUEENLY DISDAIN.



SLIGHTLY OVERWHELMING

THIS IS THE SYMBOLIC RING THAT GOT DOROTHY THOMPSON IN A PICKLEMENT WHEN SHE OFFERED TO GIVE ONE TO EVERY GUEST AT A RECENT DINNER WHO AGREED WITH HER SOCIAL BELIEFS. NOW 5000 PEOPLE WANT THEM.

Listen! with Glynn

Maybe you've never thought about it particularly, but the daytime dramatic playlets you hear over the radio are not only concerned with the eternal verities, but with current-day developments in the national temper as well.

Take "Joyce Jordan—Girl Interne," which you hear over WJSV at 1:15 p. m. (E. S. T.), every day. The series started, as a matter of fact, from the fact that suddenly, for no apparent reason, the public became interested in medical matters. All at once books, movies, plays, began to treat of medicine in more or less romantic ways. Julian Funt, who had worked for the New York Academy of Medicine, capitalized on his medical knowledge and the public demand by starting the radio dramatic series, and it went very well for years.

When medicine and its ramifications started to pall in themselves, Funt had to find out what the public wanted, or else be out of a job. So, when the surveys showed that newspaper work was becoming the romantic object of people's affections, he promptly switched his story around and wedded medicine and the newspaper business by having his girl interne marry a foreign correspondent.

Georgetown Church Notes Its 75th Year

Thirteen-year-old William Haycock Carr, whose great-grandmother lived to see all 13 pastors of West Washington Baptist Church, yesterday joined that church as it celebrated 75 years of service to the Georgetown community.

The spirit of Mrs. Harrison Haycock, the lad's forebear, permeated the diamond jubilee services in the church where she worshipped from 1869 until her death in 1925.

Her own grandson, Assistant Superintendent of Schools Dr. Robert L. Haycock, spoke on "Characteristics of Our Church as Revealed in Its History" at the evening services, while the jubilee week opened in the morning with a sermon by her old pastor, Dr. C. C. Coleman, now pastor of Grace Baptist Church in Richmond, Va.

Throughout the day thoughts of the older church members, and of younger ones too, turned to the birth of the church in a little Market Street chapel, and to its erection of its own house of worship on Gay Street. A fire later destroyed this buliding.

It was 40 years ago this month that the then young theological school graduate C. C. Coleman, came to West Washington, his first pastorate. When yesterday he asked for a show of hands of those who had served with him, 30 people responded.

Since leaving Washington Dr. Coleman has become one of the South's leading Baptist ministers.

Anniversary gifts made to the church yesterday were a Christian flag in memory of the women who helped found the church, and a painting of the old Gay Street house of worship, executed by William T. Williams, 3144½ O Street Northwest.

Dr. Bernard C. Clausen, nationally known pastor of First Baptist Church, Pittsburgh, will speak at the anniversary service Thursday at 8 p. m.

Flag Day Service Held at St. Paul's, Oldest D. C. Church

A Flag Day service was held yesterday by the congregation of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Rock Creek Parish, oldest church in the District. A church school celebration began with a procession led by the Metropolitan Police Boys Club Band.

Girl and Boy Scouts, church school scholars and others marched down the flag-decorated cemetery walk to the church entrance, where 11-year-old John Parsons presented a new American flag to Dr. F. J. Bohanan, rector, on the school's behalf.

There was massing of the colors in the ancient church, whose congregation was founded in 1712. The Rev. Clyde Brown, Diocesan missioner, spoke.

Lend-Lease Odyssey: How a Former U. S. Ship Goes Forth to War With Royal Navy

Here is the first and exclusive eyewitness story of the entry into the battle of the Atlantic of an American Lend-Lease war vessel, now a fighting unit of the British navy. A writer for the A. P. Feature Service and The Washington Post rode the vessel to Canada to give you this account. Two more articles follow.

By Michael Beatty
Associated Press Feature Writer

Aboard H. M. S.—At Sea.—The lights of New York blazed a farewell.

Steaming close, the rest of our squadron was silhouetted against the horizon, running lights winking and weaving back of us as we slipped out of the harbor.

The yellow reflection from New York cast dull streaks along the barrels of our guns stripped for action on the decks below. Suddenly the senior officer lowered his binoculars, issued terse orders.

"Darken ship! Show no lights! Executive Order!"

Instantly the bridge went inky black. Signal men rushed to stations with long-barreled flashlights and winked pinpoints of light at our following train.

In a few moments all our warships disappeared in a well of darkness. Here was blackout for you—in American waters!

I moved closer to the shadowy form of our commanding offiffcer.

"Practice?" I asked.

"Hardly," he said, "A British ship takes it for granted the enemy may be anywhere. There's no point in making a target of these fine ships your Government has turned over to us."

"Target?"

"Yes, you see, a submarine is rather blind at night. Unless somebody gives him a light to aim at!—"

I had come aboard this former Coast Guard cutter the night before, soon after it had been transferred from the United States to the Royal Navy. They told me the ceremony was impressive.

What had been a U. S. S. became an H. M. S. The American crew had decked her out in dark war paint. Gone was the gleaming white of a Coast Guard vessel. They had loaded her with guns, wired her for automatic blackouts at night. She was complete down to the last knife and fork.

Then a quiet, disciplined English crew took over a vessel they'd never seen before, spun her wheel, turned her knobs, snapped her switches, oiled her guns.

When my American taxi driver came below to collect his fare, he wished me well, as if he expected I'd never be seen alive again. My new friends ribbed me unmercifully about that. And we sat down to dinner.

In one of those bright English drawing room conversations I discovered that the departing American officers had introduced the English ward room officers to poker, and left with something of a profit.

"We'd like to take the time to get it back from you," said one. "But we've got to handle this ship."

(Tomorrow. Actions Stations!

London-to-D. C. Airline Planned

London, June 15 (INS).—British Overseas Airways is completing plans for Transatlantic service from London to Washington to facilitate passage of British and American officials between the American and British capitals, the London Daily Mail reported tonight.

It was understood in aviation circles that this service will consist of a new link in the existing route to Newfoundland, probably via Montreal.

ARE YOU BEHIND THE 8-BALL?

TROPI-TEX BRITISH LOUNGE SUITS WEIGH ONLY 43 Ounces

27.50

Even if you don't know a cue stick from a chopstick, you most probably have heard of "being behind the 8-ball." That's everyday slang for being in a devil of a fix. Don't rack your brains wondering what suit will do the most for you this summer. Chalk this up as a good tip. For utmost comfort wear a nationally famous Tropi-Tex suit from The Hecht Co. MAN'S Store.

IT'S COOL BECAUSE . . . it's made of a lightweight wool that permits your body heat to evaporate quickly and the slightest stir of air to cool your body.

IT'S SHAPE-RETAINING BECAUSE . . . it's made of virgin wool gently washed in naphtha baths to preserve the original strength, life and resiliency of the fibers.

IT'S FLATTERING BECAUSE . . . it's tailored in the exclusive British Lounge Model that gives you slightly broader shoulders, a fuller chest and tapering waistline. In single and double breasted models. And styled exactly like $40 and $45 Worsted-tex suits.

AND BECAUSE . . . it's in business patterns as well as in dress, street and leisure shades for every hour around the clock. Plenty of the popular sand tones. And sizes, of course, for practically every build.
